ROOSEVELT AND THE BIG STICK RAISE AMERICAN PRESTIGE ABROAD

President's Foreign Policy Has Made the United States Not Only Admired but Respected and Trusted by Every Government Throughout the Entire World.

WHAT ITS REVERSAL MEANS TO EVERY CITIZEN.

Democracy's Victory Threatens a Loss of Exports to Foreign Lands and a Corresponding Curtailment in Wages and the Output of Factories, Shops, and Mines.

By John Barrett, United States Minister to Panama.

THE democratic party is making a most serious blunder in criticising President Roosevelt's foreign policy. The contentions of the democratic press and campaign speakers on this subject cannot stand the light of facts. They may take advantage of the general lack of acquaintance throughout the United States with conditions abroad, but when these are known and understood there can result nothing but praise and admiration for the president's policy. No man who goes beyond the shores of the United States, or who, staying at home, has pride in his nation's standing abroad, can sympathize with the democratic exploitation of the president's so-called imperialism. If it were possible to give every person who is skeptical on this point a trip around the world, especially to the far east and to South America, he would return loud in his praises of President Roosevelt.

If, by any combination of circumstances, the president is defeated at the coming election, it will simply mean that the American people have too little regard for their standing, dignity, and influence beyond their own borders. The nation would be, in other words, like a man in a community who has no respect for the opinion of his neighbors and remains selfishly within his own doors, shaping his acts entirely according to his own personal desires. President Roosevelt has made the United States not only respected but admired and trusted by every government throughout the world—excepting possibly one or two which have pursued the tactics of highwaymen in dealing with the United States.

We hear much about the "big stick" from democratic speakers, and yet these orators are the ones who would first call for the president's protection if they were in trouble in other lands! The critics that inveigh against the president's imperialism are the same class of men who would first clamor for the protection of the flag if they had interests abroad which were in any way assailed because of American impotency of action.

American Flag Greater than All Others.

If they who today are stumping the land against President Roosevelt could have gone to foreign parts in the old days when the flag stood for nothing, when American merchants and travelers were everywhere snubbed, when our army and navy were the laughing stock of the world, when we had no influence in the council of nations; and if, then again, they could journey around the world now, when the flag means more than the standard of any other nation, when our merchants have access to all markets, when our navy is respected in every port, and when our advice is sought in every conclave of powers, they would in sheer sense of stricken conscience renounce their present attitude and pray for the success of a party which has accomplished this mighty change, and of a leader whose name is honored in the most remote portions of the earth! It is not a case of the "big stick"; it is a case of a big neighborly spirit. That is today the inspiration of Theodore Roosevelt in his treatment of foreign nations and peoples.

Policy Causes No Alarm Abroad.

Who is it that talks about the "big stick"? Who is it that makes all this clamor about imperialism and about violation of the constitution in our foreign affairs? Who is it that is protesting? Usually, if there is a ruffian at large upon the street, or if there is a bully having his sway, the complaints come from those who are tyrannized over by the ruffian and the bully. Applying the comparison to our relations with foreign countries, it is remarkable and convincing that we hear no cry of the "big stick" from the nations that should be frightened by it. We hear no complaints from Central or South America, unless it be from some country that has no regard for treaty obligations and the comity of international negotiations. We hear no valid protest against imperialism from the people of the countries which are pictured by the democrats as suffering from the president's attitude. Of course, we are told of the speeches and remonstrances of certain agitators and political factions in such countries, but they are inspired, in truth, by influences hostile to the president in the United States. We receive no real, actual protest from the controlling and thinking men of those lands where the administration is accused of wielding a hard, imperialistic hand. The critics who shout in a loud voice about the "big stick" are like the men and boys who sit on the fence and watch a contest or fight between others, but never dare to take part themselves, except to applaud or denounce those actually engaged, according as their sympathies prompt them. If they were obliged to exercise the continual responsibility of President Roosevelt in guarding and advancing American interests abroad, and if they had to stand the blame or censure for each act, they would sing a different song.

United States Hated by None.

Speaking specifically now of President Roosevelt's foreign policy, let us note a few interesting facts in regard to Central and South America. If the policy of the administration is such as it is described by the democrats, why is it that we find nearly all of the Latin republics anxious for the reëlection of President Roosevelt? It is an undeniable and remarkable situation that, with the exception of Colombia, all of the nineteen Latin nations are manifesting an attitude favorable to President Roosevelt. We can assume that the Latin-American newspapers are fairly good gauges of public opinion. In the United States we can largely judge the temper of the people by the prevailing tone of our press. By applying the same rule to Central and South America we discover almost a unanimous press favorable to the president. Now and then some organ of a particular faction assails him violently, but all of the great newspapers editorially express themselves as believing that it would be for the best interests of Latin America that he should be reëlected. The principal representative dailies of Mexico, Lima, Santiago, Buenos Ayres, Montevideo, Rio Janeiro, Havana, and Panama have contained from time to time editorial views emphasizing the fact that the promotion of friendly relations and the development of commerce between their countries and the United States will be subserved and furthered by the success of the president in the coming election. It is impossible to cite a single powerful newspaper in Latin America that sympathizes with the democratic idea of the "big stick" and that opposes President Roosevelt on any such ground. If their future and their rights are in danger, as the opposition "spellbinders" contend, and if they are cowed and shrinking with fear in the presence of this tyrant of the mighty club, why do they not say so, and why do they no' assume a cringing attitude? The real cowing and the cringing will be the characteristic attitude of these speakers when the election is over and the people have given their verdict.

Known Throughout All the Orient.

A word about China, Japan, the Philippines, and the far east in general. It was only a few years ago when, as a United States minister in that part of the world, I, with my colleagues in other countries, saw the United States regarded as a secondary power, and our commerce considered as of little importance among the 600,000,000 human beings that debouch on the shores of the Pacific ocean just across from our own Pacific coast of California, Oregon, and Washington. Up to the time of our occupation of the Philippines the United States failed to stand for that moral, political, and commercial influence that is so gratifying to the heart of every patriotic citizen. Then followed a succession of events, culminating in the present policy of the administration to protect the integrity of China and to join with the other nations in safeguarding foreign commerce and influence which, as specifically outlined by that great secretary of state, John Hay, has won the admiration and plaudits of all lands and peoples. If an American travels now into the most remote sections of China, Japan, Siam, Corea, India, or the Philippines he will find not only that the United States is everywhere known and respected but that our commerce is increasing by leaps and bounds with resultant permanent benefit to American labor and capital.

America Respected Around the World.

There is today no nation in all the world that is so loved and respected in Asia and in South America as the United States. Even a blind, deaf, and dumb man traveling around the pathway of empire cannot avoid being convinced of this fact. Why, then, all this outcry against the president and the "big stick"? Why all this clamor about imperialism? There can be no change for the better; democratic success at the polls, if we could judge of the probable policy of that party from its exponents, would mean a change for the worse. Our prestige would be lowered and without doubt our commerce would be decreased, with resultant injury to American labor and capital. The average laboring man may think that he is only concerned with home policies, but it is of the highest necessity that he should also consider the foreign relations of the United States. He should stand for Roosevelt, the protector and the promulgator of markets abroad for the products of American labor, as well as for Roosevelt, who stands for the protection of the legitimate rights of labor at home in its relations with capital.

If a radical change in our foreign influence and prestige is brought about by victory of the democratic party in November every laboring man in the United States must count upon a curtailment of American exports and a corresponding curtailment

CHARGE OF ARSON; IS IT BLACKMAIL?

Extraordinary Allegation Is Made Against President Perry of National Bank of North America.

DIRECTORS INVESTIGATE.

They Express Confidence in the Accused Man and Denounce Accusers—City Officials Also Looking Matter Up.

The directors of the National Bank of North American held a meeting yesterday afternoon to investigate charges—which they denounce as blackmail—that Isaac N. Perry, president of the bank, had committed arson. The allegation brought to the attention of the board was that Mr. Perry had set fire to, or caused to be burned, the plant of the Chicago Car and Locomotive company at Hegewisch.

The directors will resume the investigation at 9 o'clock this morning.

Tolman Takes Up the Case.

Corporation Counsel Tolman also is making an investigation based on evidence collected and put into writing by an insurance or fire department investigator. Mr. Tolman last night said that it would be two or three days before his scrutiny could end, but that up to the present time the evidence he had seen was far from sustaining the charges. He, too, spoke of blackmail.

Insurers Taking a Hand.

The insurance companies that held policies on the property are conducting an investigation of their own. They, it is stated, received their information from an ex-employé of the works and immediately called the attention of the fire department to the matter.

The police of central station, Inspector Munt, and Lieut. Crane of the Hegewisch police also are investigating.

Bank Director Says "Blackmail."

Speaking for the board of directors of the bank, B. A. Eckhart, chairman of the board, said:

"I believe that this matter is a blackmailing scheme, and the directors have every confidence in the honesty and integrity of Mr. Perry. We heard of the charges first yesterday afternoon, and at once held a meeting to investigate.

"Of course the matter does not concern the bank in any way, because the property was personally owned by Mr. Perry.

Great Injustice to Mr. Perry.

"We feel that a great injustice has been done Mr. Perry, and that the charges are brought without evidence to back them up. It seems hardly conceivable that a big man like Mr. Perry could even be charged with such an enormous crime.

"The investigation of the directors is not yet finished, but we have told him that we still had confidence in him and that he could feel that we would give him a perfectly fair hearing.

"The affairs of the bank were never in better condition and it had been our intention to make a public statement of this matter within a day or two, so soon as we had concluded our investigation."

How Charge Originated.

Another director of the bank told the following story:

"The fire which was the origin of the present allegation occurred nearly three weeks ago, the plant being damaged, it is said, to the extent of $25,000. The manner in which Mr. Perry became interested in the concern is as follows:

"About a year ago Mr. Perry loaned the Pease locomotive works the sum of $100,000. Some time later the company was reported in difficulties. Fearing that any report of financial straits might affect his bank injuriously Mr. Perry personally assumed the obligations of the company to the bank, and out of his private fortune reimbursed the bank to the total amount advanced the locomotive company.

Mr. Perry Took Over Works.

"Then Mr. Perry took over the management of the Hegewisch company, directing its affairs in so far as his other interests would allow him time. His banking business occupied the daylight hours during the week, and it was only on Sundays and holidays that he would find time to visit the Hegewisch plant.

Went to Look Over Building.

"Such a visit he is said to have paid to the plant on Sunday about three weeks ago. It is said that the watchman met him at the door and let him in, and that he looked over the building and machinery to see how his subordinates were attending to the business.

"Some time later that same day the building caught fire and was considerably damaged before the department extinguished the blaze. The loss, it is said, was $25,000. The plant was partly insured in several companies.

Incendiary Rumor Develops.

"Within the last ten days a report reached the officials of the fire department, or at least one of them, that the fire in the locomotive works had been of an incendiary origin.

"Just who first made this report to the city officials is not disclosed. Fire Attorney Johnson at once began an investigation, it is said, without reporting the matter to his superior, Corporation Counsel Tolman. He heard the testimony of a number of persons and concluded the investigation late last week.

"On Saturday afternoon Mr. Johnson sent word to the officials of Mr. Perry's bank that on Monday he would take public action in the matter.

Appealed to Mayor Harrison.

"At once Mr. Perry, through his attorney and friends, appealed to Mayor Harrison and Maj. Tolman to make the most thorough inquiry before making the case public. After this conference Corporation Counsel Tolman took all the testimony which had been gath-

OIL TRUST IS ANGRY.

Breaks Its Policy of Silence to Deny Many Charges.

COUNSEL ISSUES STATEMENT

Sphinx of Wall Street Is Goaded by "Frenzied Finance."

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Standard Oil company has set aside its traditions of years and has spoken officially to the public.

The great oil trust takes occasion to deny the charges made by Thomas W. Lawson in his "Frenzied Finance" and other accusations concerning what the Standard Oil is doing and going to do regarding the election of the president.

Up to the present day the policy of the Standard Oil company has been silence under any and all circumstances.

Company's Counsel Talks.

This policy has at last been departed from, and S. C. T. Dodd, counsel for the Standard Oil company, authorizes the following:

"In view of the many false and misleading statements from various sources, the directors of the Standard Oil company deem it advisable to state to the company's shareholders and the public that neither now nor at any time has the Standard Oil company or any of its constituent companies been interested in any business not directly related with and necessary to the petroleum trade.

Things Standard Is Not In.

"It would be almost impossible to designate in this denial the different classes of business with which irresponsible parties have coupled the Standard Oil company name, but it may not be amiss to specify copper, steel, banks, railroads, and gas (other than natural gas) as being most prominently mentioned. With none of these affairs has the Standard Oil company been at any time connected.

"Individual members of the Standard Oil company have been and are interested as individuals in various enterprises, but this is entirely outside of the business of the Standard Oil company, which is oil alone, unaffected by other interests in which its stockholders may invest.

"Neither is it true that the Standard Oil company, Mr. John D. Rockefeller, or any officer of the Standard Oil company has taken part in securing the nomination of any of the candidates for office, as is so positively stated.

Does Not Manipulate Stocks.

"Furthermore, it is entirely untrue that there is any 'Standard Oil party' banded together for speculation in stocks, as is so commonly charged. The name of Standard Oil company is frequently used by designing persons in the manipulation of the stock market, but its use is unwarranted.

"The Standard Oil company departs from its usual custom in making this denial for the reason that the statements being made at this time by newspapers, magazines, and sensational public speakers appear to be unusually mendacious, and may, to a great extent, mislead the public."

Rockefeller Much Concerned.

J. D. Rockefeller was so concerned after the statement was issued he remained at 26 Broadway until it was too late to return to Pocantico. He therefore went to his town house for the night and will go to Pocantico tomorrow.

His brother William, who lives near him at Tarrytown, was in the city all night. H. H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, and Mr. Dodd denied themselves to reporters tonight.

The statement regarding the nomination of Parker raises a question of veracity between Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Lawson, but that regarding the manipulation of stocks disputes all Wall street traditions.

Lawson's Sarcastic Comments.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—"Is that all? Wow, O Lordy," exclaimed Thomas W. Lawson when shown tonight the official statement from the Standard Oil company. He continued:

"Well, well, the mountain has been a long time laboring. Over forty years of tomblike silence. Just think of it! Over forty years of total indifference to the world. I wonder whose statements could have worked this miracle? It's wonderful, but who could have done it? I wonder who."

"Possibly Thomas W. Lawson could throw a little light on that," was suggested.

Has Just Started Revelations.

"No, that could hardly be possible. I have as yet only muttered a few things about 'em. 'Frenzied Finance' has not begun to be started yet. It can't be possible that insignificant I could have done it. I'm like a fellow groping around for a good place to make a start from so far. Really I have hardly begun to utter what I expect to. So you see I can't be the person responsible for this break of forty years' utter silence—echoless silence at that.

"If I really had begun 'Frenzied Finance'—had sort of taken a good grip on my fountain pen—my name might possibly be connected with this miracle of Standard Oil breaking silence.

"But where I merely have hinted at what I shall say, it really seems impossible that I could be the person to make the sphinx speak—the great glacier melt into speech—make the utterly dumb make intelligible sounds.

"No, it can't be that Lawson has drawn words from Standard Oil."

SOLDIER FREED BY PRESIDENT CHARGES CRUELTY AND GREED

Clarence Fields, Sentenced to Fifty Years in Prison for Killing a Filipino, Tells a Remarkable Story.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Clarence Fields, a soldier, who was sentenced to fifty years in prison at Bilbid for shooting a Filipino, was pardoned last Friday from Alcatraz military prison here by order of President Roosevelt. Fields tells a remarkable story and ascribes much of his harsh usage during three years in Bilbid prison to the malice of Maj. Frank Carrington and wife.

Fields killed a Filipino who had grabbed his rifle while he was a sentry at Catbalogan, Samar. A court martial exonerated Fields of blame and assessed a trifling penalty, but when the case was referred to Gen. Fred Grant he overruled the findings and sentenced Fields to fifty years in prison. This, Fields declares, was due to the fact that the man he killed had two sisters in the employ of Grant.

The cruel treatment in Bilbid prison, according to Fields, was due in part to Maj. Carrington's wife. She inspected the prisoners every day, and for the slightest fault condemned the men to thirty days on bread and water. Fields charges that Carrington took his bank book and confiscated $287 belonging to him.

News Received in London That St. Petersburg Officials May Not Make a Reply for Several Weeks.

CZAR'S REGRETS ARE NOT ENOUGH

PROBABLE COURSE OF THE BALTIC FLEET.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Oct. 26, 3 a. m.—The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent says that among all grades in naval circles the conviction prevails that sooner or later war with England is inevitable, and that the present moment is as auspicious for it as any other.

The Standard's Moscow correspondent also asserts that "the majority of the Russian people find more or less satisfaction in the insult offered to England."

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 26, 3 a. m.—The British fleets are moving to enforce British demands on Russia.

The admiralty last evening issued the following official note:

"After the receipt of the news of the tragedy in the North sea preliminary orders for mutual support and coöperation were as a matter of precaution issued on Monday from the admiralty to the Mediterranean, channel, and home fleets."

Huge Fleets in Motion.

The order calls into coöperation twenty-eight battleships, eighteen cruisers, about fifty torpedo boat destroyers and other armed craft.

The Mediterranean squadron, commanded by Admiral Sir Compton Domville, was at Venice when the admiralty's dispatch was received. The admiral immediately canceled his sailing program and went southward in a dispatch boat, escorted by two or three cruisers. He has since sent instructions for the whole fleet to follow him to Gibraltar.

May Intercept Russians.

The channel fleet, commanded by Vice Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, arrived at Gibraltar on Monday and is now coaling. It is reported that this squadron will go westward as soon as it has coaled.

The home squadron, commanded by Vice Admiral Sir Arthur Wilson, and which has been in northern Scottish waters, sailed southward this evening. The crews were greatly elated and were given a big send off at Cromarty.

25,000 Naval Reserves Called Out.

The Daily Express states that instructions have been issued for the mobilization of the naval reserves, totaling 25,000. This was not confirmed officially.

The Morning Post states that the leave of all naval officers was stopped Monday morning, and that the admiralty has provided for the concentration in the event of an emergency of an overwhelming force at any point required.

Change in the Situation.

The sudden change in the situation, as disclosed by the movements of the British fleets, is caused, it is believed, by a dispatch from St. Petersburg, quoting a high Russian official as saying that a delay of several weeks may occur before Russia can reply to the British note.

Russian comment which attempts to make light of the North sea incident is deeply resented by the government and people alike in this country. "England will in no case be satisfied with an apology and the payment of a money indemnity," said an official. "The real punishment of the responsible offenders will be peremptorily insisted upon. It is hardly doubted, however, that a sane government would concede this demand."

The suspicion of Russia's attitude has not been entirely allayed by the fact that King Edward has received from Emperor Nicholas himself a cablegram expressing the deepest regret and practical acknowledgment that Great Britain's peremptory note will meet with a reply conceding every demand for apology for the act of aggression against the British flag, compensation for sufferers, and punishment of the officers responsible for what is everywhere conceded to have been a gigantic blunder.

Insist Fleet Shall Stop.

From the London press this morning comes the demand that Russia must recall its fleet, or at least stop it at some neutral port pending an investigation and the punishment of the officers responsible for the North sea outrage. The newspapers declare that there will be work for the British fleet if the Russian squadron attempts to proceed on its journey to the far east without first making an adequate explanation.

Voicing this demand the Standard asks:

"Is this ill omened squadron, with its demoralized crews and incompetent officers to continue its crazy career and become an intolerable nuisance and menace to the civilized world?"

Impatient Over Delay.

All the morning papers display great impatience over the delay of the Russian government in according satisfaction for the North sea affair. The czar's communication, while it relieves the immediate tension, is to be only a personal expression of regret, and it is argued that unless the Russian government speedily follows suit a situation of the greatest danger will arise.

reply to the British note can be made by Russia until an official report is received from Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, the Standard says:

"If this means that we are to obtain no reparation until the Russian government has instituted an elaborate and protracted inquiry the position may speedily become highly critical."

That a possibility of dangerous developments lurks in the protraction of the crisis is seen in the fact that Russian correspondents of British papers are beginning to send rather inflammable dispatches. For example, the Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent this morning says:

"In military circles, among the less responsible officers and in marine circles of almost all grades, the conviction prevails that sooner or later war with England is inevitable, and that the present moment is as auspicious as any other."

Europe Is with England.

In this connection, the greatest satisfaction is expressed at the unanimity of foreign expressions of opinion in support of Great Britain's attitude in the matter, and especially at German denunciation of the conduct of the Baltic fleet.

Public interest and even anxiety shows not the slightest sign of waning. The Russo-Japanese war is almost forgotten and the papers are occupied almost exclusively with the North sea affair. Not a public dinner or function of any kind but the speakers refer in unmeasured terms to the conduct of the Russian officers and urge the government to be firm in its demand for satisfaction.

Busy Day for the Diplomats.

The day has been one of the busiest in recent years in diplomatic circles here. The Russian ambassador, who only reached London shortly before midnight Monday, was an early caller at Lansdowne house and had a long interview with Lord Lansdowne, after which the British foreign minister drove to Downing street and conferred with Premier Balfour and others and for the rest of the day was occupied with a mass of matters pertaining to the affair.

Momentarily the public expected some definite announcement of an official nature, but late this evening the foreign office announced that no further statement would be issued tonight. It is understood that this is because it is considered that it would be unwise, in the present state of public feeling, to make any intermediate proclamations concerning diplomatic proceedings in view of Great Britain's announcement to Russia that the matter would not brook delay.

Count Benkendorff, the Russian ambassador, was occupied until late tonight at the embassy with a mass of cipher dispatches, and it was announced at the embassy that it would be physically impossible to prepare a formal reply in such a short time.

Rowdyism Has Disappeared.

While Great Britain is stirred to its depths there has not been the slightest evidence of a repetition of the rowdyism of last night, which is condemned on all sides.

The suggestion that Ambassador Benkendorff's visit to Lansdowne house instead of to Downing street was due to fears of mob violence is indignantly denied at the foreign office and at the embassy. In fact, there was not the slightest sign of any gathering of a hostile crowd at the foreign office, although the police precautions were most thorough.

Count Benkendorff himself referred to the incident of last night as trivial, and did not appear to consider it worth notice.

Popular appreciation of the situation, however, was evidenced when King Edward appeared in public today, when he started for the race meeting at New Market. A big crowd awaited the king both at Buckingham palace and at the railroad station, and the heartiness of the cheering and the vigorous waving of hats and handkerchiefs, with occasional shouts of "good old Teddy" from the ultra enthusiasts, made up a remarkable demonstration and afforded the king evident pleasure.

Party Differences Forgotten.

The speeches of members of the cabinet and of the house of commons today in different parts of the country voice the sentiment of Great Britain, and the spirit in which the utterances were met shows that for the moment party differences have been laid aside and that the country is solidly behind the government.

Lord Selborne, at the Pilgrims' banquet tonight, denounced the Dogger bank affair in the most outspoken terms yet heard from a member of the cabinet—as an "inexcusable outrage," and "a terrible blunder which would be impossible in either the British or the American navy."

Calls It Wicked Negligence.

Speaking at Leamington today Colonial Secretary Lyttleton, referring to the North sea affair, said that even looking at it in the calmest and most composed manner it was impossible to view it other than as the result of murderous intention, or the result of wicked negligence. Having said that much, Mr. Lyttleton thought that every one should follow the example of the government and "hold themselves entirely courteous to Russia, giving them every credit for their ready disavowal and disassociating the great monarch who presided over the Russian empire and disassociating many good people in Russia from any sympathy with such an outrage and thus contribute to international courtesy and international peace."

One Trawler Unaccounted For.

The trawler Snipe arrived at Hull today with two of the wounded fishermen of the sunken trawler Crane. The trawler Gull so far is not known to have arrived at Hull, but it is not understood that it was struck by the Russian shells or that any of its crew were wounded.

The post-mortem examination of the bodies of the victims of the Dogger bank affair was held today at Hull. The proceedings were purely formal and no official announcement was made, but it is stated positively that both of the dead men bore wounds inflicted both by machine guns and a larger shell.

Report of Trawler Admiral.

The report of the admiral of the fishing fleet, dated from "the North sea," is a picturesque touch, a plain sailor's yarn of the occurrence, which was handed to Foreign Minister Lansdowne tonight. It follows:

The North Sea, Oct. 22.—We were fishing in latitude 55.18 north and longitude 5 east the night of Oct. 21. At 11:30 p. m. a large fleet of men of war sprang upon our lee bow, the wind being about south southeast. One squadron passed by our lee side. The remainder, consisting of four battleships, steamed just across our head, throwing searchlights over our fleet. As soon as they got to windward they began firing on us, their projectiles flying all around and across our decks for a full quarter of an hour, some of the shots passing under the mainsail, so unpleasantly near the men who were gutting fish in the pound that they cleared out down below, one shot passing right between them.

I much regret to say that others in the fleet were not so fortunate as us in escaping unhurt. The Crane was sunk, its skipper and third hand were killed, and all the rest of the crew were wounded with the exception of the cook. The skipper of the Gull it was who, being hailed by the Crane, saying "We are sinking," hove up his gear, got out a boat, and went to the rescue of the unfortunate survivors.

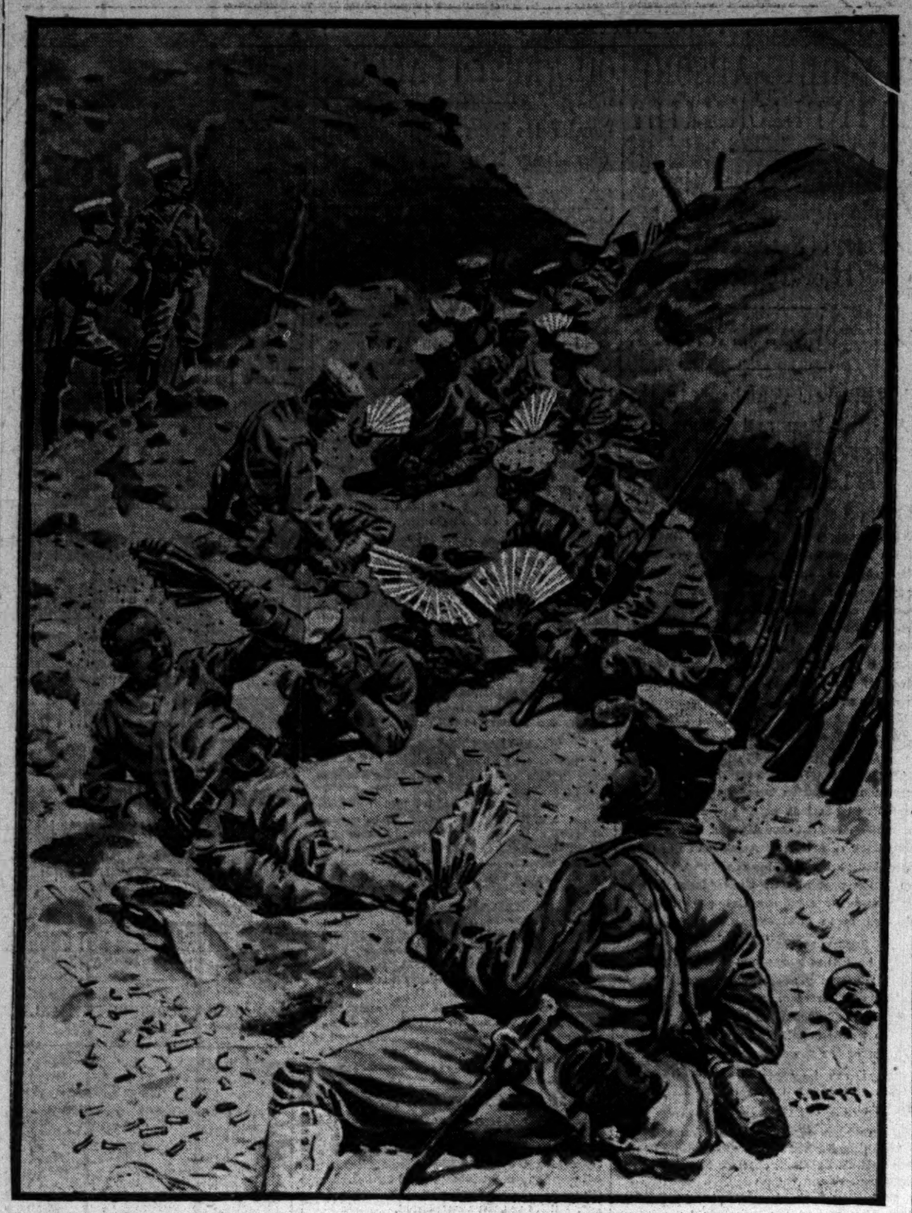

The Moulmien, Mino, and Snipe all had shots pass through them, the two former vessels being obliged to make sail homeward. I think two or three vessels did not board us in the morning, but that may be owing to thick weather causing them to miss the fleet.

I don't know whether they took us for Japanese or whether they were practicing to get their hands in. There must be a mistake somewhere. They ought to have known we were only inoffensive fishermen.

THOMAS CARR, Admiral.

Japanese Soldiers Fanning Themselves During a Lull.

[Drawn by S. Begg from a photograph by a correspondent of the Illustrated London News.]

One of the most curious facts of the present war is the constant use of the fan by the Japanese troops in Manchuria during the hot weather. This peaceful emblem, so intimately connected with the art and life of the courageous warriors of the eastern empire, seems to bring a curious continuity of home associations into the field of Mars, yet the men who are so deft and even graceful in the manipulation of this accessory of fashion can at a moment's notice cast it aside to do deadly execution with the rifle.

RUSSIA IS MORE UNEASY.

OMINOUS RING TO THE BRITISH NOTE OF PROTEST.

As Yet the English Government Has Presented No Demands—Only Denounces the Outrage and Asks for an Explanation—Says Nature of Reparation to Be Asked Will Be Determined Later—Czar Expresses Regret, but Is Unable to Explain Facts.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 26, 3 a. m.—There is an ominous ring to the British note of protest over the attack by the Baltic fleet on the North sea trawling boats that causes uneasiness in official circles.

As yet Great Britain has presented no demands. The note of protest transmitted by the British ambassador only asks an explanation for an act which it characterizes in strong language as unjustifiable, deliberate, and inhuman.

Great Britain makes no threats, fixes no time limit for response, and makes no demands. The note specifically states that Great Britain's demands are reserved, pending an explanation.

Crisis Not Yet Passed.

It is thoroughly understood here that any failure on the part of Russia to comply with Great Britain's ultimate demands will be followed immediately by the recall of Ambassador Hardinge and the rupture of all diplomatic relations.

No Report from Rojestvensky.

It is just this that causes anxiety in Russian official circles. Russia cannot as yet offer any explanation. Up to midnight the admiralty had received no report from Vice Admiral Rojestvensky. At that hour it was not known where he is, but it is presumed that he is proceeding to Vigo, Spain, to recoal his ships. But the date of his arrival there is entirely problematical, for he is sailing under sealed orders which give him wide latitude.

Until Rojestvensky makes a report of the unfortunate occurrence in the North sea Russia can offer no adequate explanation.

Czar Telegraphs His Regrets.

Meantime, without waiting the Russian version of the affair, Emperor Nicholas, through Ambassador Hardinge, has sent to King Edward and the British government a message conveying an expression of the profoundest regret for the unfortunate affair, coupled with assurances that the families of the victims should receive fullest reparation.

It is feared here that when England's demands are presented they will include the punishment of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky and those of his officers who were responsible for the North sea affair.

Features of British Note.

The full text of the British note of protest has not been made public, but it is known that it stigmatizes the firing upon the British fishing boats as an act "inhuman, unjustifiable, and deliberate." The note recites the circumstances of the affair, saying that a fleet of steam trawlers carrying the established lights was approached by the Russian squadron, which threw searchlights upon the vessels and then deliberately altered its formation. One vessel was sunk, two fishermen were killed, many were wounded, and several vessels were missing after a bombardment of the fishing vessels, which lasted for a considerable time. The squadron then sailed off, leaving a vessel of small tonnage, which remained on the spot for six hours.

Calls It Inhuman Conduct.

The note points out that the indignation of the British people, heightened by the inhuman conduct of the commanders of the warships in abandoning the sinking, crippled trawlers, was further emphasized by the failure of the smaller warship to offer or render any assistance, although it was impossible for it during all that time to have mistaken the true character of the fishing vessels.

The note concludes with the statement that the British government is awaiting Russia's explanation of this unjustifiable act, pending the receipt of which it reserves its demands.

The language of the note admits of no doubt that when the demands are ultimately presented Great Britain intends to insist upon full compliance with them. From the diplomatic standpoint, the fact that Great Britain has not shown her hand strengthens her position.

Hope for Peaceful Outcome.

Although some nervousness is perceptible in diplomatic circles, generally speaking there is the greatest confidence both among diplomats and high officials of the government that the affair will be amicably adjusted. It is felt, indeed, that the gravity of the situation may prove its salvation by imposing the utmost care and deliberation upon both sides. The emperor's action, following his interview with Count Lamsdorff, is regarded as an expression of his purpose to meet any reasonable demand of the British government and do everything possible to avoid cause of a quarrel. It is known that the emperor was greatly grieved and shocked when he heard the news at Cronstadt Monday afternoon and it is asserted that he has already expressed a determination to punish whoever is responsible for the error.

Admiral Delay Means Danger.

Nevertheless it is felt that the unexplicable delay of Vice Admiral Rajestvensky in making a report of the whole affair is the most serious feature of the situation. While the British note fixes no time limit for Russia's reply, it is argued that the protracted delay of the admiral's report will do more than anything else to inflame British public opinion and render final adjustment difficult.

The admiralty still clings to the hope that the official report may place the affair in a more favorable light, though reluctantly the officials are disposed to admit that it may have been a case of panic started by some nervous officer, either from the failure of the trawlers to heed the squadron's signals or at the sight of a trawl boom being lowered from one of the fishing boats.

It is pointed out that a trawl might easily be mistaken in the distance and darkness for a torpedo tube.

Still Talk of Jap Spies.

An unofficial statement made at the admiralty tonight is to the effect that the government, before the squadron sailed, was informed that twenty Japanese had recently reached Hull from a German port, and were believed to have boarded the trawler fleet, but both the information and its significance are admittedly hazy.

Officials declare that it is now impossible to predict when Admiral Rojestvensky's report may be received. In some quarters it is said there are good reasons to believe that it will be delayed for weeks. It is also said that it already has been mailed at Cherbourg, and that it will not be committed to the telegraph wire, and it is likewise stated that transports will put out from Vigo and intercept the squadron, and that it is intended to forward the report without stopping the fleet.

All Legations Are Busy.

A tour of the embassies and legations this afternoon showed that the sentiment was almost unanimous that Russia would make every reparation and that the incident would be adjusted unless Great Britain's demands should be unreasonable, which it was thought they would not be.

Meanwhile the admiralty has been sending urgent messages to Vice Admiral Rojestvensky asking him to forward a detailed report of the incident without a moment's delay. Dispatches have been sent to Brest, Cherbourg, and Vigo in the hope of getting into quick communication with the vice admiral.

Seeking the Admiral.

The admiralty points out that Rojestvensky's division of the squadron did not stop at Cherbourg, but proceeded direct to Vigo. If only the cruiser division was involved in the affair, upon its arrival at Cherbourg, Rear Admiral Enquist, who commands that division, may have forwarded his report to Rojestvensky at Vigo instead of to the admiralty here, although in such an extraordinary case the Russian regulations require an immediate report to the admiralty as well as to his superior officer in command of the squadron.

The conflicting nature of the British reports of the affair is creating much comment here. One statement says the Russian hospital ship Orel has some wounded fishermen on board. This statement is utterly inconsistent with the first reports, to the effect that the Russians made no effort to succor the drowning fishermen.

Warned of Other Trawlers.

Capt. Calthorpe, the British naval attaché, in full uniform, accompanied by the embassy chasseur, wearing his full uniform, with hunting knife and plumed hat with the British colors, drove in state yesterday to the admiralty, where the attaché formally notified the minister of marine that there were other British fishing fleets on the Spanish coast. This formal warning probably indicates the temper of the British instructions, which, there is reason to believe, are couched in a vigorous and somewhat peremptory tone.

Naval Officers at Copenhagen Declare Fear Shown by Men on the Baltic Fleet Was Ridiculous.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25.—Naval officers here do not seem to be much astonished by the Russians running amuck. They fired at a Danish torpedo boat while going through the straits and only missed it through bad marksmanship.

CALLS IT RUSSIA'S DELIBERATE ACT.

London Times Sends to Hull to Investigate Attack on Fishing Fleet.

NO SIGNS OF A PANIC.

Ships Formed in Line and Fired Bursting Shells at Helpless Boats.

LONDON, Oct. 26, 3 a. m.—A dispatch from Hull to the Times says that the correspondent, as the result of his investigation, is of the opinion that the attack on the British trawlers by the Russian second Pacific squadron was a deliberate act, perpetrated with knowledge of its character.

The correspondent argues that the fact that the first ships of the squadron steamed calmly by "disposes of the fiction that the Russian officers had an attack of nerves," and then contends that it is ridiculous to suppose that Russian men of war, largely manned by Finns, could have mistaken the trawlers for anything but fishing boats.

"Besides," the correspondent says, "such excuses as have been advanced on behalf of the Russians do not even allege ignorance; they suggest some mistake or a menacing movement by the trawlers. Then the firing was from more than one ship and was commenced and stopped by orders."

Bursting Shells Were Fired.

The correspondent minutely details the injuries inflicted upon the trawlers, and asserts that every shot was about 2½ inches in diameter at the point of entry, evidently bullets from machine guns, whilst the trawlers also were struck by a bursting shell, of which a skipper picked up fragments. He says:

"The Moulmein had a hole aft fifteen inches long and eight inches wide at the point of entry, evidently made by a shell. It is wonderful that the Moulmein and the Mino escaped the fate of the Crane, for the Russian gunners made first rate practice and must be complimented on their marksmanship.

"At the same time one cannot swallow the yarn that they were paralyzed by terror or that darkness prevented them from distinguishing the vessels they were firing at."

"Having a Little Fun."

Finally, the correspondent contends that "the whole affair is compatible with the idea of a drunken commander yielding to the temptation to have a little fun among British fishermen, who are nothing more than peasants in the eyes of a well born Russian, and, according to the ideas of a Russian officer, especially one under the influence of vodka or champagne, a few rubles would settle the killing of a poor brute of a peasant.

GRAND DUKE SERGE SNUBBED.

Czar Forces Him to Withdraw Order Expelling Employer of 65,000 Workingmen from Russia.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 25.—Grand Duke Serge, governor of Moscow, recently summoned Morozoff, the greatest employer of labor in Russia, to his palace and told him he must subscribe more for the army and other war requirements. Morozoff replied that if he did so contribute he must have representatives on the administrative fund to see that all contributions are applied to patriotic purposes.

Grand Duke Serge demanded to know what he meant, whereupon Morozoff retorted that he had given a million rubles worth of his cloth at the commencement of the war for the Manchurian army, and since then he had seen the same cloth being sold in the Moscow shops.

Grand Duke Serge angrily demanded an apology from the plain spoken Morozoff, and said if he did not receive it Morozoff would be given his passports and be compelled to quit Russia. Morozoff refused to apologize and he was given his passport.

Before leaving, he gave instructions that all his factories should be closed, thus throwing 65,000 employés out of work. At this point the government intervened and caused Grand Duke Serge to withdraw his order. Consequently Morozoff remains in Moscow. The event is being widely discussed.

PRAISE FOR AMERICAN NAVY.

British Officers Show No Disposition to Be Jealous of Rivals from Over Seas.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—"I thank God that the day has come when neither the British nor the American navy can be jealous of each other's development."

Rear Admiral Jewell in the foregoing sentence tonight elicited loud cheers when he replied to the toast in honor of the American European squadron at the banquet given them by the Pilgrim society.

Lord Selborne, in proposing the American naval guests, said he must refer to "the inexcusable outrage" in the North sea. In a similar case, said Lord Selborne, the American or British navy would make immediate and ample apology.

Rear Admiral Lambton declared that he could never believe any naval officer, Russian or otherwise, would do a dastardly act intentionally. Naval officers sometimes make mistakes, but, said Admiral Lambton, "give them time to apologize and everything will be all right."

CZAR PROMOTES HIS FIGHTING GENERAL IN FAR EAST.

Officer Who Has Borne the Brunt of the War with Japan and Fought the Battles of Liaoyang and Shakhe River Not to Be Overslaughed — Oyama Reports His Losses in Killed and Wounded at 15,879—Armies Are Close Together.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 25.—An imperial ukase dated Oct. 23 and made public today appoints Gen. Kouropatkin commander in chief of the Russian army.

A Harbin dispatch states that Viceroy Alexieff on Monday published an imperial decree appointing Gen. Kouropatkin commander in chief of all the land forces in the east and retaining Alexieff in the post of viceroy. The emperor also congratulates Viceroy Alexieff on the efficiency he has displayed in the formation, concentration, and supreme direction of troops in the theater of operations.

Viceroy Alexieff, in his proclamation, thanks the land and sea forces for the self-sacrifice they have shown, and says he is proud of the mark of confidence bestowed upon him by the emperor in intrusting him with the supreme command of gallant troops.

He hopes, in conclusion, that with God's help, their strong adversary will be defeated.

A dispatch has been received from Gen. Kouropatkin announcing that there was no fighting yesterday between the opposing armies.

DREYFUS SCANDAL IS REVIVED.

Four Officers Charged with Using Military Funds in Prosecution and Trial Before Court Martial.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—A sequel to the Dreyfus case was the opening of the court martial today of four officers of the war ministry, Cols. Dautrich, Rollin, François, and Mareschal, charged with using military funds and otherwise influencing witnesses against Dreyfus at Rennes.

Col. Dautrich testified that during the entire course of the proceedings at Rennes he followed the orders of his superiors.

The indictment charges Col. Dautrich, while custodian of the military archives in 1899, of mutilating books and making erasures, for the purpose of shielding the diversion of funds by Cols. Rollin, François, and Mareschal. The three latter are specifically charged with appropriating $4,000 when the prosecution of Dreyfus was going on.

CHARGE OF ARSON; IS IT BLACKMAIL?

Extraordinary Allegation Is Made Against I. N. Perry of Bank of North America.

Express Confidence in Accused, but Officials Are Looking the Matter Up.

ewal and said he would go into the matter personally himself.

"He had expected to complete this work by yesterday afternoon in time to hold the conference with the directors and officials of the bank. Stress of other business, however, delayed him, and he could not keep the appointment.

Sale of Works Almost Closed.

"Mr. Perry had all but completed arrangements for the disposal of the locomotive works at a large figure, which would reimburse him for the funds he invested when he took the company and turned over nearly $100,000 out of his pocket to the bank."

Director Harris Defends Perry.

Another of the directors of the bank, Albert W. Harris, told the story of the charges as it had come to the directors, as follows:

"I have heard about this story and I do not believe it. As nearly as I can find out, the truth of the matter is that a former employé, a man named Baldwin, who had charge of the plant for Mr. Perry, was discharged for inefficiency, and he swore to get even with him. I know that the matter is being investigated by the insurance companies, and by others, though I am not prepared to say just whom.

Says Baldwin Started Story.

"The matter was first called to the attention of the bank directors by this man Baldwin, and it was he who told the insurance companies about it, too. Mr. Perry at once told us frankly what the situation in regard to his relations with this man was, and we were satisfied that the evidence was too flimsy to cause us any apprehension.

"Whereas we were, of course, anxious to arrive at the truth of the allegation in order to safeguard the interests of the bank, still we felt that there was so little foundation for the story that we would say nothing about it for the present. We were afraid it would cause apprehension among our depositors, when there really was no cause for it.

Evidence Merely Circumstantial.

Edward Hines, another of the bank directors, when asked his views of the matter said:

"There is no reason to believe that the charges brought against Mr. Perry are true in fact the evidence against him is so circumstantial that if he occupied a lesser position than the one he does it probably would not be considered at all. As it is, however, the directors of the bank are bound to investigate it to the end, and we fully expect to exonerate Mr. Perry.

Perry Frankly Explains.

"It was only yesterday that we learned of these charges, and at once we asked for an explanation. Mr. Perry was perfectly frank in telling us all about his trouble, and even went out of his way to show us how unfounded the charges were. I for one do not believe that a man like Mr. Perry could be guilty of burning down a building for the sake of the insurance, and I think that the other directors think the same thing. As far as the bank is concerned, it is not affected in any way by these charges, nor would it be affected if Mr. Perry were found guilty. Our affairs were examined into last week by the examining committee, and we have just emerged from the hands of the bank examiner."

W. B. Conkey Calls It Outrage.

"There is no truth in the charges against Mr. Perry," said W. B. Conkey, another of the directors. "So sure do I feel that it is all untrue and an outrageous slander on the man that I am willing to say absolutely that they are only the tattlings of a malicious mischief maker. They are not worthy of discussion even, and have practically been dismissed by the directors. It is easy for any one to bring charges, and we must consider the source from which these came.

"The man who makes the charges is utterly unreliable, and the evidence he brings is so purely circumstantial that I don't see how anyone can believe it. I do not believe that the insurance companies will go so far as to take out warrants for Mr. Perry, and even if they do that does not prove anything. As for myself, I am convinced that the matter is in the hands of persons who will give it the fullest investigation, and I am perfectly satisfied to trust Mr. Perry."

Noyes Thinks It a Slander.

Le Verne W. Noyes is also a director of the bank, and he said last night: "I was not at the meeting of the directors which considered Mr. Perry's case, and I really know little about the charges. From what I have been told by other directors, however, I feel confident that Mr. Perry is being slandered and that there is no foundation of truth in the charges which have been brought. I am not even cognizant of the exact nature of these charges, and I don't know by whom they are brought."

Perry Stays Late at Bank.

Mr. Perry was in his office in the bank until late in the evening with M. J. Rosenthal and other directors of the bank and friends.

"The Chicago Car and Locomotive company," Mr. Perry said, "was organized to purchase and continue the business of the company headed by F. M. Pease, which went out of existence through bankruptcy proceedings. Luther H. Baldwin was chosen president and Edward Geisick secretary of the new company.

Tells of Trouble Over Plant.

"Last May a great difference of opinion arose as to the line of policy to be followed. Certain men wanted to control the company and to commit it to a course that would have been fatal to its continued prosperity. There was a heated session of the board of directors and finally Baldwin and Geisick were forced to resign.

"It may be said that they were discharged because of incompetency. Neither had any great financial interest in the company.

Got in Through the Bank.

"My connection with the company is solely that of the head of the bank which loaned it money. Various amounts were advanced from time to time until now its account is about $11,000. These are straight bank loans with no strings to them and with no unusual qualifications attached. It was by virtue of the position of the bank as creditor that I interested myself in the operation of the plant."

"What is the plant worth?" Mr. Perry was asked.

"Between $150,000 and $200,000. It might be put at $175,000. The property is in good condition and has a good earning capacity."

Owes Only to One Bank.

"What other debts has the company beside that to the National Bank of North America?"

"Not a penny. No money was borrowed of any other concern or individual. The company owes nothing beyond the notes due this bank."

Mr. Perry said he did not know in what companies the insurance policies were taken out. He did, however, know the amount of such insurance.

Knows About Insurance.

"When I first came into business relations with the company," he said, "I was told it was carrying around $171,000 of insurance. I considered this excessive, as only the amount of the actual loss could be realized in case of fire. I, therefore, advised that this total be cut squarely in two, and it is the intention to let half the policies lapse as they expire. The policies are payable to the company, so far as I know. Neither the bank nor I personally are or have been in position to profit by the payment of insurance money from fire loss."

Knows Little About Fire.

Of the fire Mr. Perry said he did not know much.

"It caused a loss of $12,000," he said. "It is true I was in Hegewisch the day of the fire, but what does that signify? I have not heard that there was anything suspicious about the manner of the starting of the fire. There have been many minor fires in the plant, as naturally occurs about a large manufacturing establishment. The buildings burned were old. Their destruction only slightly impaired the working efficiency of the plant.

"I have not received any word from the insurance companies. The loss did not greatly concern me because it was so small as not to affect the security of the bank loan."

Heard of Charges on Friday.

Mr. Perry said he first heard of the hints and charges of the origin of the fire last Friday.

"I never saw Inspector Johnson so far as I know," he said, "and no representative of the fire department came to see me. From other sources I learned that certain alleged evidence had been submitted to Corporation Counsel Tolman, along with charges implicating me. I also understand there was nothing substantial in them.

"I do not know who preferred the charges or who presented them to the legal representatives of the city and county."

Only Guesses at Accuser.

"Who do you imagine could have made them?" Mr. Perry was asked.

"I can think of no one except Baldwin and Geisick. The charges seem to have been raised for the purpose of injuring my character. They may have come from men who wanted to rule or ruin, and who had failed in their attempt at the former.

"I can conceive of no other motive for the attack upon me. It is beyond comprehension that they expected to show a motive for the acts they sought to fasten upon me. There is absolutely no way in which I could profit by the destruction of the property. The bank security was ample before and is ample now. The insurance money, when paid, will go to the company and not to the bank or me. Our interest would be best served by the preservation of the property, not by its destruction."

Baldwin Denies Being Accuser.

Luther H. Baldwin, the former president of the company, denied that he was responsible for the charges. He admitted, however, that he knew they had been made.

"I did not prepare the evidence or present the charges," he said at his home, 2141 West Van Buren street. "And I do not know who did. Yes, I knew the charges had been made, but I prefer not to discuss the matter."

"You severed your connection with the company under circumstances anything but pleasant," it was suggested to Baldwin.

"Of that, too, I will not speak."

"What do you think of the charges?"

"I do not wish to give an opinion on that."

"How was the insurance placed, did it run to the company or to the bank?"

"It ran to the company entirely."

Tolman Tells of Case.

"The matter of the charges against Mr. Perry was brought to me by the attorney for the fire department, who was requested to make an investigation by the insurance companies which had policies upon the property burned," said Corporation Counsel Tolman last night. "I think that the story bears all the marks of blackmail. We are going to make a thorough investigation, and will take testimony probably for several days before we will be able to find out the truth.

Hears of Ill Feelings.

"I am told that the property belonged to Mr. Perry and he had a man named Baldwin engaged to run the works. There undoubtedly was bad blood between the two men, and Perry discharged him. Shortly after this Baldwin was heard to say that he would make trouble for Mr. Perry, and the next thing that was heard he had gone to the insurance companies with this tale that the property had been burned at Mr. Perry's order.

"I do not know Mr. Perry, but from the first the story did not look right to me, and I am determined to run down the people who are responsible, and arrive at the truth if that is possible. If it is Mr. Perry he will have absolutely no mercy from this office, but on the other hand, if there has been blackmail, as I suspect, I will see that the perpetrators are punished.

"I do not know whether there was more insurance carried than the plant was worth, although I have heard that there was, but we have not reached that stage in our investigation yet. I cannot say, either, whether the insurance companies are making an investigation separate from the one we are making, though I should not be surprised if that were the fact."

OLD RIVALS MEET AND FIGHT.

Recognition Between Canadian Seamen at Union Gathering Leads to Renewal of an Ancient Grudge.

Meeting apparently as strangers at the marine firemen's meeting at 85 Ninety-second street last night, Frank Dunn and George Lawston, once of a Canadian seaport town, recognized each other as former rivals for the hand of a girl. The old grudge was renewed, hot words followed, and the men clinched. Lawston is said to have drawn a knife and slashed Dunn about the face and body. The men were arrested, with Frank Mankstahl, who had introduced them.

ROLLS OUT THE EDELWEISS

SUPREME COURT HOLDS ITS LICENSE INVALID.

Passes Over Point as to Agents Signing Consents, Finding That Not Enough Frontage in All Favors the Permit—Rule Made for Man Who Has Not Enough Money to Pay Alimony — B. M. Shaffner Fails to Qualify.

The license issued to the Edelweiss garden was declared invalid by the Supreme court at Springfield yesterday, the judgment of the Appellate court being affirmed.

The question of whether all the persons signing frontage consents as agents were duly authorized to sign was raised, but the court says it is not necessary to determine this question.

"It is clear," said the court, "that the application was not signed by the owners of a majority of the frontage on both sides of the four streets surrounding the block in which 5062 Cottage Grove avenue is located, and it is not necessary to determine whether the parties who signed as agents were duly authorized to act for their alleged principals."

The proceedings were in quo warranto form to test the validity of the license issued to Joseph Theurer.

Shaffner Must Pay Alimony.

In ordering B. M. Shaffner to pay his former wife $1,200 back alimony and $80 a month or go to jail, the court lays down a definite rule for such cases as follows:

"He who seeks to establish that his failure to pay alimony is the result of lack of funds must show with reasonable certainty the amount of money he has received. He must then show that the money has been disbursed in paying obligations and expenses which, under the law, he should pay before he makes any payments under the decree for alimony."

The court decides that whatever he has, after meeting bare living expenses, must be applied on alimony.

Shaffner, who formerly was commander of the naval militia of Illinois, made affidavits that he did not make enough from his practice to pay his living expenses, that he had to keep a crippled brother, and told many other phases of hard luck. The Circuit court, however, adjudged him in contempt. The Appellate court sustained this, and now the Supreme court has affirmed it.

Holds Employe Assumes Risk.

The court reversed and remanded the case of Charles La Pointe against the Gunning system. La Pointe obtained a judgment of $10,000 for personal injuries sustained while working for the company. The Supreme court remands this with such force that the plaintiff cannot, on the same testimony, secure another verdict.

The court holds that when an employé works in a place whose unsafe condition he has called to his master's attention, and continues to work after a reasonable time for making repairs has passed, he assumes the risk. This the court decides La Pointe did, continuing at his work for several days after his employer had promised to make certain repairs.

Reverses Conviction of Murder.

The court reversed and remanded the case of John Nordgren. Nordgren was convicted in Cook county in February, 1903, of the murder of his wife, Ellen, and sentenced to thirty years in prison. The court's finding makes it practically impossible to convict Nordgren again on the same evidence. The court finds that the only evidence against him was the dying assertion of his wife that she had drunk whisky given her by her husband.

Drainage Board Loses Point.

The suit of George Beidler and others against the sanitary district to recover as damages the amount expended by plaintiffs in repairing docks on the south branch was reversed and remanded. In the lower court a demurrer to the declaration was sustained and plaintiffs appealed, claiming that there had been taking of property without compensation. This demurred is now overruled.

STEAL CIGARS FROM A WAGON.

Thieves Add to List of Similar Crimes by Taking Booty Valued at Two Hundred Dollars.

Another theft of cigars from a delivery wagon was reported last night. Walsh, Boyle & Co., 2 State street, lost boxes valued at $200 from a wagon left standing at Clark and Monroe streets.

John H. Botthorff, who has been a guest at the New Southern hotel, 1250 Michigan avenue, reported that a burglar entered his room early Monday morning and stole clothing valued at $92. Botthorff declared he followed the thief and fired two shots at him.

Leo Kurtin, an alleged hotel thief, was held to the grand jury by Justice Prindiville. He waived examination.

Burglars robbed the hardware store of Carl J. Geffort, 5908 Halsted street, early in the morning, securing $10 and hardware and razors valued at $400.

FIRE DRIVES OUT PUPILS.

MORE THAN 200 GIRLS FLEE FROM A CONVENT SCHOOL.

Formed in Line by Sisters of Mercy, They March from Structure at 2834 Wabash Avenue While Flames Fill the Basement—Woman Is Probably Fatally Burned While Starting Blaze in a Stove at 13 Julian Street—Partly Blind.

More than 200 girl students of the Sisters of Mercy convent school, 2834 Wabash avenue, last night marched out of the structure while flames filled the basement. They were directed by Mother Superior De Sales, who was the last to leave the building.

Although several of the young women became panic stricken none of them left her place in the ranks that was organized in the fire drill. All were marshaled on the second floor, those on the upper stories of the building being summoned to "quarters" by the ringing of the fire bell.

All Out When Firemen Come.

Waiting for the signal to leave, the girls calmly stood in the line. Then, with sisters of mercy on either side of the procession, they walked down the wide stairway and to the large grounds surrounding the building. The firemen arrived just as the young women left the structure.

Fearing the building was doomed and the students in danger scores of men hurried to the scene and offered their services. They were told they were not needed, but waited until after the blaze had been extinguished.

The fire started in the basement drying room. Clothing hanging near a gas jet is believed to have been touched by the blaze. When the firemen arrived the flames were being fought by men employed in the school, who had confined it to the basement. It was extinguished with a loss of less than $1,000. The building is old and was one of the best known convents in the city. It recently was turned into a training school for girls.

Tries to Start Fire; May Die.

While attempting to start a fire in her stove Mrs. Josephine Kawalski, 13 Julian street, who is partly blind, was so severely burned that she probably will die. Henry Tillro, a carpenter, 719 North Ashland avenue, was burned on the hands in extinguishing her blazing clothing.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED BY A CAR.

Policeman Carries Body, Thinking She Is Alive—Boy Struck by Locomotive and Dies Later.

While crossing the street yesterday at Buffalo avenue and Ninetieth street, Nellie Morgan, 7 years old, 8900 Superior avenue, was struck by a south bound South Chicago electric car and instantly killed. Not knowing the child was dead, Patrolman John Ryan, while carrying her to her residence, talked to her all the way. Others who met death or injury during the day were:

The Dead.

WENDT, EDWARD, 7 years old, 9962 Avenue M; struck by locomotive in morning while crossing Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks at One Hundredth street; died at residence.

The Injured.

Considine, Thomas, 30 years old, 745 West Division street, street car conductor, struck by Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway train at Kedzie and Chicago avenues in evening, when he stepped on track to see that way was clear for his car; taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital; may die.

Doolin, J. W., 848 West Fifty-ninth street, driver of furniture wagon, with which electric car collided at Van Buren and Halsted streets; injured internally; taken to residence.

Edwards, Patrick, 75 years old, 212 Barry avenue, stepped in front of moving electric car at Cornelia and Halsted streets in the morning; taken to German hospital; will recover.

NAMES COMPANIONS IN KILLING.

Malcolm Taylor, Who Admits Shooting Kniering, Implicates Three More Men.

Asserting that he was "through with his companions who left him in the lurch," Malcolm Robert Taylor, 494 Twenty-seventh street, who admitted firing the shot that killed William H. Kniering, 3258 Princeton avenue, Sunday night, made a new confession.

"Along with Timothy, alias 'Buck,' Dwyer, Twenty-seventh street and Shields avenue; William Connors, alias 'Mossy,' and Duncan Taylor, my brother, I entered the place shortly before 7 o'clock Sunday night," he said, and told the story of the killing.

With this confession the police say they are given a "clear field," and will arrest the other men before tonight.

After the confession had been made by Taylor several witnesses were called to the police station by Lieut. Walsh and questioned. All identified Taylor as the man who assisted in the raid on the saloon.

CLINGS TO CHILD WITH SMALLPOX.

Disease Fails to Separate Mrs. E. B. Smith and Her Little Daughter.

IN HOSPITAL TOGETHER.

Parent Accompanies Patient, and Amuses Her and the Other Young Inmates.

Smallpox was not sufficient to separate Mrs. Edwin Burritt Smith, wife of the special counsel for the city in the traction litigation, from her 11 year old daughter. Mrs. Smith is at the isolation hospital, keeping her mother's watch and guard over her child, who is an invalid.

The self-sacrifice of the woman has brought sunshine into the institution. Cheered by her presence, little Emily is the light hearted, fairy princess of the place. In entertaining the girl Mrs. Smith lightens the burden of the many less fortunate children at the hospital.

Use Telephone in Talks to Father.

Through a telephone that has been installed in their room Mrs. Smith and Emily talk morning, noon, and night with the husband and father, and tell him they soon will rejoin him in their residence, 5330 Cornell avenue.

"We expect to be back within a week," Mrs. Smith said last evening over the telephone. "Emily is doing well and I am in good health. How the child contracted the disease is a mystery. We thought at first it was chickenpox or measles. Then the physicians told us what it was and she had to be brought here last Wednesday.

"Emily is an invalid, and therefore I followed her to the hospital. I have been vaccinated and had no difficulty getting in."

Plays Piano for the Child.

There is a piano in the room occupied by Mrs. Smith and on it she plays the songs dear to childhood. "In Winter Night I Get Up Early" has been the favorite, with Eugene Field's "Little Boy Blue" second in popularity. And those tunes and songs of the child world are for the patients in the other wards as well as for little Emily, who alone is so favored as to have her mother with her.

All the formal régime of a little girl's daily life is gone through in due order. The whole family of dolls, waiting in insipid dignity over night the return of their mistress, is ushered into the royal presence. Although the hospital authorities have provided plenty of good commercial dolls, Emily had her own to keep her company, that they might not be lonesome at home in her absence.

Picture Books for Little Ones.

Then there are magazines and picture books for Emily—and the rest, too. The telephone is called into requisition if the supply threatens to become exhausted. Down in the city Mr. Smith has been summoned to replenish the stock, and he has responded with alacrity. Emily has taken a lively fancy to Dr. George McIntyre of the hospital staff, and he has been called on to do his part in filling her wants.

Two more cases of smallpox were reported to the health department. Five persons, including three "suspects," were admitted to the hospital. In hotels and in the State street stores, as well as in the telephone company exchanges and with other large employers the work of vaccination is being done. The latest cases are those of Fern Potter, 17 years old, Thirty-fifth street and Forty-second avenue, and Andrew Barna, ten months old, 4620 Marshfield avenue.

COMMANDER BOOTH-TUCKER GIVES FAREWELL LECTURE.

Pictures Scenes in Salvation Army Life —Auditorium Audience Voices Regret at His Early Departure.

Thirty-five hundred persons attended the lecture of Commander Booth-Tucker of the Salvation army last night at the Auditorium. As his talk was brought to a close Luther Laflin Mills offered and the audience adopted resolutions expressing the regret of Chicago at the probable transfer of the commander to other fields.

It was the speaker's farewell lecture, the subject being "Dramatic Scenes of Love and Sorrow." Stereopticon views were given, showing scenes of misery and want that Salvation army soldiers encounter in their work.

When the lecture was half over the speaker ordered the lights turned on and then offered his thanks to the public and the newspapers for their interest in and kindness to the Salvation army.

At many points of the lecture the audience applauded, but when the picture of the commander's deceased wife, Consul Emma Booth-Tucker, appeared the applause was deafening.

Commander Booth-Tucker announced that Col. Sowton, who has commanded the Chicago brigade of the army for four years, will soon leave to take up his work in Denmark.

OUT OF WORK, TWO SEEK DEATH.

Charles Reus Will Live, but J. H. Nickerson's Bullet Brings Death.

Despondent because he had been unable to secure work because of his age, Charles Reus, 58, according to the police, attempted to end his life yesterday at his home, 790 West Seventeenth street, by shooting himself in the head. At the county hospital it is said he will live.

Leaving a letter saying his wife would "now probably be satisfied," J. H. Nickerson, 7453 Jackson avenue, shot himself in the head and died a few minutes later.

Mrs. Nickerson said her husband had been out of employment since Aug. 1 and was despondent. Several days ago they had a slight quarrel.

WAR DRIVES GIRL DISTRACTED.

Russian Young Woman Found on Street Praying for Safety of Her Parents in St. Petersburg.

Believing that England and the United States had combined with Japan in the war against Russia, and praying for the safety of her parents in St. Petersburg, Paula Isen, a Russian girl aged 23, was found last night sitting on the curbstone in front of 100 Michigan street by a policeman from the Chicago avenue station. She talked incoherently. Later she was taken to 611 Canal street, where she has relatives.

Asthma Can Be Cured

This statement of Mr. J. F. Homan, 20 E. Adams St., Chicago, proves that the worst cases of Asthma in the world are not only relieved, but are readily cured by Dr. Schiffmann's Asthma Cure. He says: "Asthma kept me in terrible misery for ten years, until I used your Asthma Cure. After the first trial I was a changed man. I went to sleep that night and awoke next day much relieved, and I have gotten entirely over the Asthma. It is now nine years since I was cured."

"HUNT NIGHT" AT THE HORSE SHOW

Women Ride Jumpers Over the Barriers, and Are Cheered by a Great Crowd.

ONWENTSIA IS SECOND.

Warrenton Club's Timber Toppers Carry Off Honors, After Perilous Display.

It was "hunt night" at the horse show last evening.

Under the leadership of Master of Hounds W. Vernon Booth and followed closely by Mrs. Preston Gibson and Miss Mary Lord, the pink coated riders of the Onwentsia club swept twice round the arena and over the jumps, while an audience larger than that of the opening night stood on its feet and cheered them.

Onwentsia in Second Place.

But Onwentsia came off second best in the contest. After a long debate the judges gave first prize for the "best exhibit from any recognized hunt club" to the eight whips and hunting men from the Warrenton Hunt club of Warrenton, Va. The award was received in silence by the crowd, as the faultless showing of Chicago's two women riders had won general sympathy.

"Thank heaven it's over," remarked one of the judges, as the arena was cleared after the event. "When women are in the ring our hearts are in our mouths. They're pretty sure to stick on their mounts, but if the horse once falls it's all over with them."

Mrs. Gibson's Mount Fractious.

Saranac, ridden by Mrs. Gibson, was a source of endless trouble. He was fractious from the moment he entered the ring, and began by landing a kick on J. H. Pirie's Tomboy. Two grooms swung at the bit of the big bay gelding till his turn to jump came, and then Mr. Booth requested Mrs. Gibson to dismount and leave the arena on foot. Examination showed that the horse was fit and a veterinary was sent for as soon as the animal reached the hitching room.

At the second timber jump the Onwentsia riders came near to a serious accident. Mr. Booth, Mrs. Gibson, and Miss Lord, who led the field, went over the rails like a breeze, but Mr. Pirie's Tomboy and Charles Hill's Hunter Rye knocked the fence in a heap, leaving a dangerous mixup for the men behind. Frederic McLaughlin on His Grace took the timber as it was falling, Granger Farwell managed to pull up Drayton, but James P. Lord came pounding down upon the tangled mass of rails with powerful Grey Eagle going for all he was worth.

While the crowd held its breath, Mr. Lord spoke a word of encouragement to his mount and the big horse spread himself and cleared the danger spot as if taking a broad "water jump." The spectators showed their relief in a round of hearty applause.

Fine Exhibition by Miss Lord.

Lightfoot, Miss Lord's hunter, gave a beautiful exhibition. Neither he nor Mrs. Gibson's horse "ticked" a single rail or hurdle. When the women had gone round the ring twice the crowd frantically demanded an encore, but Mr. Booth was content to let well enough alone and forbade it. As Mrs. Gibson and Miss Lord made their way to their seats after the event hands were outstretched from all the boxes on the east side of the building, while women exclaimed: "We're proud to know you. You did magnificently." Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt was especially cordial in her felicitations of the Chicago riders.

In riding, the men from Warrenton were unusually expert. Unlike their Onwentsia competitors, they jumped in sets of three and showed they were used to it. Master of Hounds W. D. Benner, with two whips wearing the velvet jockey caps of hunt club officials, took the jumps with only one hurdle down. Richard Wallach, on Flicker, led the second trio with almost as good a showing, but the last two riders knocked the rails over on both trips. For the Toronto Hunt club, the only other contestant, James Murray's Montrose refused the timber jump.

World's High Jump Record Broken.

A world's record was broken in the open high jump event, which kept the audience in its seats till almost 12:30 o'clock. After working the bars up inch by inch in successive trials, Pearl, a bay mare owned by E. H. Weatherbie of New York and ridden by P. Roach, cleared the timber at 6 feet 9 inches, breaking the previous figures of 6 feet 6 inches for loose rail jumping, established at Buffalo by Rosemary. The applause given this feat rivaled that awarded the hunt exhibit earlier in the evening.

For second place in the high jump Hugh Wilson, after a nasty fall, took Crow & Murray's Timber Topper over the bars at 6 feet 6 inches. The same owners and rider carried off third prize with Coquette, although George Pepper's Senator gave the winner a game contest.

Society Again at the Show.

The few men at the show in the afternoon clung to the railing watching the horses. The women sat in the boxes. There was little visiting done, and few braved the promenade.

Mrs. Joseph Coleman, in brown, with a hat of violet beaver, sat with Mrs. Preston Gibson, who was wearing a long coated suit of gray covert. Mrs. Gibson's other guests were Mrs. Lockwood Honoré, who was missed on the opening night; Mrs. Clarence Moore of Washington, and Miss Belle Beach. In the John King box Mrs. King was entertaining her mother, Mrs. Henry Dibblee, Mrs. J. M. Field, Mrs. William R. Odell, and Mrs. Bert Winston. Mrs. Edward S. Adams sat not far away, wearing a brown velvet suit, with a large brown beaver hat with orange and brown plumes.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and their guests, Miss May and Mr. Palmer of New York, sat together in the Vanderbilt box, the hostess gowned in a rose broadcloth suit, with which she wore white furs and a large light blue felt hat simply trimmed with satin ribbon and one large red rose. The party was among the first to leave the Coliseum.

Dinners in the Evening.

Society was late in arriving at the show in the evening. The boxes were all taken, however, and the spirit of the evening was more for the horse than for the great show of people, as on the opening night.

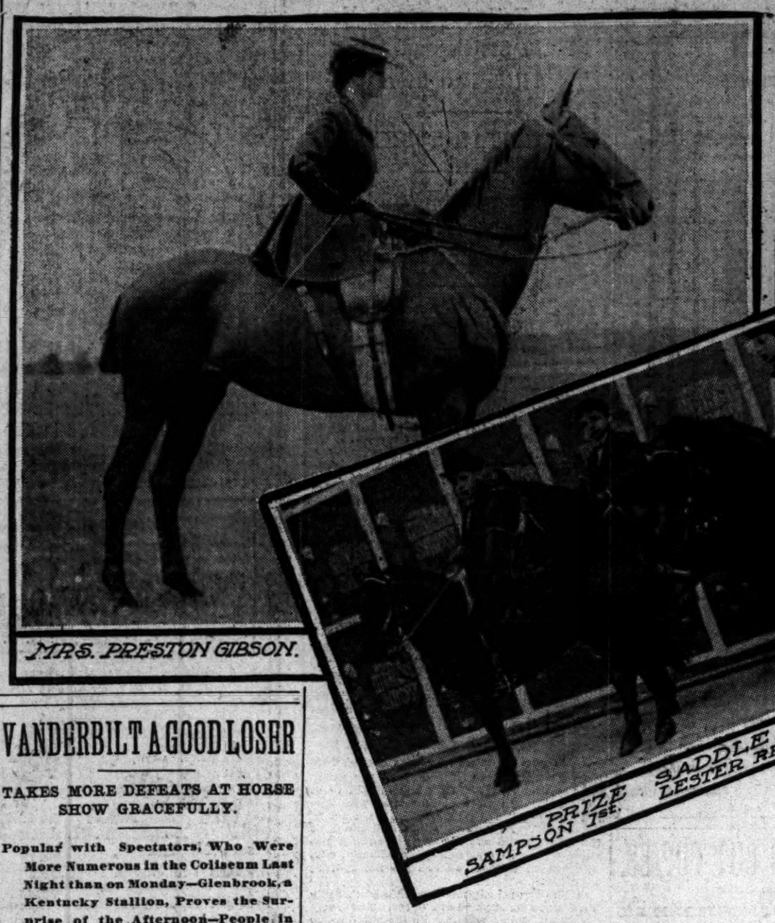

There were a number of dinners before the exhibition. Mr. and Mrs. John King entertained a few guests, among them Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt, the latter wearing all white lace with a long white broadcloth coat and a pale blue hat with one large blue plume. Mrs. King wore black chiffon velvet and a small breast toque of vivid red. Charles Fair and James Deering also were of the party. Close by sat Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who had Miss Florence Grey with them. Mrs. Meeker wore a crêpe gown of palest fawn color, the bodice being made almost entirely of fine lace of the same shade. Her hat was of wine colored velvet with a shaded plume. Miss Grey wore a pastel tinted gown with long cream broadcloth coat and a large green hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Watson Blair. The hostess wore pale blue crêpe with white lace, and a large blue hat. Her wrap was a long loose one of sable. Mrs. Blair wore white lace with a small blue felt hat bearing an aigrette. Her cloak was of light tan broadcloth.

Other Visitors and Costumes.

In the next box sat Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Adams. Mrs. Adams wearing white, with a large black hat. A few seats away were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King, whose guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keith and Miss Muriel Byram. Mrs. King wore gray crêpe, with white lace, and a large black hat. Mrs. Keith was gowned in a combination of bright red chiffon velvet, with white lace appliqued on in design.

VANDERBILT A GOOD LOSER

TAKES MORE DEFEATS AT HORSE SHOW GRACEFULLY.

Popular with Spectators, Who Were More Numerous in the Coliseum Last Night than on Monday—Glenbrook, a Kentucky Stallion, Proves the Surprise of the Afternoon—People in Seats Take Intense Interest in the Judging.

[BY HENRY TEN EYCK WHITE.]

Reginald Vanderbilt had to put up with some more defeats at the horse show last night, but he took his medicine gracefully and maintained the unruffled demeanor and placid countenance that in his case goes alike with victory or defeat. In the brougham class his big chestnut horse, Dr. Selwonk, albeit favored by the audience and applauded more than all the others in the ring at the time, was placed second to W. H. Moore's Joseph. In the competition for park horses the Vanderbilt pair, Fad and Fancy, driven by their owner, were third to E. B. Jordan's Kitty Gray and The Baron and J. H. Moore's His Highness and Royal Victor.

Mr. Vanderbilt is popular with the Chicago audiences, and there were more people at the Coliseum last night than at the opening of the show. The eastern man drives his horses as if he thoroughly enjoyed the sport. He bears a striking resemblance to his grandfather, William H. Vanderbilt, who had a stable full of fast trotters, as did his father, "the Commodore," before him, and the passion for fast stepping nags which was dormant in one generation has evidently taken a fresh start.

When he dashed into the ring behind his pair of natty blacks hitched to a handsome T cart everybody recognized Vanderbilt, and a buzz of talk was manifest. During the contest the easterner paid strict attention to the business in hand and incidentally displayed a lot of skill as a reinsman. When the fateful numbers went up that gave the blue ribbon to the Jordan pair and the red rosette to the Moore outfit Mr. Vanderbilt, if he felt any disappointment, did not show it. It was a verdict in which all the railbird experts agreed, and the ease with which the Jordan horses are taking down the ribbons in all sorts of classes shows them to be the highest class stable ever put together.

In addition to the park pair win last night the Jordan stable won a class in the afternoon, and on the opening day were similarly successful.

But the show that set the crowd wild last night was that of the roadster class pairs, in which there were but two competitors. The inherent love of Americans for speed in horses was demonstrated when the roadsters had the ring. Both pairs—Rhea W. and Easter Maid and Amos B. and Glenbrook—had a lot of step, and the way they flew around the ring demonstrated that fact as well as the perfect control their drivers had over them.

Mr. W. G. Carling of St. Paul, who put Rhea W. and mate together two years ago and sold them to a Philadelphian for whom they won a lot of ribbons, came down from the Minnesota town to drive them, and was more than repaid by a victory that was all the more welcome because hard won. Indeed, it was not until one of the judges had driven each pair a few times that a decision as to which was the best could be reached. Both pairs have a dashing way of going, but in general appearance Amos B. was not up to his mate, Glenbrook—the stallion that won a class in the afternoon—although he had him beaten a trifle for speed. But Rhea W. and Easter Maid moved like one horse, and a handsomer pair never stepped into a ring. That they could go well was demonstrated more than once, and there was plenty of applause when the ribbon was placed on the near mare.

"It is a good sign when the people in the seats take a lively interest in the horses on show," said a man who is up on horse show matters; "and you will find that the minute interest lags the attendance falls away. Take tonight for instance. Those trotting pairs had the audience at fever heat right away, and there is many a man who will look to see when they are on the program again, so as to be sure and come to see them. He will bring his wife along, too."

The first appearance of Glenbrook in the ring was in the afternoon, when the class for trotting stallions was called. It had not been expected that there would be much in the way of quality in this ring, as the entries numbered but five, and there were no stallions of repute as sires or possessors of extreme speed in the lot.

But when Glenbrook, a horse never before seen in this part of the country, came thundering through the entrance gate and stepped down the east side of the ring at a 2:40 gait the audience looked a minute to take in all his beauty of form and action, and then the applause began. There were other stallions in the ring that under other circumstances would have attracted attention by their grace and speed, but they looked common alongside of Glenbrook. He is a dark brown in color, almost black, and a better put up one at all points would be hard to find. Smoothly turned at every point, he added to rare beauty of conformation a perfect trotting gait, albeit on the showy order, and was on parade all the time, whether at rest or in motion.

It did not take the judges long to decide that Glenbrook was entitled to the blue ribbon, with Norval King second and Marconi third. Norval King made a good impression by his ring work, although his action was not quite so dashing as that of Glenbrook, but the man who rode the attendant saddle horse lacked in the matter of managing a trotter under such conditions, and to this extent the horse was handicapped.

As soon as the horses left the ring there was a rush of horsemen to the hitching room to look Glenbrook over at close range and learn his blood lines. The stallion hails from Georgetown, Ky., in the heart of the blue grass region, and for the last eight years has been a noted show ring winner in the south and southwest, having gone as far away from home as Georgia in search of blue ribbons. He is now 12 years old, and has taken part in 237 ring contests, in 227 of which he has been in the ribbons—a wonderful showing for any stallion.

Glenbrook comes naturally by his beauty and other show ring qualities, as he was sired by the trotter Shawmut, record 2:26; he a son of Cornig's Harry Clay, which horse was bred back in war times by Erastus Corning of Albany, N. Y., a man who was a political power in his day, and whose son continued the breeding of harness horses. Shawmut was sent to Kentucky in his youth and spent the most of his life there. Glenbrook also traces the maternal lines of his pedigree to horses of speed and beauty, his first dam being by Stranger (son of Goldsmith Maid), which was in turn by Gen. Washington, the dam of that horse being the one time famous trotter, Lady Thorn. The second dam of Glenbrook was by Mambrino Abdallah, and his third dam by Kentucky Clay, so that he is in every sense of the word a trotting bred stallion.

The saddle horses attract a good deal of attention every day, as do the Shetland ponies, the latter being put on afternoons and evenings for the benefit of the women and children, who one and all pronounce them "cute." In a ring yesterday for gaited saddlers owned and used for private work by residents of Chicago half a dozen extra good ones were shown, and, in fact, the quality in every ring this year is high. The blue ribbon yesterday went to Mr. A. A. Wilson's chestnut gelding, Artist King, that was shown by Dr. George Z. Jackson, whose excellent horsemanship had something to do with the result.

Tichenor & Co. showed an extra fine going gig horse in the afternoon in the roan gelding, Jay Bird, that comes from the trotting family of that name, nearly all of the members being roans. On Monday evening Jay Bird was one of a pair driven tandem that did good work, and yesterday he showed his class as a gig horse by taking the blue ribbon in an event for steppers of that sort. Pretty much all the really high class gig horses are trotting bred, and not a few of them have fast records made in races. One of this class is Rensselaer Wilkes, 2:11½, that is booked to parade this afternoon against Mr. Vanderbilt's Herald, Mr. Jordan's Lord Burleigh, and Walter Dupee's Harmony. Another Chicago nag entered in this class is Mr. Meeker's Gay Lord Quex, and if none of the cracks declines the issue this ring is likely to be one of the best of the week.

AWARDS OF THE SECOND DAY.

Judges Pass on Trotters, Harness Ponies, and the Entries in Many Other Classes.

The horse show judges yesterday passed on many more classes, competition being so keen as to require much deliberation. The prizes of the second day were as follows:

AFTERNOON AWARDS.

Trotters [breeding classes, judged by color, conformation, and way of going]—Dr. C. Cann's Glenbrook, first; L. C. Kinney's Norval King, second; Mrs. H. J. Krum's Marconi, third.

Harness ponies [pair not exceeding forty-eight inches high]—T. S. Simpson's Squirrel and Boss, first; Charles E. Bunn's Giroffe and Giroffa, second; Charles E. Bunn's Grandee and Abelard, third.

Gaited saddle horses [mare of gelding owned and used for private work, by resident of Chicago or suburbs]—A. A. Wilson's Artist King, first; Miss Dorothy Felton's Rex, second; J. Fred Butler's Sultana, third.

Harness horses [over fifteen hands and not exceeding 15 hands 3 inches, suitable for road work to a gig or dog cart]—M. H. Tichenor & Co.'s Jay Bird, first; Crow & Murray's Show Girl, second; Ira A. Morris' Lord Algy, third.

Saddle ponies [Shetland, not exceeding forty-six inches, ridden by boy or girl not more than 12 years old]—Master John R. Thompson's Sampson, first; Whitcomb & Bergan's Lester Reiff, second; T. S. Simpson's Boss, third.

Harness horses [shown before semi-mail, spider phaeton, or stanhope phaeton, for park use; must be property of the exhibiter and driven by amateur; not open to dealers]—Eben D. Jordan's Lord Belfast and Lord Burleigh, driven by Mr. Jordan, first; J. Hobart Moore's Burlingham and Squire of Geneva, driven by Mr. Moore, second.

Green hunters [middleweight up to carrying 165 to 190 pounds to hounds]—George Pepper & Co.'s Eclipse, ridden by Peter Roache, first; Crow & Murray's Cloth of Gold, ridden by Hugh Wilson, second; Crow & Murray's Eg Nosco, ridden by Hugh Wilson, third.

EVENING AWARDS.

Roadsters, standard or nonstandard trotters, pair of horses and best appointed road rig—Miss K. L. Wilkes' Rhea W. and Easter Belle, first; Wall & Gahn's Amos B. and Glenbrook, second.

Gaited saddle horses [must show five distinct gaits, walk, trot, rack, canter, and running walk, fox trot, or slow pace], gaited stallion—Tom Bass' Highland King, first; A. N. Garnett's Rex Chief, second; Ball Bros.' Highland Eagle, third.

Harness horses [15 hands, 2 inches or over, suitable for team work, shown before a brougham]—James H. Moore's Joseph, first; Reginald Vanderbilt's Dr. Selwonk, second; Arthur Meeker's Foxy Quiller, third.

Harness horse [park horse over 14 hands 1 inch and not exceeding 16 hands 1 inch, shown before a T cart, phaeton, or similar vehicle]—Eben D. Jordan's Kitty Gray and The Baron, first; James H. Moore's His Highness and Royal Victor II., second; Reginald Vanderbilt's Fad and Fancy, driven by Mr. Vanderbilt, third.

Hunters [for the best exhibit from any recognized hunt, shown over the jumps]—Warrenton Hunt club, first; W. D. Benner on Nakomis, F. A. B. Portman on Gertrude, T. L. Evans on La Touraine, R. Wallach on The Flicker, J. S. Gaines on Virginia, Charles Hooff on The Lark, Sidney Holloway on Free Lance, Ben Randolph on St. Peter, Onwentsia Hunt club, second; W. Vernon Booth on Sky Lark, Mrs. Preston Gibson on Saranac, Miss Mabel B. Lord on Lightfoot, J. P. Lord on Gray Eagle, Frederick McLaughlin on His Grace, John H. Pirie Jr. on Tom Boy, Charles Hill on Hunter Rye. Toronto Hunt club, third; James Murray on Montrose, Hugh Wilson on Cloth of Gold, William Wilson on Sivola.

Four in hands [road team]—M. H. Tichenor & Co.'s Jay Bird, Oconomowoc, Midnight, and Gray Light, first; James H. Moore's Snowflake, Diana, Surprise, and King John, second; George Pepper & Co.'s Daisy Dean, Wiry Jim, Chocolate, and Gray Friar, third.

Green hunters [heavyweight up to carrying 190 pounds, to hounds]—Crow & Murray's Montrose, ridden by Hugh Wilson, first; Crow & Murray's Siberia, ridden by Hugh Wilson, second; Crow & Murray's Sweet Brier, ridden by William Wilson, third.

Jumping class [high jump, open to all, bars for trial placed at 4 feet and 6 inches and raised 3 inches at a time until won]—E. H. Weatherbie's Pearl, ridden by P. Roach, first, 6 feet 9 inches; Crow & Murray's Timber Topper, ridden by Hugh Wilson, second; Crow & Murray's Coquette, ridden by Hugh Wilson, third.

STEAMER MASSACHUSETTS IS WRECKED IN THE BAHAMAS.

Transport Liner Is Resting Easily and Rumor Is Circulated at New Orleans That Crew Was Picked Up at Sea.

Nassau, N. P., Oct. 25.—The Atlantic Transport line steamer Massachusetts, from Cardiff for New Orleans, stranded off Abaco, Bahama islands, on Oct. 16. It is resting easy. No loss of lives is reported.

Rumor Crew Is Picked Up.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 25.—A rumor was in circulation here today that the crew of the Massachusetts of the Atlantic Transport line were picked up at sea after their vessel had been wrecked.

INQUEST JURY FREES HUSBAND.

Finds Jacob Schilling Not Responsible for Death of Wife—Woman Accused of Shooting Spouse.

A coroner's jury yesterday afternoon decided that Mrs. Alfretta Schilling died from natural causes, and ordered that her husband, Jacob Schilling, be released. Schilling had been arrested in the morning because of apparently mysterious circumstances. His wife, who was 53 years old, was found dead in bed by the husband.

Henry Roberts, 52 years old, and his wife quarreled at their home, 4425 Armour avenue, and the man was shot and probably fatally injured.

The woman attempted to escape, but was detained, disarmed, and locked in a room by R. J. Robinson, a neighbor, who later took her to the police station.

INFANT HURLED FROM TRAIN.

Child Born in Coach Near Winona Meets Death—Girl Mother May Face Murder Charge.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Having given birth to a child in the dressing room of a Chicago and Northwestern passenger station, Laura Marvin of this city either by accident or design let it fall from the car to the track.

Then she staggered back into the coach and fell unconscious into a seat. A couch was arranged hastily and women on the train cared for the patient until she arrived here.

She is now at a hotel in this city and may live. The body of the child was recovered. The young woman may be arrested for murder.

DISMISSED CAPTAIN IN FAVOR.

Robert M. Hitch, Convicted in Connection with Lynching, Honored by Militia Company.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 25.—Former Capt. Robert M. Hitch, who has been dismissed from the military service upon the recommendation of the court martial that tried him for failure to prevent the mob at Statesboro from securing and lynching the negro prisoners, Cato and Reed, tonight was elected an honorary member of the Oglethorpe light infantry, the company that Capt. Hitch commanded.

FOOTBALL AT MADISON.

Wisconsin-Michigan Game, Saturday, Oct. 29,

Via the Chicago and Northwestern Ry. $5.25 round trip, good on regular train with parlor car accommodations, leaving Chicago 9:00 a. m., Oct. 29. Return limit, Oct. 31. Ticket offices, 212 Clark street and Wells Street Station. (Tel. Cent. 721.)

RIP VAN WINKLE IN CITY COUNCIL.

It Is Committee on Harbors, Which Awakes for First Time in Two Years.

VOTES ON WINDING BASIN.

Finds Buildings Standing Where It Has Pending Permits to Fill Slips.

By next spring the federal government expects to have a basin in the south branch of the Chicago river, in which the largest boats which enter the harbor can be turned around. The council committee on harbors, viaducts, and bridges woke up long enough to pave the way for it yesterday. At the request of Engineer G. A. M. Liljencrants of the war department the committee voted to recommend the vacation of Lever, Water, and Post streets, located on the ground to be excavated.

The ground in question, comprising three blocks and about seven acres, is a triangle between the south and west forks of the south branch, and two sides of it are formed by them. The government has purchased the property and this winter will excavate it to form the basin.

First Meeting for Two Years.

It was the first meeting of the committee for two years and it determined to clean up what other work was before it. It took up an application of the Dupont Powder company, made July 7, 1902, to fill in a slip north of Twenty-second street, and Ald. Preib informed his colleagues the work had been done for more than a year and buildings stood where there was once water.

Then the committee started to consider a request of the Columbia Yacht club for the use of the dock at the foot of Randolph street, and found the club had been using the dock since that date without permission. Other matters referred to the committee had been forgotten by the applicants or they had gone elsewhere for relief, and finally Ald. Wendling remarked:

"We seem to be a lot of Rip Van Winkles. We might as well go to sleep again."

Inspectors Fail to See Houses.

Arnold T. Tripp and John Donahoe, inspectors in the water office, were relieved from duty. Their eyesight was so poor they could not see thirty-six houses, all located in one block, and Chief Harkins thinks the department can get along without them.

They were sent out to Homan avenue to report on a plea of the property owners between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets that the block was now paying more than 10 per cent on the cost of installing water mains and consequently they should be reimbursed for the money advanced for installing the pipes. The inspectors came back and reported: "Not a house in the street."

Then William A. Johnson and Lawrence Newby, two other inspectors, were sent and they reported thirty-six houses paying $180 a year water tax, or 20 per cent on 900 feet of pipe, and the first two were suspended. The charge is that they thought Homan avenue was located at the Worth racetrack.

Bill Sent to Booth & Co.

A. Booth & Co., Lake and State streets, are accused by the water department of using city water by mistake without paying for it. In consequence Assessor John J. Harkins has recommended that a bill be sent for $320 in addition to what has already been paid by the company between Oct. 28, 1901, and July 7, 1904.

Last May the department discovered that the Booth building was partly supplied with water through an inch and a quarter pipe which had no connection with the meter. The firm was notified and on July 7 the pipe was connected with the meter.

Assessor Harkins calculated that as much water had come through this pipe as through the meter, and, as the latter was installed Oct. 28, 1901, advised that the bills of the firm from that date to the time the pipe was shut off be duplicated.

Municipal Notes.

The Appellate court decided in the case of Charles B. Singer against the city that an overassessment in a special assessment case could be recovered in an action of debt, instead of waiting for the slow process of the rebate system. Mr. Singer sued for $700 overcharge in an assessment for paving Thirty-eighth place.

Ald. Ahlring announces that the vexed question of a rendering plant district will be taken up again at a meeting of the subcommittee of the judiciary committee to be held Monday afternoon.

LABOR OF BISHOPS ENDS.

EPISCOPAL CONFERENCE UPHOLDS SANCTITY OF MARRIAGE.

Pastoral Letter Makes Strong Plea for the Preservation of Family Life and Urges That Action Be Taken by the Church on the Labor and Race Problems—Action Relative to Special Forms of Worship Postponed for Three Years.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The presentation of the pastoral letter upholding the sanctity of marriage and voicing an appeal for the preservation of the family was the principal feature of the closing session of the Episcopal conference today.

The letter was read by Bishop Potter of New York. After pointing out the necessity of supporting missions in Japan, China, and other oriental districts, the letter continued:

"It is a question which we, in this republic, may wisely consider, whether, with greater freedoms, we have always won a greater purity or righteousness.

Family Basis of Social Order.

"At the basis of our social order is the family; and while we are fond of railing at our oriental brethren for their polygamic constitution of that institution, it is worth while to ask ourselves the question whether the laws of this land are not in danger of bringing in, though by quite another road, a worse evil.

"The facility with which the marriage relation may be taken and put off is one of the menaces of our American civilization, to the possible perils of which Christian people are, as yet, imperfectly roused."

Labor Question One of Caste.

After urging that the sabbath day be held sacred "from secular or frivolous intrusion," the letter takes up the labor and race questions.

Of the first the pastoral declares that "whatever labor organizations have accomplished they have mainly moved along lines which are the glory of our democratic institutions. However otherwise we may classify human society, that classification is universal which divides it into those who believe in the spirit of caste and those who do not.

"Journey where you will, the peoples that are in the thickest darkness today are those in which most absolutely the spirit of caste rules; and if our fathers came to these shores to escape from the domination of that rule, whether it expressed itself in civil or in ecclesiastical tyrannies, shall we resent it if, at last, the workingman has caught something of the same spirit and seeks to apply it to the constitution of that great industrial organism which is the most apt image of the modern state?"

Cannot Ignore Race Problem.

Touching the race problem the letter, after referring to the appointment of a joint commission to investigate the question, says:

"If by giving them (the negroes) freedom we have only given them the power to work mischief; and if lynching has come to be defended as a necessary protection to families, then, surely, we are face to face with a situation at once desperate and dishonoring. We may not ignore it; we cannot disown it. It is a part of our social situation, and if the church can have nothing to say about it then she simply disowns her duty and her Master."

Closing Services Improving.

The closing services in Trinity church attracted an immense crowd, which a score of policemen found it difficult to control. There was an imposing procession into the church of bishops and officers of both houses with the clergy and choir of Trinity church. Forty-six bishops were in line, led by the junior members of that house, and Bishop Coadjutor Osborne of Springfield and Bishop Coadjutor Greerer of New York. The opening office of the brief service was taken by the Rev. Dr. R. H. McKim, president of the house of deputies, and it closed with a benediction by Presiding Bishop Tuttle of Missouri.

Huntington Amendment Goes Over.

There was a vigorous debate over the famous Huntington amendment permitting special forms of worship for congregations other than English in which charges of "railroading" the measure through were made. The matter was put to a vote, however, and carried, but later it appeared that in the lay order there was no quorum of dioceses. The vote being illegal, the matter went over for another three years.

The proposition of dividing the country into ecclesiastical provinces was also laid over for three years.

The bishops spent much of their time today naming committees and commissions and passing resolutions of thanks to Boston Episcopalians and people for their magnificent entertainment of the convention. The next convention will be held at Richmond, Va., in 1907.

TO VISIT WHITE HOUSE.

MR. MORLEY TO BE ENTERTAINED BY THE PRESIDENT.

English Statesman and Author Discusses English Tariff Bills and Says if Passed They Will Be Favorable to American Institutions—Pays High Tribute to Nation's Executive, Whom He Esteems as Author and Statesman of Ability.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—John Morley, English statesman and man of letters, who arrived from Europe Monday, will be entertained by the president at the White house on Nov. 9. Both Morley and Roosevelt have written lives of Oliver Cromwell and for several years they had extensive correspondence.

Morley said he had not been visited on his departure by a delegation who praised him for his efforts in behalf of free trade.

Morley Opposes Tariffs.

"If my country," said he, "accepts the tariff proposals now before it, no one will be better pleased than the American protectionists. I opposed these proposed tariffs. As a liberal I am much interested in American institutions and have a great admiration for them. I have for the president a high regard. He is a man of letters, who is not thereby unfitted for practical affairs of state."

England Interested in Canal.

Morley listened with much interest to the latest news from Panama. "As to the manner in which the territory for the canal was acquired," said he, "I heard little in England. The English nation is interested as a maritime power in the development of all great waterways.

"I am certain I shall find something to interest me every minute I am here," continued Mr. Morley. "I was here once before, thirty-five years ago. I am sorry it was so long. I have lived my life since then, and I shall find a completely new country."

Will Not Write a Book.

"O, no, I am not going to write any book on what I see in America," was his reply to a question. "I'm not going to write you up or down. I am not so presumptuous as to write a book on a month's stay. It is true, others have done it."

"Will you speak on political conditions in this country?"

"How can I do it? I will say I have the heartiest admiration for American institutions, as every liberal has. The two nations are coming together more and more in a hearty, progressive spirit."

With President After Election.

Morley was reminded that he would be with the president the day after the election.

"I shall congratulate him or condole with him, as the event may turn out," said Morley in his first flash of humor.

The great statesman then by way of compliment to his interviewer said:

"I have been a journalist myself for a long time, although not quite in your line. I don't think in England we carry journalism to such perfection as you."

MAN FALLS FROM TRAIN: CRAWLS HOURS FOR AID.

R. C. Van Dalsen of Chippewa Falls, Wis., Has Frightful Experience and His Death Is Likely to Result.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—R. C. Van Dalsen was brought to this city today suffering from severe bruises and a dislocated knee which he received by falling off a train. Van Dalsen passed through a shocking experience in an attempt to secure assistance after the accident, and crawled half a mile in seven hours to a farmhouse.

Van Dalsen left here last night on a freight train intending to visit friends in the country. The train was going slow and he tried to jump off, but in doing so fell between the ties of the bridge and dislocated his knee and was severely bruised.

He was so injured that he could not walk and so weak that he could barely move. He saw the light of a farmhouse in the distance and began to crawl toward it. Every move he made caused unbearable pain, but he kept on, and after seven hours managed to cover the half mile.

He tried to rouse the farmer, but could get no response. He then crawled to a barn, where he was found unconscious this morning. He was removed to the hospital, where he lies in a critical state.

AIRSHIP FLIGHT ENDS IN SUCCESS.

Attempt with Baldwin Machine at World's Fair Proves It Is Steerable.

FLIES OVER FAIRGROUNDS

Under Complete Control Until Motor Goes Wrong but Answers to Tiller.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—An airship was sailed successfully today from the world's fair grounds to Cahokia, Ill., across the Mississippi river.

The flight consumed an hour's time and during fifteen minutes it responded to its propellers and flew in any direction desired by the man who operated it.

After the first fifteen minutes the airship was steerable, but the motors had stopped owing to a mishap to the engines.

This dirigible balloon is the invention of Thomas S. Baldwin of California, and during its flight was operated by A. Ray Knabenshue of Toledo, O.

The flight was unannounced and was made while the wind was blowing at the rate of ten miles an hour.

Knabenshue Tells of Flight.

Operator Knabenshue, after his flight across the river, told the story of the journey, the first ever made in an airship in the United States.

"I consider the flight of the airship as made by me today from the aeronautic concourse at the Louisiana Purchase exposition to a point in Illinois, over ten miles away, said the operator, a thorough test of the merits of the machine and a complete demonstration of the fact that aerial navigation has passed from the bounds of the possible and the probable to the realms of accepted scientific fact.

Control Not All Perfect.

"It is true that at the time the airship left the transportation building and during the remainder of the flight, the gasoline engine of the apparatus was not working, and from that fact the control I had over the steering apparatus was not as great as it should have been; and was not as great as it was during the early portion of the voyage when I exercised complete control over every movement of the vessel.

"As I sailed in a great letter 'S' out over the fair grounds and around the administration building to the transportation building my engine went dead.

"From that point of the voyage I must acknowledge that I and the machine were at the mercy of the ten mile breeze in which we had become embraced, and until the landing was safely made over in Illinois a higher power than mere machinery stood between me and destruction.

Believed Machine Good.

"Although I had not been connected directly with Mr. Baldwin's plan for his airship I had taken great interest in the progress of his machine. I have been connected with work in the aeronautic concourse ever since the opening of the exposition and was well acquainted with the details of construction of all ships which have been planned there and which were intended for entry in the grand prize contest.

"As far as the machine in which the trial was made today is concerned I was absolutely certain the secret of aerial navigation had been solved and I prepared for the trip with all assurance.

"We had planned for a short trial trip in the morning, but a feature of the mechanism became deranged and the start was postponed till afternoon. By 1:30 o'clock everything was in readiness for the start on the first trip of a dirigible airship in the United States.

"Unsaved by any fear that I should never return to earth in safety I took my seat upon the 4x4 inch plank which serves as seat for the operator in the experimental vessel which Mr. Baldwin has brought into being. The engine apparently was in good working order, and with all the weather conditions as favorable as could be desired for a test I felt confident I was about to participate in one of the greatest modern instances of the development and achievements of science.

Sand Ballast Was Carried.

"Ten bags of sand to be used as ballast were embarked in the machine. These were to be used in preserving the equilibrium of the vessel and in case any accident befell the steering apparatus. It was just 1:52 when the word was given which cleared away the ropes which held the straining cone of silk inclosed gas to earth, and as the engine began pumping away I swept up from earth at an angle, as near as I could judge, of about sixty degrees. The gas bag soared into the ascending air current the instant the tethering ropes were released, and before I had scarcely realized the journey was begun and the vessel was pointed for the aerodrome.

"By sharp manipulation of the steering ropes the tiller was brought into immediate action, and I grazed the edge of the aerodrome, and then, with another movement of the tiller, I had cleared the high fence and was pointing the way skyward.

Ship Minds Its Propellers.

"When an elevation of perhaps 300 feet had been attained, I changed the direction of the ship, and, under complete control of the steering gear and propellers, kept in motion by the engine, I brought the machine into its normal horizontal position and headed it directly against the wind, with the intention of completing the circuit over the exposition grounds with the Ferris wheel as a center, and returning after a short voyage to the starting point, which plan, beyond all question, would have been accomplished without difficulty had not unforeseen circumstances suddenly arisen.

"At the time I assumed complete control of the airship the direction was almost south. By manipulation of the tiller I turned the prow to the left, and as I passed the south end of the Administration building I was moving slowly and gracefully straight east and without any fear of danger or failure.

Hangs Over Brazil Building.

"Passing over the foreign buildings I aimed for a northeasterly direction and completed the arc. This direction was maintained until I reached the high dome of the Brazil building. Here I noted that the long anchor rope which dangled 100 feet below would probably catch the top of that building, so the course was deflected slightly toward the southeast, and I passed this in safety, at the same time rising slightly higher in altitude.

"My plan was then to veer to the southeast, completing the balance of the figure of a huge letter 'S,' and then to wind in great circles over the main buildings of the exposition and back to the aeronautic concourse. Again the huge machine responded readily to the mechanism, and my plan was fully realized. At this stage the propeller was the only reliance I had, as the current of atmosphere which I encountered in tacking was directly opposed to the success of the feat.

Sees Crowds Out to Look.

"Nevertheless the change of direction was accomplished without difficulty and the completion of the quarter circle came just over the west end of the palace of transportation. Here I took a moment to gaze down on the throngs which seemed to surge from every one of the great exhibit buildings, and I understood they were standing in open mouthed wonderment at the first practical test of sailing through the atmosphere which had been accomplished in America.

"Slowly and safely I was moving diagonally across the great transportation building and had almost reached the plaza of St. Anthony between the transportation and varied industry plazas, at a height of probably 600 feet.

Gasoline Engine Goes "Dead."

"Suddenly there was a 'pop' of the gasoline engine followed by a slow hiss of expiring respiration and I knew the gasoline engine had 'gone dead' on me. I instantly endeavored to reach the engine in an effort to bring it back to life, but the spark of life had been extinguished and it was impossible to climb through the frail framework structure and ignite the burner, and I was left at the mercy of my tiller, which is manipulated with the greatest difficulty without the assistance of machinery propelled by the engine.

First Touch of Fear.

"For the first time during the voyage I experienced a sensation of fear, and my first impulse was to depend for safety upon the gas bags whose ropes were at my hand and upon the supply of ballast on board. Throwing over two bags of sand, the machine at once responded to the loss of weight and darted into the air higher and higher till the domes and pinnacles of the exposition buildings became a conglomerate mass and the tens of thousands of spectators hardly discernible.

"I knew that Forest park with its wilderness of trees lay dead ahead of me, and I did not care to risk descent in so dangerous a place.

"When the upward motion ceased the balloon entered a current of air which I estimated to be moving at ten miles an hour in a southwardly direction. Glancing downward, I saw the exposition slipping away beneath me, and all hopes of regaining the starting point left me. Looking eastward for a spot to land I saw a clear place which seemed to offer the desired opportunity. On a nearer approach I saw that most of the clearing was occupied by a body of water, which I afterward learned was the Compton hill reservoir.

Decides to Cross the River.

"With another thrill of danger I noted the supply of gas was slowly diminishing and I decided to abandon all effort to land on this side of the river. I threw over six bags of ballast and the balloon shot up till it was a mile above the smokestacks. Still the current of air was brisk and uniform, and the voyage settled itself into a baloon trip against time, the supply of gas being matched against the distance between me and the Illinois shore.

"At a moderate speed the trip continued. Manipulating the tiller as best I could without the aid of the motor and engine, I was able to control the course of my flight to a certain extent, and when, as happened at intervals, a cross current struck the balloon, I whirled the tiller around and kept on my chosen course, a bit south of east.

"So I passed over the city and crossed the great river. As I saw it glistening below me with a superb view of the Eads bridge to the north I knew a landing would be made in safety. As soon as the Illinois shore loomed below me I prepared to come down. Gently I pulled at the ropes to release the gas, and as the fields and fences in Illinois ran beneath me the prow of the machine pointed to the earth and the downward movement began.

Seeks Good Place to Alight.

"For two or three miles after crossing the river no safe landing place presented itself. But presently I was gladdened by the sight of plowed ground. The airship was now but a few hundred feet from the ground, and at the proper moment I gave the cords a yank, the gas escaped with a hiss, and the gas bag, engine, and all sank gently to the earth.

"Into a huge shock of corn just in the center of the field, the airship shoved its pointed nose, the substructure dragged its framework on the rough ground, I leaped from the seat, and the first voyage of a dirigible air vessel in America was at an end.

"Successful. Of coure it was successful in the fullest sense of the word.

"At every stage of the voyage previous to the unfortunate accident to the engine the mechanism was absolutely under my control.

"Currents and cross currents were safely navigated, and there is every evidence that the dream of science for a generation has at last been realized."

Thousands Watch the Flight.

It was not long after the airship went up before thousands of persons in the fair grounds noticed it, and then as it dodged about overhead and finally soared off to the east it was followed by continuous cheering.

Clinging to the frame work of the car, his precarious foothold an iron tube that forms one side of the base of the triangular network of supports and ribs of the airship's body, Knabenshue directed the movements of his flying machine and maneuvered in circles and against the wind high over the monster exhibit palaces of the exposition, before the accident to his motor which rendered the big fanlike propellers useless and curtailed his command of the airship.

The trip from the starting point to the main part of the exposition grounds was at first unnoticed by the thousands of visitors that thronged the exposition. In this manner the appearance of the airship several hundred feet in the air, sailing over the transportation building, came as a surprise to the hundreds of sightseers, but within ten minutes of its discovery thousands were watching with breathless interest as Knabenshue, who was plainly discernible, caused the flying machine to turn this way and that at his will.

Slowly the airship turned and, bresting the wind, made progress in the direction from which it had come. Again did the big cigar shaped balloon turn at the command of the daring man at its helm, and once more it soared above the exposition buildings on its way to the Cascades, where hundreds of cheering spectators marked its flight from the Plaza St. Louis.

In attempting to make the second turn the accident to the motor occurred, but almost instantly Knabenshue gained control of the machine and steered a straight course, a little east of southeast.

Flies Over the City.

Passing rapidly eastward, The Arrow, the name Baldwin has given his airship, reached the downtown district, where its appearance was the signal for the greatest excitement. Clerks deserted their desks, street cars were stopped, and practically all business was suspended while the airship passed over the city.

From its movements the spectators could not determine whether the propellors were working, as the big ship seemed to respond to every demand made by its navigator and to change its course at will, not at the vagaries of the wind.

Although then nearly a mile high Knabenshue could be seen, occasionally moving backward and forward on his dangerous standing place, keeping his ship under control and directing its movements either upward or downward as he desired.

From the Missouri side he passed to the Illinois side of the Mississippi river, and having completed his self-imposed task he headed toward Cahokia and brought his airship to the ground about half a mile from that little hamlet.

Farmers Pursue on Wagons.

While the appearance of the airship in St. Louis created excitement, the sight of a swiftly moving flying machine headed toward their town, caused a furor among the inhabitants of Cahokia and the surrounding farms. Horses were hastily harnessed and within a few minutes the roads were filled with persons hastening along in the wake of the airship, which by this time was unmistakably heading toward the ground.

When within about ten feet of the earth Knabenshue threw out his grapple and one of the hooks caught in a large tree standing on the edge of a clearing and the large body settled slowly to the ground, resting lightly upon its framework.

Knabenshue alighted and secured the airship to prevent injury from the wind and then hurried to put himself in communication with Mr. Baldwin, who had remained at the world's fair grounds, and assure him that The Arrow was uninjured except for the minor breakage of the motor.

Airship Built in California.

The airship was constructed under the personal supervision of Capt. Baldwin in California, and differs in many features from ships constructed in the past, and upon the improvement Capt. Baldwin places his hopes of winning the $100,000 prize at the fair.

The gas balloon is cigar shaped, of Japanese silk, fifty-four feet in length and seventeen feet in diameter, and requires 8,000 cubic feet of gas to inflate it. The frame attachment is thirty feet in length.

It carries a double cylinder, seven horse power gasoline engine, making 2,000 revolutions a minute, to drive the propellers. One of the chief new features of the machine is an arrangement whereby the ship is pulled through the air, instead of being pushed.

Today's flight was not a trial for the world's fair $100,000 prize, Capt. Baldwin stated. He said it was simply to convince the residents of St. Louis and the world's fair visitors that he had an airship that could fly.

Inventor Is Satisfied.

"There was evidently an accident to the motor," said Baldwin. "When the flight over the world's fair grounds was about half completed I noticed that the propellers had stopped revolving, but Knabenshue still had a certain amount of control over the airship and could direct his course, although it was impossible for him to make headway against the wind without the full power of the propellers.

"Today's trial was simply to assure the world's fair visitors that my claims of making a flight were made in good faith, and I am satisfied with the result, as the airship, to a certain extent, was controlled by the rudder, even though the motor was not in use."

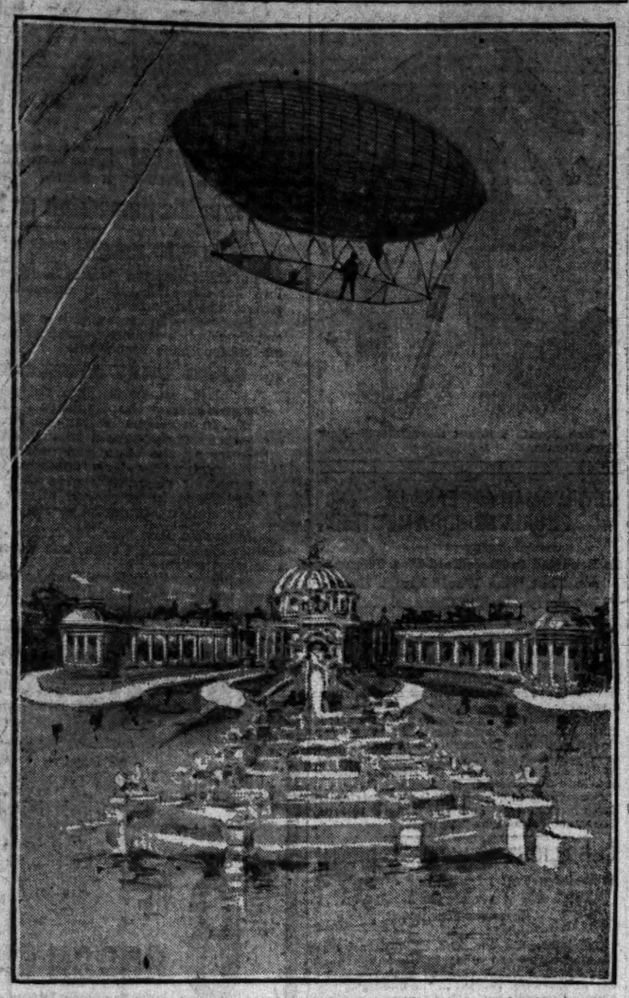

Owner Will Go Up Soon.

Mr. Baldwin said that Knabenshue had made the trial ascent today instead of himself because of the former's lighter weight.

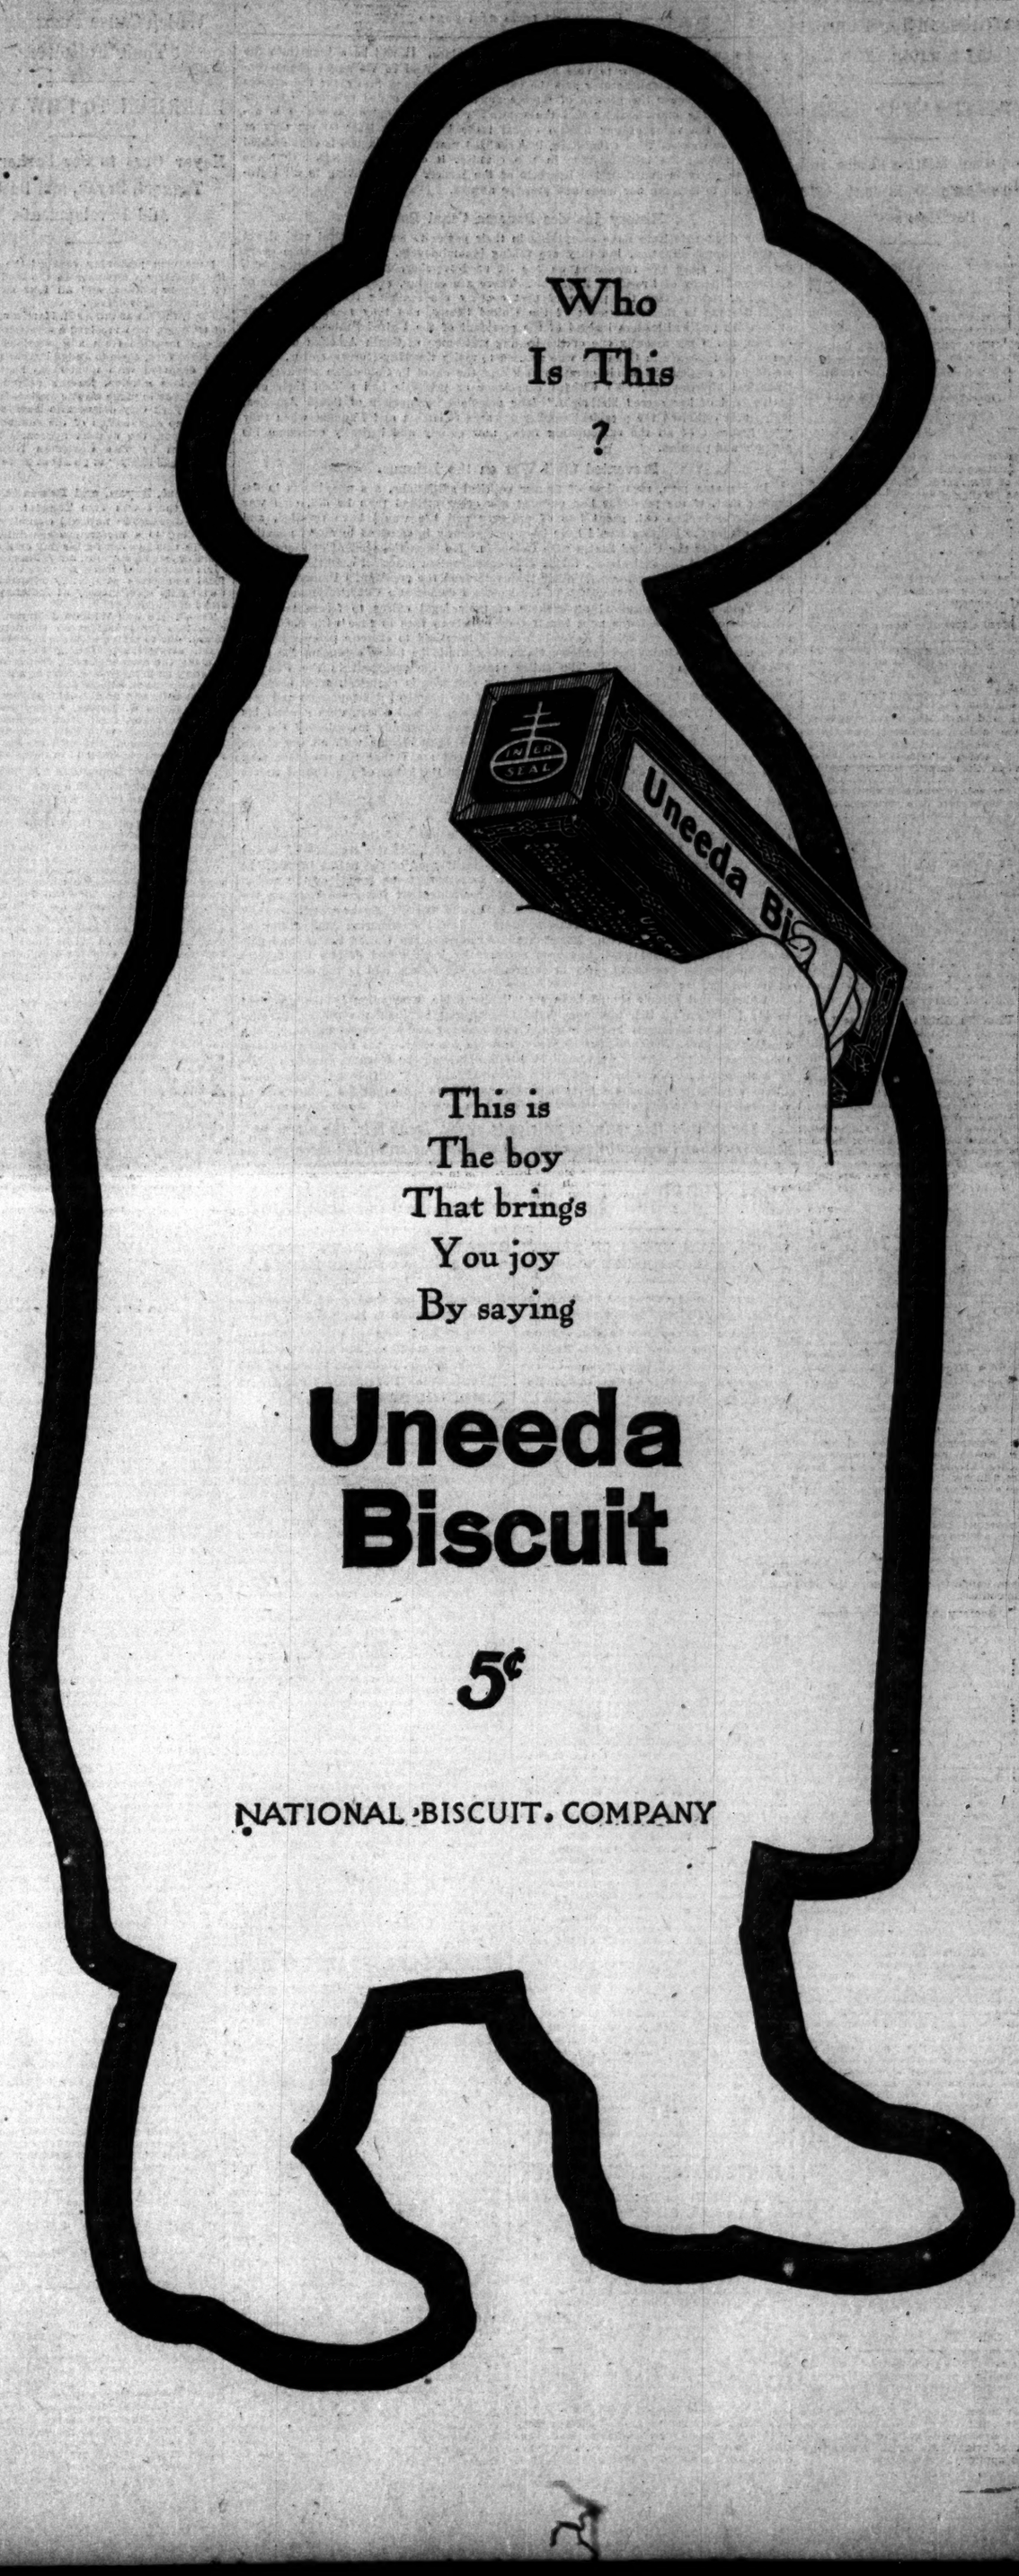

"But I'll go up myself in a few days," added Mr. Baldwin, "and I'll show you something startling in demonstration of aerial navigation and maneuvering."

The "Arrow," Baldwin claims, is the lightest aerial craft yet designed, the combined weight being between 300 and 400 pounds. He states that the accident to the motor was caused by the chain which operates the two propellers slipping from the wheel, caused by the speed of the motor.

Airship That Sailed Over World's Fair and Business Section of St. Louis.

The first successful airship flight was made at the world's fair yesterday by the steerable balloon of Inventor Baldwin of California, which was operated by Roy Knabenshue of Toledo, O. For fifteen minutes the airship was under control of its propellers, and then the motor broke down. The airship still responded to its steering gear, however and the operator at all times had it under control. The flight was continued after the motors stopped, and the airship was steered to an open space on the Illinois side of the Mississippi river, where Knabenshue landed it without a jolt or a jar. The flight was not an official test, but was made, so the inventor says, to demonstrate that his machine would fly and could be moved in any desired direction.

DENEEN MAKES FIVE SPEECHES.

Addresses Big Tent Meeting on West Side After Tour of Evanston.

HEARD WITH ENTHUSIASM

Series of Geer Rallies Begun in the First Congressional District.

More than 2,000 persons waited nearly three hours last night in a tent at California avenue and Harrison street for Charles S. Deneen to address them. Chairman Gall E. Deming controlled their restlessness by introducing two out of town speakers and several county candidates.

When the candidate for governor appeared after speaking at four meetings in Evanston it was several minutes before the applause died down enough so he could be heard.

"I do not feel that there is any need of speaking to you," he began, "because I think I already have your votes, but I want to tell you of a few vital issues of this campaign.

"The republican party is on trial. It is a contest of the party of words against the party of deeds. What do the democrats stand for? Words, words, and more words. There is not a democrat who can come within a hundred years of his platform, is there?"

Lifts Small Boy to Platform.

"Not on your life," cried a small boy who was sitting on the ground in front of the platform. During the laugh that followed the candidate lifted the boy to the chair beside him and exhibited him as an honor to young America.

In discussing the question of imperialism the speaker propounded a new golden rule of politics.

"Give to others the same rights you would have accorded to yourself," he said. "When our institutions have fitted the Philippines so that all will consent that all should have the same rights, then they will be fit to govern themselves, and not before.

"We are pledged in this state," he continued, "to place two laws upon the statute books, and place them there next winter. They are a state civil service law and a compulsory primary law. Vote for your republican congressman, as that is the only way to have your faith crystallized into action."

Reeves on National Issues.

Former Congressman Walter Reeves of Streator, Ill., made an argument for the republican national ticket. He described Parker's issue of honesty in administration as a mere platitude, and in speaking of economy in government, said:

"This government has expended $2,000,000 in improving the Chicago river. If you wanted it simply to exist and be of no commercial value, you could have saved the government money. The tunnels are not deep enough, and the cost of making the river navigable will be great. Do you want it made so, or do you want the government to be economical? Economy in government is a thing of relative value."

"What followed the Dingley tariff bill?" next inquired the speaker. "Trusts," replied a dissenter in the audience.

Mr. Reeves then took up the subject of President Roosevelt on the labor question and read the titles of the bills, some forty, that Mr. Roosevelt, as member of the New York legislature, governor of New York, and president, had either recommended, signed, or approved.

Other speakers were John T. O'Connell, J. P. Garner, John B. Kops, Commissioner Walker, and F. F. Cook of Galesburg.

Meetings in Evanston.

Earlier in the evening Mr. Deneen had hurried around Evanston, where he addressed meetings in widely separated parts of the suburb. He first spoke at Kommer's hall, Central street, North Evanston, and after a short address left for Lyons' hall in Davis street, and then hurried across the street to Conner's hall, where he made a few remarks to the meeting of the Evanston Colored Republican club. He then hurried to South Evanston, where he spoke at Redfield hall.

In the speeches Mr. Deneen dwelt principally on the dullness of the campaign, drawing the conclusion that the people show satisfaction with the present administration.

Other speakers were John J. Healy, F. D. Meacham, Oscar Hebel, Charles W. Vail, Peter Hoffman, William C. Hartray, J. W. Hill, and J. C. Williams.

Dowie Plans a Welcome.

Mr. Deneen will receive a great welcome at Zion City this morning. When he arrives at 11:30 o'clock he will be met by Dr. Dowie and his cabinet, together with the big brass band of Zion, as well as color bearers and practically every resident of the city. The factories and stores have been ordered closed and every person practically has been commanded to march in the procession, which will proceed from the depot to the Shiloh tabernacle, where the meeting is to be held.

It is to be the first reception of importance to be accorded a political candidate in Zion City.

Tonight Mr. Deneen will speak at the following places:

Tent at Lincoln avenue, Robey street, and Irving Park boulevard.

Phoenix hall, Sedgwick and Division streets.

Wicker Park hall, West North avenue and Milwaukee avenue.

For Geer to Defeat Madden.

"Duty, decency, and democracy" were the three reasons that H. O. Nourse, chairman at the first of a series of Geer meetings, gave for having left the ranks of the democrats to join forces with David S. Geer, independent republican candidate for congress in the First congressional district. The meeting was held at Forum hall, Forty-third street and Calumet avenue, and there was a large attendance.

In repudiating the action taken by the democratic convention nominating John S. Oehmen Mr. Nourse said: "Oehmen is only a stalking horse for Martin B. Madden, and he was never expected to win even by the few who were instrumental in causing his nomination.

Other addresses were delivered by the Rev. Rankin Lloyd Jones, Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Lessing Rosenthal, H. S. Fitch, and the candidate.

Dr. Jones spoke with much sympathy for Madden with all his failings, quoting:

While the lamp holds out to burn
The vilest sinner may return.

"But," he continued, "the house of representatives is not a reform school, and, besides, I am of the opinion that our friend will have ample opportunity to improve in a long term of private life which he so much deserves."

"I thought that two years ago I officiated at the funeral services of Martin Madden," said Dr. Hirsch, "but my views on the resurrection have been shaken by his return to the surface."

Mr. Geer spoke mainly on the issues.

To Discuss Charter Amendment.

At the Forty-first informal dinner of the real estate board at the Great Northern hotel tomorrow evening a notable feature will be the discussion of the "Charter Amendment in the State," by the gubernatorial candidates, Charles S. Deneen and Lawrence B. Stringer. This will serve as a prelude to the general discussion of the evening, which will be on the subject of "Subways," the speakers being Marvin A. Farr, Ald. Milton J. Foreman, and William W. Gurley.

Boy Shot by His Own Mother.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 25.—John Connolly, aged 15 years, died today of gunshot wounds, said to have been inflicted by his mother. The boy was a somnambulist and was groping about the house early Sunday morning, when he was shot for a burglar.

of wages and the output of factories, shops, and mines. It will be a jump into the dark for the laboring man to vote against Roosevelt. And so we might argue convincingly that the manufacturer and the capitalist must stand firmly for the success of Roosevelt because the growth of foreign markets means added returns to the investment of the manufacturer and the capitalist. The $2,000,000,000 which is approximately the value of our foreign export trade includes at least 60 per cent of the whole as wages. When, therefore, it is realized that $1,200,000,000 is thus divided annually among the laboring men in this country, it can be appreciated that the republican party is guarding the interests of the laborer while striving in all legitimate ways to increase our trade and prestige abroad.

History Justifies Panama Canal Policy.

The democrats have done everything in their power to make political capital out of the Panama situation, but they are failing ignominiously. Why? Because every development since the revolution on the 3d of November, 1903, has justified the action and policy of President Roosevelt. There are coming, even from the heart of Colombia, reports that the people of that country are realizing that they made a great mistake in their treatment of the United States, and they must blame their own selfish political leaders instead of the president of the United States for the loss of Panama. Only recently one of the leading statesmen of South America described the men of influence in Colombia who refused to ratify the Hay-Herran treaty, which would have settled the whole question and kept the canal in Colombian territory, as "political highwaymen, who without conscience or principle had robbed their own native land of her sacred birthright." The principal newspapers of South America, which first criticised the president's policy towards Colombia and Panama when they were ignorant of all the surrounding facts, now calmly and logically commend his attitude and position.

Prevented Civil War on the Isthmus.

In Panama men, regardless of former political affiliations, are unanimous in declaring that, if the president had pursued any other method than he did, civil war would have broken out, great loss of property and life would have resulted, and traffic across the isthmus would have been permanently interrupted in direct negation of the treaty of the United States with Colombia. No impartial student of facts, who has investigated the entire case, taking into consideration practical conditions as well as theoretical conceptions, can do other than commend the president's Panama policy. It is easy enough for the members of the so-called democratic Constitutional club in New York in the theoretical atmosphere of their legal offices to frame technical criticisms of the president's acts, but if they had been face to face with the actual management of the crisis last November, and if they had to execute policies instead of to sit in easy chairs and condemn them, they would be today espousing the president's methods and attitude. The entire record of the president in the Panama affair is open and clear as a book, and if any one who is skeptical, after perusing this record, will simply take a calm, fair view of the practical developments and possibilities on the isthmus and in Colombia at the time, he will admit, even against his will, that the president was right. The more I have personally investigated the situation myself in Panama and the more familiar I have become with all the conditions surrounding the revolution, the more convinced am I that the president took the only course that was open to him consistent with the honor of the United States and with justice to Panama and Colombia alike.

Mightiest Work of Modern Times.

The democratic party would almost seem to be a party of inaction, interference, and hind-sight. It is destructive, not constructive. It holds the sixpence of selfish prejudice so near its eye that it cannot see the great good of the nation beyond. In condemning the president's Panama policy it forgets that the people of the nation at large are praising President Roosevelt and realizing that the great work on the mighty canal which is to connect the Atlantic and the Pacific has been actually begun. In other words, the mightiest commercial and engineering undertaking of modern times, which will bring immeasurable benefits to the United States, and particularly to the central west, has been successfully inaugurated despite the fiercest opposition of the democratic party in congress, on the stump, and in the declarations of its political leaders.

Chicago and Illinois should have a particular pride in standing by the president in his initiation of this new map-making waterway between the oceans, because the work is to be largely in the hands of that eminent and successful engineer, John Findlay Wallace. When in future years, through his efforts, the manufactures and the exports of the central west shall be passing through the Panama canal en route to a thousand new markets, then every democrat who now criticises the president's Panama policy will hang his head in shame and thank God that his vilifications of the president were unavailing among the American people. JOHN BARRETT.

The third in this series of articles is by Mr. Jacob Riis, the warm personal friend of President Roosevelt. It will appear on Friday morning.

KNOX ARRAIGNS PARKER.

CANDIDATE'S VIEWS OF TRUSTS ARE COMBATTED.

Former Attorney General Shows That Utterances of Man from Esopus Relative to Corruption in Republican Ranks Are Based Upon His Experience with the Hill Machine—Cleveland's Arguments on Same Topic Declared Fallacious.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—Senator P. C. Knox, former attorney general under President Roosevelt, issued a strong statement in answer to Mr. Parker's speech on trusts and ex-President Cleveland's remarks on the same topic tonight.

The statement of Parker that the common law affords a complete legal remedy against monopoly and the complaint of Cleveland that Roosevelt "refuses to 'run a muck' in the business interests of the country, were discussed at length and the following pertinent query voiced:

"Is there any connection between Parker's abandonment of his futile common law panacea, which meant immunity to the trusts, and the fact, as he alleges, that the trusts contribute to the success of the republican party?

"Do the principles of law which Mr. Cleveland thought last March protected manufacturing monopolies change in October, and if so, does the change affect the Belmont trusts or only those which are suspected of seeing in the perpetuation of republican administration the continued general prosperity of the country?"

Parker's Arguments Retroactive.

Regarding Parker's charge that the republican methods of conducting campaigns have become "so debased and currupt as to threaten the integrity of our country," Mr. Knox says:

"It is astounding that Mr. Parker should be willing to challenge the comparison which this statement inevitably calls out. When Judge Parker last actively participated in politics off the bench he was chairman of the New York state democratic committee, which elected David B. Hill as governor.

"He was a cog in the Hill machine. There never have been in our political history methods more debasing and corrupt than those of the Hill machine in New York, and they culminated in the steal of the state by the Maynard fraude.

"This was the machine which Mr. Parker ran until, as a reward for running it, he was made a judge by Hill; and these are the methods he deplores."

Secretary Taft Answers Parker.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 25.—Secretary of War William H. Taft, in a speech delivered here tonight, vigorously answered Mr. Parker's speech on the cost of the Philippines.

Secretary Taft asserted that "the statements of fact therein contained are so wide of the truth and the sensational character of his utterances is so unwarranted by any of the conditions in the Philippines that one must conclude that he has been greatly misled."

WANTS WORKERS FOR CHARTER.

Committee Urges Voters to Go to Polls and Aid Campaign for the Amendment.

The new charter campaign committee is seeking volunteers to go to the voting places in Chicago on election day and work for the constitutional amendment. Every voter who is willing to help the chances of getting a new city charter by working at the polls, either the whole or a part of election day, is requested to offer his services. On receipt of this notification the committee will forward to the sender a silk badge and a booklet giving a concise explanation of the objects of the amendment.

Kabo Corsets Get Grand Prize.

A telegram received from St. Louis, Mo., dated Oct. 25, reads as follows: Kabo Corsets, made by Kabo Corset Co., were today given highest award by World's Fair judges.

FAIRBANKS IN MICHIGAN.

SENATOR ENDS DAY'S SPEECH-MAKING AT GRAND RAPIDS.

Makes Plea for Policy of Protective Tariff, Which Is Declared in Interest of Both Capital and Labor—Addresses Made at Adrian, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Lansing, and Ionia—Vice Presidential Candidate Will Visit Illinois Today.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 25.—With an enthusiastic meeting here tonight, Senator Charles W. Fairbanks ended a speechmaking tour today over the southern portion of Michigan. The senator's trip began at Monroe early in the morning, and from that point to Grand Rapids there was no abatement of enthusiasm. Other towns where speeches were made today were Adrian, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Jackson, Lansing, Ionia, Tecumseh, and Manchester.

Tomorrow will be devoted to Illinois, beginning with a speech in the morning at Decatur. Tomorrow night a meeting will be held at Hannibal, Mo.

In his speech here Senator Fairbanks said:

Republican policies give confidence to your capital, enabling it to go forward, planning and building for the future. Capital is enabled to give your wage earners better wages because of its assurance that republican supremacy will not strike down the protective system.

The assault of the democracy upon the protective tariff system is as distinct and violent as ever. Democratic supremacy means to create uncertainty and unrest. It means a menace to the industrial development of Grand Rapids and other industrial centers throughout the country.

We should bear in mind that the protective system cannot keep open all the mills all the time, but it can keep open more of them and for a longer period than the opposing system. The republican party policy cannot maintain the highest wages at the highest rate all of the time, but it can maintain them at a higher rate and through a longer period of time than the opposing system possibly can.

Under republican policy our countrymen engaged in the industries have only to compete with themselves, whereas, under the democratic policy they must compete with themselves and also with others engaged in the same employments in other countries.

PARKER'S ERRORS ARE EXPOSED

Secretary of Treasury L. M. Shaw Shows Fallacy of Democratic Candidate's Arguments Against Tariff.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury L. M. Shaw delivered an address here tonight in which he punctured Alton B. Parker's tariff arguments in no uncertain manner.

Parker's review of the history of the tariff and his conclusion that it should be removed were discussed and the speaker, after presenting an array of facts in refutation of Parker's theory, adds:

"If the distinguished jurist candidate will study history for the sake of arriving at truth instead of searching it to find stray sentences in the utterances of admitted statesmen which will justify the position of his party, he will never be a free trader and he would not have been an advocate of free silver."

Mr. Shaw reminded Parker "that wages in this country have always been much higher under protection than under a tariff for revenue only. He also ought to know the historic facts that the tariff has never been revised by his party and that labor has never gone into the street to beg."

"The distinguished jurist," resumed Mr. Shaw, "is as reckless in his tariff utterances as in his statements concerning the expenses of the Philippine islands, for he even cites the year 1860 and that period generally as being a period of prosperity. I assume that James Buchanan, then president, and a free trader, knew whereof he spoke when he said in his message to congress in 1860 that the monetary interests of the country were in a deplorable condition."

FOUR MYSTERIES BROUGHT BY DAY.

Political Leaders in Roles Which Cause Puzzling by Their Followers.

HARRISON TO NEW YORK.

Mayor Goes to See Parker, and Taggart, Bryan, and Dawes Add Developments.

Four men yesterday essayed the part of the Mysterious Stranger in the Bird Center of Illinois politics, and all four succeeded to a remarkable degree.

First, there was Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago, who received a mysterious telephone message from a mysterious source in New York, close to Judge Parker's elbow, and departed with mysterious haste on a mysterious mission, leaving behind mystified friends to make mystic explanations.

New York City democratic leaders volunteered no explanation of the summoning of the mayor, the nearest approach being a statement by Vice Chairman Nicoll that Parker was likely "to go about more" hereafter.

Taggart, Bryan, and Dawes in Role.

Then there was Tom Taggart, chairman of the democratic national committee, due, according to a mysterious schedule, to arrive in Chicago during the day on a mission more or less mysterious, but failing to arrive, for reasons still more mysterious, leaving local democrats completely mystified, and turning up mysteriously at Indianapolis instead of Chicago.

Then there was William J. Bryan, former candidate for president on the democratic ticket, due to arrive with the aforesaid Taggart, mysteriously failing to arrive, but causing the announcement, deeply buried in mystery as to its source, that he will not aid the campaign in Illinois at all.

Then last, and of different political faith, was Charles G. Dawes, former controller of the currency, fresh from republican national headquarters in New York, and mysteriously unacquainted with the fact that a political campaign was on in that state.

Harrison's Departure a Mystery.

The local political field during the day was no place for an ordinary news reporter. It needed a Delphic oracle or a gypsy fortune teller. A few stray facts looked lonesome in the gloom of mystery.

Mr. Harrison was said to have received a telephone call from Parker's headquarters, William Sheehan being named as the spokesman, which demanded his immediatee presence in New York. This was Sunday night. Mr. Harrison explained he could not miss the council meeting next day. Then he was urged to come on Tuesday. He represented that he was needed in the local campaign, but the pressure over the telephone became so strong that he yielded. He left at noon and Controller McGann will fill his speaking dates in Chicago.

May Make "Bluff" in Illinois.

The mayor two weeks ago had a talk with Parker. A suggestion has been made that the New York headquarters is considering a demonstration in Illinois to cover the work planned for Indiana in the next two weeks. Those who say this declare the democrats do not expect to carry Illinois, but that they can draw republican efforts to the state by "making a bluff" and thus secure a better opening in Indiana.

Harrison democrats became inflated because the chief of democracy should have called on Mayor Harrison and not upon Roger Sullivan, national committeeman for Illinois, or John P. Hopkins, when a western democrat was needed.

Look for Taggart in Vain.

This leads to the second mystery.

Wry did Taggart change his plans the same day that Harrison left for the east? At the democratic state headquarters in the Sherman house Chairman Bosechenstein, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Hopkins, and others looked for Mr. Taggart until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Then they learned he was in Indianapolis.

The party leader was expected to arrive with Bryan, but instead of the latter coming an announcement filtered out that the Nebraskan had decided not to enter Illinois. Tentative plans for his tour of the state had been announced.

While these three Mysterious Strangers had the Democratic Bird Center "agog with excitement," Mr. Dawes, the original republican Mysterious Stranger, appeared at the western headquarters of his party to cast an air of mystery about its environs. Mr. Dawes has been in New York. Mr. Dawes has returned from New York. Mr. Dawes does not know anything about New York.

Girl Stenographers Attacked.

Roosevelt and the girl stenographers in the recorder's office came in for attacks last night at a meeting of Nineteenth ward democrats in the Lessing clubhouse. William Preston Harrison attended to the former, while Judge A. J. Sabath said the latter, in case he was elected, should be turned out in favor of the young men who had worked for the campaign.

"Not that I object," he said, "to women making their own living. If they are supporting a family, if they are widows, it is all right. But if they are using their money to buy fine clothes with they should receive no pay from the county. They should get married. Men could take their places, doing the work as well. If I am elected county recorder their places shall be taken by the boys who have fought through the campaign."

Threatens to "Knife" Harrison.

The way was paved with roses for the candidate for congress in the Eighth. When Harrison appeared late in the evening the earlier speakers had placated the audience.

When Miles Devine declared that every democrat, whatever his personal prejudices, should vote the entire ticket, cries were heard of "All but Harrison."

"We can't stand that," another said, as the speaker began to point out Harrison's good points. "I say, Bill; let's go home."

A number of "bad Indians" left the hall.

Harrison referred to Roosevelt as a war lord, reckless, extravagant, and a "four flusher, who went around with a chip on his shoulder for some nation to knock off."

"Who's going to knock it off?" came a lone voice from the crowd.

Requesting silence, Harrison continued by asking what a carpet bagger was. "Am I a carpet bagger?" he inquired. "Do I live under the sidewalk? Have I no home?"

Amid growing tumult he explained that he had lived twenty-six years on the west side, and that he still was identified with it.

J. Hamilton Lewis Talks.

A democratic meeting under the auspices of Northwestern university's Good Citizenship club, Aleph Teth Nun, was held at St. Mary's hall and addressed by Judge Leroy D. Thoman and J. Hamilton Lewis.

Democratic noonday meetings will begin tomorrow at McVicker's theater, when Samuel Alschuler and former ex-Judge Thomas Moran will speak. The theater has been secured for all open dates until Nov. 3.

CLEVELAND TO SPEAK AGAIN.

Former President So Pleased with His Reception in New York That He Will Talk Just Once More.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Grover Cleveland has accepted an invitation sent by Herman Ridder, president of the German-American Parker union, to make the principal address at a meeting to be held in Cooper union on the night of Nov. 2. Carl Schurz will preside. It is understood that when Mr. Cleveland was asked to break his promise he made to himself to deliver not more than one speech in the campaign he replied that he so appreciated the splendid reception the New Yorkers gave him at the Carnegie hall meeting last Friday night that he would be happy to speak again.

NEW WOMAN APPEARS IN PEORIA MURDER MYSTERY.

Is Reported to Have Told Mrs. Thomasson That "She Would Finish Her"—Formerly Lived in Chicago.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The friends of Mrs. Nellie Thomasson, for whose murder Richard Higgins is now imprisoned, say a Peoria woman is indirectly responsible for her death. The identity of this woman is not disclosed.

It is known that this woman made repeated threats to Mrs. Thomasson that "she would finish her," and to carry out this assertion it is said that she devised all kinds of plans to cause trouble between the Higgins family and Mrs. Thomasson.

The woman in question, it is said, originally lived in Chicago, and was known to Mrs. Thomasson simply as "Maud."

SHED LIGHT ON WOMAN'S DEATH

Witnesses Tell of Finding of Body of Wife of Former Mayor McCue, on Trial for Murder.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 25.—Further testimony introduced today in the trial of former Mayor McCue, charged with the murder of his wife, related to the finding of the body. One witness said the accused on reporting the crime complained of suffering from a wound in the head, such as would be made by a sandbag.

Dr. Frank McCue, a brother of the defendant, was called to the home of the accused about 9:15 on the night of the tragedy. He said his brother said to him that there was some one in the house who had attacked him and probably "had shot Fannie," his wife. He detailed the finding of the body of Mrs. McCue, clad in a night robe, in the bath tub and described the wounds, there being one on the right ear, another on the left side of the nose, and a gunshot wound in the breast. The witness also told of the finding of a gun and a baseball bat in the bathroom, the latter bearing a red stain near the end.

Mr. McCue said on cross examination that the wound on his brother's head was such as would be made by a blunt instrument. He was questioned as to the nature of wounds produced by a sandbag.

Dr. C. S. Venable, who was at the McCue residence shortly after the tragedy, characterized the wound on the defendant's head as an abrasion. He found no other wounds.

Placed on Trial for Murder.

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 25.—Frank O'Hara, son of a physician, was placed on trial today for the killing of Ernest Bode at the O'Hara home in Carbondale on Jan. 16, 1904. Bode, it is said, was enamored of O'Hara's wife. The men quarreled and O'Hara plunged a butcherknife into Bode, who died the next day.

TRUNK LINE NORTH TO SOUTH.

Texas Railway Chief Finances Company to Build System from Duluth to Galveston.

Houston, Tex., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Ed D. Steger, president of the Denison, Bonham and New Orleans railway, has just returned from France, where he has been for three months arranging with one of the largest banking institutions of the continent for the financing of what will be the first through railway north and south in America. It is to run from Duluth, Minn., via Kansas City to Galveston, Tex., with subordinate lines. The construction will amount to 3,000 miles. The road is to be completed in five years. The contract with the French syndicate is for an investment of $75,000,000. Construction will begin in Texas within sixty days, according to Mr. Steger.

ELOPERS NOW SEPARATED.

Mrs. George Heckel, Daughter of Cincinnati Judge, Leaves Husband and Returns Home.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. George Heckel, daughter of Judge Judson Harmon, has left her husband, George Heckel, a well known business man of Pittsburg, and is stopping at her father's home at his request. Judge Harmon said today that Heckel had not treated his daughter as he should and that he had told her to return to her old home. No steps toward legal separation have been taken. George Heckel's elopement with Miss Harmon some five years ago caused quite a sensation here.

NEGROES WIN SCHOOL FIGHT.

Kansas Supreme Court Issues Mandatory Order for Their Admission with White Children.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Kansas Supreme court issued today a mandatory order requiring the board of education of Coffeyville to admit to the white schools the children of "Bud" Cartwright, a negro. The board is allowed until Nov. 4 to show cause. The case is the result of a two years' fight by the negroes to have their children admitted to white schools.

TORTURING DISFIGURING

Skin, Scalp and Blood Humours

From Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age

Speedily Cured by Cuticura when All Else Fails.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in acne and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt-rheum—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy, have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. This complete local and constitutional treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning and scaly humours of the skin, scalp and blood, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure when all else fails.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), Ointment, 50c. Soap, 25c. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Proprietors.

KING OF JOKERS BEATEN AT LAST.

New York's Leading Practical Fun Maker Calls Detectives to His Rescue.

LAST STRAW A LETTER.

Former Gov. Black to Aid Caleb Powers, Goebel Suspect, in Fight for Life.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Oct. 25.

Leading Practical Joker Beaten at Own Game.

Bryan G. Hughes, New York's most famous practical joker, acknowledges himself beaten at his own game. The man who sent the "alley" cat to the cat show and secured for it a blue ribbon, who caused a negro boy dressed as a page to drop a tray full of paste diamonds in front of a celebrated jewelry shop, has had to call in detectives to try to discover who is endeavoring to turn the tables on him and is making his life a burden.

From all over New York letters come from business firms notifying Hughes they hold for him certain presents ordered by his friend, "Mr. L. Williams." His house has been bombarded with rubber dolls, old shoes, rattles, rocking horses, and an inconceivable amount of ridiculous junk sent C. O. D. His telephone has rung constantly with senseless messages and foolish calls. Even his clerks are besieged with incomprehensible messages for him.

Last week the head barkeeper at a subway tavern called up the millionaire paper box manufacturer at his office and told him he had received a card from "Mr. Williams," requesting him to call up Hughes and ask Hughes to meet Williams at the tavern Monday morning. Hughes replied he knew no Williams, but today when he received the following letter forwarded to him by the same head barkeeper he sent a detective down to investigate:

I trust you gave B. G. Hughes my message. He's a lovely man when you know him, but you have got to know him first. Do you think you could paste labels on paper boxes? It is a trade that is easily learned; no union; bonus for every one you don't spoil. Talk it over with the boss.

L. WILLIAMS.

Through such letters as this Hughes has had more applications for jobs than he can handle in ten years.

Former Gov. Black Will Try to Free Caleb Powers.

Immediately after election ex-Gov. Frank S. Black is to leave for Frankfort, Ky., where he will enter into the greatest legal battle of his career in the hope of saving the life of Caleb Powers, who is awaiting execution for the assassination of Gov. Goebel. Ex-Gov. Black volunteered his services gratis, as he believes young Powers to be innocent, and declares he will clear him. The defense will involve Black in no little personal risk, as the feeling of Kentuckians still is bitter, and there are many witnesses whom he will have to visit in the mountain regions of the state.

McDonald, Subway Builder, Given a New Slight.

Hundreds of passes which had been issued by the Rapid Transit Subway company and signed by the chief contractor, John B. McDonald, were rejected at the gates of the subway today, while all persons having passes signed by August Belmont or any of the officials of the interurban company were admitted. When asked for a reason for rejecting McDonald's passes, which have been good for a year back, the answer was: "All we know is that General Manager Headley and Supt. Merritt ordered us not to accept passes signed by J. B. McDonald."

Everything is ready for the opening of the subway on Thursday. The subway company is prepared to handle 100,000 passengers Thursday evening and 400,000 on Friday.

Leading Hotels Lift Edict Against Pipe Smoking.

William C. Muschenheim, proprietor of the new Hotel Astor, has removed the taboo on pipe smoking in the lobby of his establishment. His action has been followed by the management of the St. Regis and Waldorf-Astoria. Pipe smokers have had much trouble in winning this privilege, and the victory has been celebrated by several pipe smoking bees at the fashionable hotels.

"A great many English tourists are fond of smoking a pipe," explained Muschenheim tonight, "and it would be hardly fair to prohibit it. I have no objection to any form of smoking, whether it be cigaret, cigar, or pipe."

A party of English steel men who are in this country to attend a meeting of the Iron and Steel institute, headed by W. E. Allen of Sheffield, held a pipe smoking party in the lobby of the Hotel Astor tonight.

"The Waldorf-Astoria patrons can smoke a pipe in their rooms or in the lobby," said Assistant Manager Barse. "We have no objection to pipe smoking except in the café or restaurant. A gentleman would not exhibit himself as a pipe smoker in the dining room."

Army Captain Under Arrest for Leaving Post.

William O'Connor, the young real estate man who was shot Monday night by the aged Woolf Phillips in a pistol duel over Phillips' elderly wife, is going to recover. The bullet missed the jugular vein and made a flesh wound which is not dangerous. Eight shots were fired in the affair. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are out on bail.

Old Woman Dotes on Young Lover Husband Shot.

In the Yorkville court this morning the old woman appeared dressed in a red theater gown and fancy hat, and appeared in defense of the young man who might have been her son, but wasn't. Mrs. Phillips had spent the night in jail because she wouldn't be bailed out. She worried about her "Will." Once in the night she was told he was delirious.

"Poor, dear boy," she said. "Did he call for me?"

When they told her he did, she threw kisses in the air toward the Bellevue hospital, where he lay.

When Mrs. Phillips tottered into court on high heeled slippers she passed near her little gray whiskered husband.

"Take that man away from me; don't let him come near me," she cried.

Capt. George W. Kirkman, U. S. A., commander of company I, Twenty-fifth infantry, stationed at Fort Niobrara, Neb., has been arrested in Brooklyn and taken to Governor's island, where he is now a prisoner under guard, charged by the military authorities with being absent from his post without leave. Other charges also are said to be pending. Capt. Kirkman is said to have talked in a rambling way when taken prisoner.

The captain was found at the home of a retired army surgeon.

The captain's host was surprised, as he said the captain had not left the house since arriving there and seemed to be quite ill.

Jury Secured for New Bribery Trial.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 25.—A jury was obtained today in the trial of former Mayor George R. Perry, accused of accepting a bribe from Lant K. Salsbury in the Lake Michigan water deal. Court adjourned until tomorrow, when Salsbury, upon whose confession all the water deal cases are based, will be called as the first witness.

Gillette Safety Razor Wins.

A telegram received from St. Louis, Mo., dated Oct. 25, reads: The Gillette Sales Co., Chicago, was awarded Gold Medal at Fair for beauty, safety, and practical shaving qualities of their safety razor. It has by far the largest sale of any in the world.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

ARNOLD DALY AS EUGENIE IN "CANDIDA"

CANDIDA.
A Comedy in Three Acts.
BY
G. BERNARD SHAW.
Presented at the Studebaker, Chicago, by Arnold Daly and His Company, Oct. 25, 1904. The cast:

The Rev. James Mavor Morrell	Dodson Mitchell
Eugene Marchbanks	Arnold Daly
Mr. Burgess	John Findlay
The Rev. Alexander Mill	Thomas Thorne
Candida	Dorothy Donnelly
Prosperine	Louise Closser

If you are a lover of good drama and want an evening of delight go to the Studebaker this week to see "Candida." If you are a seeker for amusement and wish to enjoy some true wit and have several good laughs, also go to see "Candida." If you are mentally weary and wish to have your mind refreshed by giving it some new and pleasant things to think about, then go to see "Candida."

Do not go, however, with any thought that you are about to endure a perplexing "problem" play—that is, unless you are fond of the problem drama. If you are, you can find in "Candida" a problem big enough for you to think about for some little time. But if you are not partial to that, then just go with the idea that you are about to witness a delightfully diverting, interesting play, admirably presented, and you will leave the Studebaker at 10:40, smiling and feeling that your evening has been well spent. The problem is there, but you need not bother your head about it unless you wish.

Judged purely and simply as a play and an entertainment, Bernard Shaw's "Candida" is sufficient and satisfying. You may get to thinking about the problem after you have left the theater, or next day, perhaps, for the performance is one that is not easily forgotten, and Shaw has a "way of saying things" which makes those things stick in your memory. But don't let the dread of problems cause you to miss the performance. If you do you will be cheated out of seeing one of the most convincing, artistic, and beautiful presentations of an exceptionally interesting play that has come to Chicago in a long, long time.

The play "Candida," its meaning, and the meanings its admirers and its critics have read into it are subject for discussion at a time when more of leisure and space are at disposal than at present. It must suffice now to say that, far from being an "immoral" play, as certain of its detractors would have us believe, it impressed last evening as one of the most beautifully pure and true in its moral tone that any latter day dramatist has produced.

How any one can read immorality into Candida's character I cannot understand. She is the embodiment of noble womanhood—a womanhood so noble that it can be free in speech and action and yet never for an instant sully the honesty and purity of its own high nature. Hers is real morality—the morality that exists not because of conventions or expediency, but because of an inherent, ingrained love for what is pure and high. As Eugene says, she is a woman who "sees the souls" of those about her and who loves these souls for what they possess and offer, not for the shell of matter or conventions that are built up about them.

She sees the faults and the shortcomings in her husband, in Eugene, in her father, in Prossy, in every one with whom she comes in contact—in herself, too—but she sees also the good in each and every one of them, and, seeing this good, she loves and sympathizes.

There scarcely is a broader, nobler drawing of the highest type of true, free womanhood to be found in the whole range of drama than is Candida. That she ever for a moment considered Eugene as a lover or paramour is in my estimation absolutely outside the possibilities of the character as Shaw has drawn it. She understands Eugene, she is interested in him, she loves him as a mother loves a boy who is nervous, sensitive, and gifted. But that she ever for a moment would consider leaving her husband seems preposterous. Her patience becomes tried with this husband's heaviness and with his failure to understand her and her love for him, but her affection for him never for a moment wavers.

Watch the performance at the Studebaker or read the play with this conception of Candida's character in mind, and see if there is a line or word from beginning to end that disproves its correctness.

But as to the performance that Mr. Daly and his company are giving at the Studebaker! It may be set down at once as of remarkable symmetry, completeness, and beauty. There are certain points in some of the characterizations which individual preference might desire slightly changed, but in the essentials and in the majority of details the characterizations are finely true, sane, and finished. Mr. Daly has accomplished what seemed almost the impossible, by his realization on the stage of the poet which Shaw has drawn. The intense, excitable shrinking nature of Eugene has been understood thoroughly by the actor and is made plain to the onlooker with a surety and exactness, coupled with fine artistic discrimination, that call for only the highest commendation.

The line between the impressive and the ridiculous is so slight when Eugene is giving utterance to his poetic fancies or his intense outbursts that only the most judicious care and keenest artistic intelligence on the part of the player can prevent its being overstepped. Mr. Daly handles these scenes in truly remarkable manner, and compelled an audience which at first was disposed to laugh to give him serious attention and credence.

Few actors have revealed such understanding of the value of absolute stillness of pose as did he last evening. He sat perfectly motionless for several minutes at a time, and yet the spectator's attention was held every instant, and there was never a doubt as to what was supposed to be passing in Eugene's mind. The expressiveness of the actor's hands is also extraordinary. They, like his eyes, become truly eloquent, and make clear many of the finer and more subtle processes of the poet's mind. The actor's use of the high keyed, boyish voice causes certain of the more impassioned speeches to seem almost screamed, but this after all is in keeping with the character.

Miss Donnelly's Candida is a surprisingly fine piece of work. She suggests the motherliness which is the keynote of Candida's nature, and yet sacrifices nothing of the charm and brightness of the young woman. The playful speeches she delivers charmingly, and the more serious ones also are given with fine intelligence and full understanding of both their obvious and their hidden meaning. The actress' speaking voice is light, and there occasionally were moments when a little more of tonal depth and a little more fluency and rapidity of speech would have seemed preferable, but in the main the portrayal is a most excellent and satisfying one.

Mr. Mitchell played Morrell with manliness, with sympathy, and with rare discernment. He concealed none of the oratorical impressiveness of the self-pleased lecturer, yet he made kindliness so evident and mental suffering so convincing that liking and a goodly measure of respect were felt for the man. Miss Closser as Prosperpine furnished a character sketch that was capital in its distinctness and strength. Mr. Findlay was not in appearance or manner quite the Burgess whom Shaw has described, but he fitted well into the picture nevertheless, and, barring a slight inclination to work for a laugh, his performance was satisfactory. Mr. Thorne made of Mill about all that is possible.

D'Annunzio Has New Play.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]

MILAN, Oct. 25.—D'Annunzio has requested the management of La Scala to grant him the concession of the theater for next April, as he wished to produce an entirely new tragedy, "La Nave," a three act piece in verse which he now is writing at his country place in Marina Pisana. The action of the tragedy takes place in the lagoons and islands of Venice before the foundation of that city. The piece is short, and the development is rapid and intense. There are four principal rôles, and a novelty is supplied in an ample musical commentary and in the important part assigned to the chorus. Maestro Franchetti is the composer of the music and Eleonora Duse will be the principal interpreter.

3 CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH.

House Destroyed by Fire in Absence of Parents—Many Hurt in Derailment of Train.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 25.—During the absence from home of the parents, three small children of Jesse Evans, a well to do farmer living near Corales, were burned to death today in a fire which totally destroyed the house.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mother Fights for Boys.—Protesting angrily that she was capable of caring for her two sons, 7 and 10 years old, respectively, Mrs. Delia O'Hearn, 3613 Union avenue, interrupted proceedings in the Juvenile court yesterday. It was alleged she did not lead a sober life. The boys fought against the separation. They were sent to Feehanville.

Fined Under Truancy Law.—Charged with permitting their children to remain away from school four persons were fined in sums of $5 and $10 yesterday in Justice Caverly's court. They are: Joseph Scalosa, 402 Clark street; George Sturin, 1242 North Ashland avenue; Richard Gaugh, 4117 Armour avenue; and Julian Marian, 26 Hope street.

Club Gives Her a Loving Cup.—At a banquet given at the Northwestern university settlement last evening by the Columbia Woman's club, a loving cup was presented to the president, Mrs. A. R. Martin, 714 North Hoyne avenue.

White Rock Gets Two Grand Prizes.

A telegram received from St. Louis, dated Oct. 25, reads as follows: Unprecedented honor for the White Rock Mineral Spring Co. of Waukesha, Wis. This company was today given highest awards on their famous White Rock Effervescent and Still Waters, for purity, quality, and healthfulness.

RULING ON INHERITANCE TAX.

Property Transferred in Contemplation of Death Not Immune, Says Illinois Supreme Court.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Property transferred in contemplation of death does not escape the inheritance tax, according to a decision handed down by the Illinois Supreme court in the case of Leonard B. Merrifield against the people, prosecuted from La Salle county. In 1903, prior to going to Chicago for an operation, which resulted in his death, Merrifield disposed of his property to relatives. Though the transfers were not legacies by will, the Circuit court assessed an inheritance tax and the Supreme court affirms it.

OBITUARY.

CHICAGO AGENTS DENY COAL POOL.

Witnesses Before Interstate Commerce Hearing Disclaim Deal to Fix Rates.

OPERATOR TELLS OF LOSS

John C. Haddock Declares Discrimination Cost His Company $800,000.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Chicago witnesses testified today before the interstate commerce commission in the action brought by W. R. Hearst against the so-called coal trust, and denied improper methods to maintain rates.

George Merryweather, sales agent for Coxe Bros. & Co. of Chicago, said he followed the railroad quotations, but denied that he fixed his prices on instructions from any one. Witness said that when a dealer was found to be selling under the schedule price he was seen and induced to maintain the rates. He denied that in case of refusal a threat was made to cut off his supply. He declared moral suasion was used in such cases. Witness admitted he generally followed the schedule of prices fixed by President Baer of the Reading road.

Mr. Meryweather, who is known as "No. 1" in the conferences between coal agents, said he had destroyed the minutes of the proceedings.

Kelly Identifies Minutes.

Michael J. Kelly, agent for E. I. Hedstrom, wholesale coal dealers in Chicago, identified the minutes of ten different meetings of the Chicago conference, and said he had prepared these, together with the memorandum which requested the members of the conference to use numbers instead of names in communicating with other members. The principal object in using numbers instead of names, the witness said, was to conceal the names of such members as might communicate to the conference information relating to the creditor ratings of customers.

John C. Haddock, an independent coal mine owner and operator, said that as a result of tariff discrimination his company suffered a loss of more than $800,000 in less than eight years. This loss meant the difference between solvency and insolvency, and his company, which at one time had a reputation of high standing which he jealously guarded, as a result of the alleged discrimination is now in the hands of trustees.

Mr. Haddock said that he had persistently complained to the management of the Lackawanna company and had been met by the proposition that he turn his properties over to the railroad This he had declined to do. In the end there was a compromise, by which he received $150,000 from the Lackawanna company in settlement of his claim for $800,000.

Shortage of Cars.

Mr. Haddock also said that the Lackawanna company would not furnish a sufficient number of cars to market the output of his mines during the anthracite coal strike; and that they caused to be removed spur tracks into the yards of dealers in Norwich and Cortland, N. Y., who purchased coal from his company.

Counsel then announced that the complainant would rest his case. The case of the coal carrying companies will be begun tomorrow.

DENY LOCAL COAL COMBINE.

Chicago Dealers Say Different Concerns Get Prices According to Location and Facilities.

Local coal dealers declared yesterday that there does not exist an association or "trust" in Chicago which fixes the price of coal, or in any manner attempts to restrain free competition.

"There has been no violation of the law," said Walter S. Bogle yesterday. "Different prices have been made to different dealers, depending on the quantity they buy and the facilities they have for handling it.

"The wholesale price in Chicago is regulated by the tidewater selling price, which is observed by all the big mining companies in the east, and to that is added the cost of shipping the product to Chicago, and handling it here."

During the investigation of the alleged coal trust by the interstate commerce commission in New York evidence was introduced which purported to relate to noonday meetings held by certain coal dealers in Chicago, and a list was given of the names of the firms and the numbers which is said to be used to designate them in their communications with one another. The list was as follows:

1. Coxe Bros. & Co. George Merryweather.
2. Lehigh Valley Coal company. Walter S. Bogle.
3. Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company. J. H. M. Clagett.
4. Boyd & Stickney. Mr. Merryweather.
5. Williams & Peters. F. N. Pease.
6. Peabody Coal company. By Mr. Pease.
7. S. C. Schenck. Mr. Dering.
8. Mitchell-Spalding company. Mr. Mitchell.
9. O. S. Richardson company. O. S. Richardson.
10. E. L. Hedstrom & Co. Mr. Kelly.
11. Northwestern Fuel company. Mr. Merryweather.
12. Crescent Coal and Mining company. Mr. Bogle.
13. W. L. Scott & Co. Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Merryweather told the commission that the meetings of the Chicago coal dealers had been abandoned at the time of the miners' strike, he believed, because they were in violation of the law.

WHY APPENDICITIS?

Why is appendicitis so common today?

Because we have got into the pernicious habit of eating too fast.

Dr. Curtis, the great authority on this disease, says: "Appendicitis often follows the eating of a very hasty, or particularly large or indigestible meal."

After carelessly following a foolish custom, you can ensure your safety by taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

It is an accepted, scientific truth, which admits of no dispute, that if you will only keep your digestive apparatus in good order, you will never suffer from this dread disease, which, at best, means a weakening operation, with long weeks wasted in bed, and big doctor's and surgeon's bills to pay as souvenirs.

Keep your appendix in health by the proper use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, whenever you have laid yourself open to danger by overeating, and upon the least sign of stomach or intestinal trouble, for otherwise, at any time, this dangerous disease may lay you low.

The curative influence of this great medicine is quickly shown in the gentle, soothing effect it has on all inflamed conditions of any part of the digestive tract.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets tone all these parts up to a proper condition of perfect health, and regulate their functions into a proper working state.

They also make away with all the causes of irritation, inflammation or indigestion, by helping to dissolve, digest and assimilate, or put to proper use, all the food which is lying around in odd corners of your digestive apparatus, fermenting, rotting and curdling, like so much garbage in a dirty sink.

In these natural and perfectly simple ways, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets restore all sufferers, from any form of dyspeptic trouble, to health.

They are safe and reliable. They never fail to relieve and cure, quickly and permanently.

Use them and you need never worry about your appendix vermiformix.

HELP THE CHARTER.

Several Chicago firms have begun to inclose THE TRIBUNE'S charter letter in their business communications to persons living in Illinois outside of Cook county. One firm has ordered 10,000 copies of the letter. THE TRIBUNE will be glad to furnish as many copies as are needed to any firm engaging to make a proper use of them. The letter is in compact form on a single sheet of paper and contains a résumé of the arguments that should be brought to the attention of country voters. The charter needs help.

VATICAN REVENUES FALL OFF.

Last week Premier Combes said to the chamber of deputies that the separation of church and state in France had become inevitable, and his position was sustained by a vote of 325 to 237. In the light of all that has happened since friendly relations between the vatican and the French government were severed, it is evident that popular sentiment is in favor of putting an end to the concordat. Therefore, if M. Combes should be beaten on some other issue and resign, his successor probably will go on with the work of divorcing church and state.

American Catholics take a religious interest in the question. It may concern them in a financial way. They may be asked to be even more generous in their contributions to the treasury of the church than they have been in the past.

A dispatch from Rome says that the vatican has sent instructions to the bishops in the United States to urge all church members to give more liberally toward the annual collections taken up as an offering to the pope. The reasons assigned are the extraordinary expenses of the first year of a pontificate, due to the cost of holding a conclave, and also to the greatly diminished revenue from the French churches.

If that revenue is falling off now, it will be likely to shrink still more after the concordat shall have been abrogated and bishops and priests in France have to depend on voluntary contributions for their support instead of the salaries the state has paid them. If, when separation shall be effected, the state shall say that it is the owner of the church buildings and compel the church to pay rent for their use or provide new ones, the French Catholics will be taxed more heavily and will be less able to contribute to the support of the vatican.

It is understood that the so-called general fund held by the vatican amounts to $10,000,000, and that it is invested in securities which bring in about $500,000 a year. That revenue defrays part of the running expenses of the church, such as the cost of maintaining the apostolic palaces and the salaries of cardinals and nuncios. But it does not meet them all. There must be large voluntary contributions, otherwise it would be necessary to draw on the capital. When French contributions diminish the Catholics of the United States will have to come to the rescue of the finances of the vatican.

FORESTRY.

Never before has there been in this country the intelligent interest in forestry which has grown up during the last three or four years. The large private interests, such as lumbering and railroads, which formerly looked upon forestry as a fad directed impertinently towards interference in their affairs, have recently perceived the importance to themselves as well as to the nation of maintaining adequate forest preserves.

Forestry has become a profession due to the demands of the national government for trained foresters, and now several universities in the east and west have added the study of forestry to their professional departments.

If one man can be held more responsible than others for this awakening of popular interest it a vital subject it is President Roosevelt. The first forest reserve was made by President Harrison in 1891. His successors added to the area of national reserves, but such action was usually left to the end of their administrations as if it were largely an after-thought.

In his first message to congress President Roosevelt not only dwelt on the subject of forestry but he sounded the note of a new and aggressive forest policy in connection with that of irrigation. In that message the president showed the essential unity of the two subjects and took the first step towards giving the nation a definite policy in regard to the arid regions of the west. He said:

> The fundamental idea of forestry is the perpetuation of forests by use. It is a means to increase and sustain the resources of our country and the industries which depend upon them. The water supply itself depends on the forest. In the arid region it is water, not land, which measures production. The forest and water problems are perhaps the most vital internal questions of the United States.

During the three years of the president's administration not only has the reclamation act been passed and the work of national irrigation placed upon a permanent basis; not only has the president added largely to the area of the national forest reserves; not only have the wanton thefts of timber from the public lands been stopped and the thieves punished, but in the public estimation the subjects of irrigation and forestry have made great gains. This is of great importance, for it is by the intelligent interest of the people of the different states and the private owners of vast forest estates that the national government is to be aided in maintaining adequate forest protection for the future of the nation.

It is time that this country is looking after its forests. Their maintenance is the basis of future prosperity. It is well that in this period of awakening conscience the country has had an executive whose experience and wisdom enable him to lead rather than follow the movement towards the reclamation of the west and the preservation of the American forests.

DO IT BEFORE NOV. 8.

Have you studied the relative qualifications of the candidates for member of the state board of equalization? Have you examined the financial and moral standing of the candidates for state treasurer? Have you picked your man for state auditor? Have you carefully weighed the respective pedagogical theories of the candidates for trustee of the state university? There are three trustees to be elected. Citizens who believe in electing the Chicago board of education by popular vote ought to rejoice in this opportunity to exercise the right of suffrage. Let us hope that in their enthusiasm they have gone beyond the rest of their fellow-citizens and have looked up the names of the men and women who are willing to guide the state university in its onward career.

But the selection of state university trustees, though it might be a study in itself, is only a small part of the intellectual exertion which will be demanded of the voter when he steps into the polling booth a week from next Tuesday. There is a governor to be elected. And there is a lieutenant governor. And there is an attorney general. And there is a secretary of state. Have you yet gauged the personalities of the candidates for these offices?

When you have, you would better start in as soon as you can and pick out the three men whom you want to send to the legislature from your district. Then your mind will be free to turn from the candidates for state offices to the candidates for county offices.

First of all, there are fifteen county commissioners to be chosen. If you live within the city limits you must vote for ten. If you live in Cook outside the city limits your task includes only five. But whether you live within or outside you must in either case elect a state's attorney, a coroner, an assessor, a member of the board of review, a recorder, a clerk of the Circuit court, a clerk of the Superior court, a county surveyor, and six judges.

Have you studied the trigonometrical records of the candidates for county surveyor? Have you pondered the careers of the candidates for clerk of the Circuit court? Have you analyzed the learning of the candidates for judge? Are you up with the game so far?

If you are you might remember that this year we elect a president and a vice president for the United States of America. And, speaking of the national government, yes, we elect congressmen. On the ballot handed to you there will be the names of various gentlemen who want to go to congress. Be sure to make yourself familiar with their public opinions and their personal powers.

Do you think that you are going to cast a completely intelligent ballot?

The time will come when (1) there will be a larger number of election days, so that fewer officials will have to be elected simultaneously, and (2) a great many officials, now elected, will be appointed by some one big official on whose election the voters will concentrate their intelligence.

GARBAGE AND NOISE.

Now is the time for the city of Chicago to do a little constructive work without waiting for the consent of other cities.

When the noise on the elevated loop was discussed last spring the talk was all about what had been done in other cities. When it was discovered, or was supposed to have been discovered, that not much had been done, we seemed to sink back despondently in our chairs and conclude that nothing could be done.

Is this the spirit that introduced into the meat industry a thousand devices that had never been heard of in any other city in the world?

This fall we are acquiring a little more municipal courage. The elevated loop subcommittee of the local transportation committee has been taking testimony on noise from competent engineers. It seems to have a heart for exploration and discovery. All that it needs to do is to go one step farther. Let it hire the best engineer that it can find and set him to work. Gratuitous, helter-skelter advice from a group of engineers is not the method of successful private corporations. The city of Chicago is big enough to hire an engineer of its own and to tell him to go ahead and either pick up or invent some method of making it possible for an elevated structure and a human being to inhabit the same street.

The most valuable contribution that the local transportation committee ever made to the solution of the technical phases of the street railway problem was when it hired Bion J. Arnold, who is one of the biggest engineers of the country, to make a report. The same course ought to be followed now. The elevated railways hire big engineers to build good structures. They never hire them to reduce noise. But if those same engineers were hired to reduce noise they would get to the bottom of that subject just as they have got to the bottom of the art of construction.

This same principle applies to garbage removal. We have had aldermanic reports innumerable. And still our garbage dumps breathe pestilence over our homes. The mayor is right about it. The time for action has arrived. But what would a private corporation do in the circumstances? It would discard the reports of years ago. It would hire the best garbage expert that could be hired and have him make a full, authoritative report on garbage removal methods as applied to this particular city of Chicago. If no method elsewhere in existence was altogether applicable to the city of Chicago it would direct this expert to try to invent a new one.

Isn't this the right policy? Can a municipal corporation, any more than any other corporation, legislate without expert advice? And ought not this expert advice to come from the city's own specially retained expert adviser instead of from the representatives of interests which wish to have their patented devices adopted or from casually invited engineers who are asked to express their opinions gratuitously and who respond accordingly?

There is one thing better than getting busy and that is to get business-like. The city of Chicago wants to reduce its noise and it wants to remove its garbage. It ought to hire experts who will not only tell it what other cities have done, but who will give it the system best adapted to its needs, if necessary a new system.

"THE PRESIDENT AND THE BIG STICK."

John Barrett's article in THE TRIBUNE today will be read with interest. The writer brings out an important and little known fact—namely: that Central and South America, generally speaking, favor the election of Roosevelt.

This is not an argument, or a theory, or a bit of logic, or a hypothesis, or a wish, or a hope, or a desire. It is a fact, susceptible of proof, and Mr. Barrett proves it. He shows the falsity of the campaign argument that Roosevelt has alarmed South America by his talk of the big stick.

Mr. Barrett shows that as a result of the foreign policy of the present administration our country is now more respected and esteemed in all parts of the world than ever before. Partly in consequence of this additional prestige our foreign trade has greatly increased, especially in the orient, where until half a dozen years ago we were considered a second rate power.

Finally Mr. Barrett treats the Panama canal. If Parker, and not Roosevelt, had been president during the last three years, either we should still be dealing with Columbia or should by this time have turned to the inferior Nicaraguan route.

It is a good thing that Roosevelt, and not Parker, was president during the Panama crisis.

IN press: A new edition of "Things One Would Rather Not Have Said," by A. B. P.

AT the same time, Admiral Rojestvensky hopes he has made it clear that it will be unsafe for the enemy to attack him, even in the guise of fishing smacks.

JUDGE PARKER must have a small foot. He gets it in at every opening.—Sioux City Journal.

Or else—but it would be uncharitable, perhaps, to suggest the other supposition.

FRIENDS of Mr. Bryan note with lively satisfaction that his recent misunderstanding with his left lung has been satisfactorily smoothed over.

AS TO Senator Morgan, he never expected anything better of that Panama ditch.

WITH a slight twist of the wrist Statesman Dave Hill takes Maryland, West Virginia, and Indiana out of the list of doubtful states and presents them to Parker. Can't Judge Hanecy stop this sort of thing with an injunction?

EVEN the bad Filipino has one good quality. He always emits a hiss before he strikes to kill.

"WHEN Judge Parker was silent," says the New York Commercial, "the republicans were critical of his silence. Now that he has spoken they criticise his speech." Can it be possible that the crafty republicans were trying to goad him into saying something?

RUSSIA and Judge Parker have made some unfortunate blunders in the last few days.

WHAT Candidate Parker does not appear to know about the practical affairs of the government would make a large book.

HENRY GEORGE, son of the real Henry George, speaks of President Roosevelt as a "shameless sham." This will give some idea of the size of the projectile Mr. George is capable of firing.

FEARS are entertained now that the opening of the "new" postoffice next year may be further delayed by an injunction from Judge Hanecy.

MAYOR HARRISON has gone to New York again, in response to a hasty summons by long distance telephone. His honor should take advantage of the opportunity, while there, to repair an awkward omission of which he was guilty on a previous occasion, and hand Iowa over to Candidate Parker.

THE czar sends his regrets and hopes the little incident of a few nights ago will not impair the cordial relations heretofore subsisting between Russia and Great Britain. What more do you want?

THE democratic position seems to be that the tariff is a species of robbery, and that said robbery should be regulated by careful revision and gradual reduction.

THE election is less than two weeks off—unless postponed to a later date by one of Judge Hanecy's injunctions.

RUSSIA'S Baltic fleet has sought the seclusion that the ocean grants.

IN the First senatorial district things are looking dark for Mr. Lorimer's man Morris.

DANGER of catching "craw craw" from kissing? Pshaw pshaw!

DON'T believe everything they tell you, Judge P.

RUSSIA may have other fish to fry now.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Uncle Allen.

"This prejudice against 'race suicide,'" said Uncle Allen Sparks, "is about as inconsistent a thing as I know of. We applaud human beings for being the parents of a dozen children, and we curse the unpretending house fly for being the mother of a million children."

Ursus et Leo.

Do you hear the lion, O, bear?
He is roaring with all his might.
Don't stir him up rashly. Take care,
For he's rather rough in a fight.
He's given to bluffing, no doubt,
And ramping and charging about.
But, bruin, you'd better look out
When he stops his roaring to bite.

Contrary to the Rules.

Angry Patron—"Hello, central! What did you cut me off for?"

Boston Telephone Girl—"Because you used a plural noun as the subject of a singular verb. You are not allowed to do that on this line, sir."

No Evidence.

The scientific observer on Mars was looking through his great telescope at the portion of the earth which we know as the United States.

"Isn't this the regular year for the people of that part of the planet to have their great outdoor meetings, monster parades, torchlight processions, and other evidences of widespread and abnormal excitement?" inquired the reporters.

"It is," said the man at the telescope, "but for some mysterious reason there seems to be nothing unusual going on there this year. Even with our strongest instruments we fail to note any evidence of popular enthusiasm, frenzy, or whatever the emotion may be that stirs the people of that planet once in every four of their years, during what appears to be their warm season. The conclusion to which we have come is that an unprecedented frost or succession of frosts has paralyzed the energies of the people and caused them to forego their regular quadrennial outpouring this time."

This opinion of the scientific man of Mars was duly printed in the papers next morning.

Up to Dad.

Father—"Henry, don't you think it is time for you to be doing your share of the world's work?"

Son—"I suppose it is, dad. If you'll make over to me what you consider my share of world's surface I'll work it for all its worth."

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1904: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

IN view of the fact that Lewis Harcourt, the new master of Nunham and of Stanton Harcourt, has an American wife, a niece of J. Pierpont Morgan, and an American stepmother, in the now widowed Lady Harcourt, daughter of the historian J. Lothrop Motley, it may be of interest to recall that one of the Harcourts was prominently identified with one of Sir Walter Raleigh's colonization schemes in America and settled in Virginia, where, if not direct lineal descendants in the male line, at any rate descendants through the female line, and with Harcourt blood in their veins, are to be found to this day among the old colonial families.

After all, it is only through the distaff side of the house that the present head of the house of Harcourt in England can claim descent from those Harcourts who took part in the conquest of England under William of Normandy, one of them commanding the Norman archers at the battle of Hastings, their names appearing on the Battle Abbey roll, on the Bayeux tapestry, in "Brunton's Chronicle," and in Leland's "Collectanea." It was during the reign of King Richard Cœur de Lion that one of the Harcourts became possessed of Stanton Harcourt, now owned by "Lulu Harcourt." A Harcourt fought at Evesham, on the side of the great earl of Leicester. Another, who espoused the cause of the house of York, was killed in the wars of the roses. Yet another carried Henry VII.'s standard at the battle of Bosworth. In Queen Anne's reign Simon Harcourt became lord high chancellor of England, his grandson and successor being subsequently created Earl Harcourt, a title which lapsed at his death in 1830, when the male line became extinct.

The French branch of the Harcourt family still exists in the male line, and has furnished no less than four marshals to the French army. Its present chief bears the title of duc d'Harcourt et de Beuvron, the two dukedoms dating from the beginning of the eighteenth century. The duke is about 40 years of age, is married to one of the La Rochefoucaulds, and is noted for his diminutive stature.

In describing the other day in these letters the so-called "princess' tax," which, dating from medieval times, is still exacted to this present day from the population of the grand-duchies of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and Mecklenburg-Strelitz, to the tune of 50 German pennies per head of the population, to pay for the trousseau of the royal bride, I omitted to mention that a still more peculiar tax of this kind survives in the kingdom of Bavaria where each time that the queen of Bavaria gives birth to a child a special impost for the benefit of her majesty is collected from the population. It must be thoroughly understood that this is not in any sense of the word a voluntary contribution from loyal subjects to their queen, but it is a statutory tax in the full sense of the word, the nonpayment of which entails all those pains and penalties which are reserved for those who neglect to fulfill their obligations to the national treasury.

The tax in question, which, it is needless to state, is of ancient origin, is known as the "konigin wochenbettgeld" (which may be translated as "queen's confinement or accouchement tax"). The last occasion on which it was extorted from the population was when Queen Marie of Bavaria gave birth in April, 1848, to the present crazy King Otho. The latter, of course, is unmarried, and his elder brother and predecessor, the ill-fated King Louis, likewise died unwedded. But the tax has never been repealed, and were young Prince Rupert of Bavaria, whose consort was so ill in New York last year, to succeed to the throne within the next few years and his charming wife, Princess Marie Gabrielle, to become queen, the Bavarians might well be called upon to begin paying again this strange old tax, which was probably instituted hundreds of years ago as a sort of national reward to the wife of the monarch for presenting the people with heirs to the throne.

In several other of the twenty-four states comprised in the confederation known as the German empire are similar taxes, and curious prerogatives of the ruler and of the members of his family at the expense of the people to be found, and that is one of the reasons why progressive Germans, natives of the minor states, look forward to the early absorption of their petty governments by that of Prussia, which is just as modern and up to date as Mecklenburg-Schwerin and so many of the other small German kingdoms and principalities are the reverse.

Thus, in the principality of Lippe, where the question of succession to the throne has raised something akin to a tempest in a teapot, the population, numbering 110,000, are taxed to the extent of $1.40 per head a year to furnish the revenue, amounting to $150,000 per annum, which the regent, or ruler, draws from the treasury for his maintenance and for that of his family. This tax is equivalent to about $7 a year per head of family, a heavy burden in a country so poor that it is unable to feed its own population, nearly a third of whom go away during the spring, summer, and fall to other neighboring countries to make money as laborers, returning for the winter with their small savings.

The present regent of Lippe, like his father before him, is entirely dependent upon this revenue, and both the late and the present regent, feeling their position insecure, have been putting by all they could for a rainy day, and have spent as little as possible of the money they received. This has served to render the family extremely unpopular in the principality of Lippe, and the opposition to Prince Adolf of Lippe-Schaumburg, one of the claimants to the throne, and who is the kaiser's brother-in-law, comes not from the people of Lippe themselves but from the governments of other non-Prussian German states, who do not relish any increase of the kaiser's power and influence. During the year or two that Prince Adolf spent at Detmold as regent of Lippe both he and his wife kept up a magnificent establishment and were most liberal and generous, bringing much money into the principality, and spending it there, thereby promoting the prosperity of the people. That is why the people of Lippe hope for his return, and that is the way in which the present controversy will probably end.

The fact that the present regent of Lippe had an American grandmother has already been mentioned by the press, since it is that lady's honorable birth which constitutes one of the objections to his tenure of the regency and to his eventual succession to the throne as reigning prince when the present nominal ruler, who is a lunatic and an inmate of an insane asylum, dies. But it may be of interest to add that the chief dignitary of the regent's court at Detmold is Count Benno Rittberg, whose wife is an American and a sister-in-law of that Postmaster Rathbone who was in charge of the postal department in Cuba during the American occupation of the island. The Countess Rittberg was a Miss Grace Campbell of Hamilton, O. Both Count and Countess Rittberg are frequent visitors to this country. In fact, Countess Rittberg spent the greater part of the summer over here.

In order to understand the importance to Germany of the issues involved in connection with this Lippe regency and succession controversy, it must be explained that the federal council of the empire is composed of fifty-nine members, representatives of the sovereign states in the confederation. Each state has so many votes allotted in proportion to the size of its population, and it may appoint as many members to the council as it possesses votes. Thus Prussia sends seventeen members, Bavaria six, Saxony and Würtemberg four, Baden and Hesse three, and so on.

As no bills can be brought before the reichstag until they have first been accepted by the federal council, it is a matter of vital importance to the emperor to have the command of a majority on this federal council, since otherwise his hands are tied. Indeed, ever since 1870 the first object of Prussia's internal policy has been to have a majority in the federal council. The majority, however, is narrow, so much so that the vote of the principality of Lippe is a matter of considerable importance.

That is why the Prussian government is so anxious to secure the presence as regent or as sovereign at Detmold of a prince who is imbued with friendly sentiments.

It remains to be seen whether the controversy will be decided by the Supreme court of the empire or by the federal council, which latter would refer the matter to a commission of arbitration.

A LINE-O'-TYPE OR TWO.

All Happy.

["Are three American women out of five disappointed in their husbands?"—Life.]

He thought he would investigate;
He asked of Mrs. Brown
If she were happy with her mate.
"The finest man in town!"
She said. "We never had a tiff;
And I can only say
My husband would be perfect if"—
But then he walked away.

He next inquired of Mrs. Green:
"Are you quite satisfied
With Green?" "The best man ever seen!"
In earnest tones she cried.
"His lover's vows he's always kept;
He never says me nay;
And he'd be simply fine, except"—
But then he walked away.

He went and asked old Mrs. White
If with White she was pleased;
"I sing his praise with all my might,
He is so good," she wheezed.
"He always has been nice and kind
Since our bright wedding day—
In fact, the only faults I find"—
Again he walked away.

The fourth he asked was Mrs. Black.
"My husband? Yes, indeed!
I'm always in accord with Jack—
His every word I heed.
He's not at all like other men,
And I must gladly say
He has not many faults—but, then"—
Once more he walked away.

At last he asked of his own wife:
"Pray, how do I suit you?"
"You are the idol of my life,
You are so good and true.
You haven't any faults at all—
That is—of course I may Find room for change, when I recall"—
This time he had to stay.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

"THE SOLDIER OF THE VALLEY," by Nelson Lloyd, is an idyl of West Virginia. The "valley" is one of those innumerable quiet, amiable, and enticing spots, far from the railroad, and reached by winding red roads that coax the traveler into the heart of those brooding and kindly mountains of the south. The hero of the tale, Mark Hope, is a mountaineer, who, having served in the Cuban campaign, returns to his home with but one leg, no money, and little before him, even at 25, but a life of retrospect. He might have reconciled himself quickly enough to such a lot had not love overtaken him.

The love story is a natural one, and the end of it is, in the circumstances, the most natural imaginable. For the maimed man, reconciled to sacrifice, sits with his two dogs and his pipe in his cabin by his fire. On the wall are the books his father, a wandering English gentleman, bequeathed him. In his heart are memories and humility and good will. He has given himself up to the "valley," and imagining all that he might have been had circumstances been a little different he asks, had those things come true, "Would the cloud coals over there on Thunder Knob blaze up higher in our honor? And the quail, perched on the fence stake, would she address herself to us or to Mr. Robert White down in the meadow? Would the night hawk, circling in the clouds, strike one note to our glory? Could the bleating of the sheep swing in sweeter to the music of the valley as she rocked to sleep?"

The book has humor, homeliness, and a charming intimacy. It is destined to win many friends for itself. It is excellently illustrated by A. B. Frost. (Charles Scribner's Sons, publishers.)

Gertrude Smith, the inimitable author of "Arrabella and Araminta," has a holiday book for little ones entitled "LITTLE PRECIOUS." It is a merry and entertaining little story, with three happy little children for the central figures and an engaging mamma and papa—the latter with a gold mine—looming up in the background. They all go out to California to live in the town "where mamma lived when she was a little girl," and the most beautiful nuggets from the gold mine bring about equally beautiful happenings to the family. A brisk Christian Science spirit pervades the story. All care is banished. Every one is well, rich, and good. It is difficult to imagine why the publishers should have preserved the anonymity of the illustrator, for work so charming is entitled to recognition. There are sixteen full page colored illustrations, all attractive and harmonious in color and breathing the spirit of childhood. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

"THE BOY CAPTIVE OF OLD DEERFIELD," by Mary P. Wells Smith, is the first of a new series of books on colonial days, her first series being the "Young Puritans." The first part of this story is nearly all history, concerning the attack by the French on Deerfield in 1703 and the horrible sufferings of the captives which the French and Indians took toward Canada with them, and among whom were the Rev. John Williams and his family. The examples of colonial bravery, the piety and privations of these people are faithfully and sympathetically given, and though it is perhaps a rather horrible record to offer to young boys, it at least teaches them of what stuff they are descended. The latter part of the book describes the adventures of Stephen Williams, a son of the minister, and this portion, though fictitious, contains enough reality to satisfy any boy. The adventures of Stephen are not complete in this volume, but will presently appear in a second book. (Little, Brown & Co.)

"THE STORY OF THE FIVE REBELLIOUS DOLLS" is an unusual book for young people, by E. Nesbit, illustrated by E. Stuart Hardy. Five dolls rebel and their adventures until they get tired of their rebellion make up the book. It is quite amusing, as are the illustrations, many of them in colors (E. P. Dutton & Co.)

Makers of the French Revolution.

ROUSSEAU.

The demon of property pollutes whatever it touches.

Conformity with nature is what is most necessary for the healthy development of the individual and of the nation.—Sayings of Rousseau.

EXCEPT Voltaire, no man contributed so much to precipitate the French revolution as did the sentimental, eccentric dreamer, Jean Jacques Rousseau. Rousseau's "Contract Social" was historically false and logically absurd. But it was written in that style of burning eloquence of which its author was a perfect master, it appeared at a time when the French people were hungering for a theory that would justify them in overturning the established order, and it became a potent and growing factor in shaping the public opinion of the time. The constituent assembly became, says Carlyle, "twelve hundred individuals, with the gospel of Jean Jacques Rousseau in their pocket." Jean Jacques had taught that the basis of society was a formal compact by which each individual subordinated his will to the will of all on condition that all protect and further his interests. Kings were, therefore, usurpers. This doctrine cost Louis XVI. his head. The attempts of the various national assemblies to get back to a state of nature and make a new "social contract" protracted and intensified the revolution, deluged France with blood, and overthrew absolutism.

Rousseau was born of a French Protestant family that had sought shelter from persecution at Geneva. His mother died at his birth. His father engaged in a brawl and fled from Geneva when Jean Jacques was 13 years old. The boy's uncle apprenticed him to a notary and then to a brutal engraver, whom he ran away from when 16 years old. He wandered to Savoy and got board and lodging a while from a Catholic woman, Mme. de Warens, at Annecy by espousing the Catholic religion. At Turin he acted in the double capacity of servant and lover to a shopkeeper's wife until her husband returned and kicked him out.

After various further wanderings Rousseau returned to Mme. de Warens, with whom he lived at Annecy, Chambery, and Charmettes nine years. She was not a woman of strict virtue, and Rousseau became successively her servant, her business agent, and her lover. His four years at Charmettes were spent in solitary reading, nature study, and the development of the sentimental side of his character. They were the most indolent and happy years of his life. His agreeable connection with Mme. de Warens ended ingloriously when he returned from a trip for his health and found a journeyman wigmaker named Vintzenried had supplanted him in her affections.

He had studied music a good deal. He set out for Paris with a system of musical notation with which he expected to make a reputation and a fortune. The French Academy of Sciences pronounced his musical system "neither useful nor original," and Rousseau was reduced almost to beggary when he got the place of secretary to M. de Montaigu, French ambassador to Venice. He quarreled with the ambassador as he now began to do with everybody—and was soon back in Paris copying music. At about this time he met a girl named Therese le Vasseur, who was employed as a drudge at the cheap, dirty inn where he staid. She was ignorant, stupid, ugly, vulgar, and ill natured, but Rousseau's perfervid imagination clothed her with every grace and virtue. He took her for his mistress, and had by her five children, all of whom he heartlessly sent to the hospital for foundlings.

Rousseau years before had begun to develop taste and talent for literature. In 1749 the Academy of Dijon proposed for discussion the question, "Whether the arts and sciences have tended to corrupt or purify the manners of men?" Rousseau wrote a "Discourse of Arts and Sciences," boldly and eloquently maintaining that arts and sciences are evidences and causes of social degeneracy, and that a state of savagery is most desirable for mankind. This brilliant production took the prize and won for its author a first place among the literary men of France. Four years later his opera, "Devin du Village," gained him a high reputation as a musical composer. His "Discourse on the Origin of Inequality," in which he denounced all wealth as a crime and all government as tyranny, still further raised his reputation.

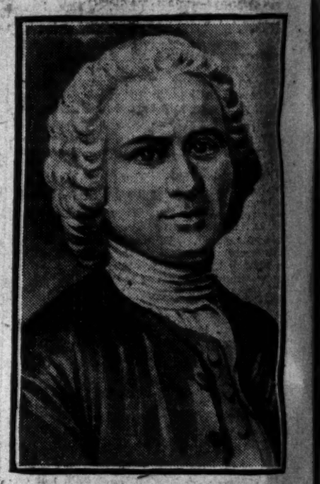

Now grown one of the lions of social Paris, hatred of social conventions became with him a disease, and he gladly accepted Mme. d'Epinay's offer of a retired cottage, the famous Hermitage, near the Montmorency forest. In 1754 he visited his birthplace, Geneva, where he ostentatiously recanted his recantation of Protestantism. At about this time he wrote an attack upon theatricals, which drew him into an acrimonious controversy with Voltaire. At the Hermitage he met Mme. d'Houdetot, whom he made the object of an unreciprocated passion and the heroine of his immensely popular romance, "The New Heloise."

In 1762 the "Social Contract" was published at Amsterdam to escape the French censorship, and "Emile" was published at Paris. "Emile"—a work telling parents how to rear their children by a father who had sent his own offspring to the hospital for foundlings—contained views obnoxious both to the church and the government; and its author had to fly to Neuchatel. In a freak of eccentricity he had adopted the Armenian costume. This and other things prejudiced the peasants of Neuchatel against him, and he was forced to betake himself to the island of St. Pierre. Ordered thence by the government of Berne, the indignant and sensitive fugitive at last got a home at Wotten, in England, through the sympathetic kindness of David Hume, the great historian and philosopher.

In England Rousseau began writing his "Confession," a brilliant, unreliable work by which he hardly succeeded in his design of proving himself "one of the best of men." His always excessive vanity and eccentricity began here to develop into insanity. Imagining a conspiracy against his life in which Hume was involved, he fled one night to France. After many wanderings he returned in 1770 to Paris, where he earned 10 sous a page by his old calling of musical copyist and lived miserably in a fifth story room. In 1778 he accepted the last of many generous offers of a comfortable home and retired to a cottage of M. de Girardin, twenty miles from Paris. He soon discovered that Therese, whom he had formally married a short time before, was bestowing guilty favors on one of M. Girardin's stable boys. A short time later he was dead. It is a question whether he died of apoplexy or killed himself in a fit of insanity. He was buried near the place of his death. When the fanatical revolutionists who made the "gospel by Jean Jacques" their bible became dominant in France his body was placed in the Pantheon.

It is difficult to form an estimate of Rousseau's true character. He eloquently preached the most exalted virtue. He is described as of a gentle and lovable disposition. Yet he was immoral, ungrateful to his friends, and exhibited a detestable deficiency of parental love. His shortcomings are accounted for, but not excused, by the corruption of his age and his own mental peculiarities, which at last developed into madness.

TEACHERS WILL BE COOKS

MORE THAN 750 BEGIN WORK OF LEARNING THE ART.

For Thirty Weeks They Will Study in Modern Kitchens in Public Schools to Qualify as Instructors in the Course—Board Hopes to Have Them Impart Culinary Skill to Pupils in Every Building — Must Prepare Twelve Dishes.

More than 750 public schoolteachers yesterday put down the pedagogue's pointer to take up the cook's tin spoon. After they had spent two hours cramming fractions and long division and other things into 37,500 youthful brains they spent two hours cramming recipes into their own.

The ascendency of the tin spoon marked the opening of the cooking schools of the normal school extension department. For thirty weeks these teachers will bend over the white tables in the model kitchens of the public schools in their effort to master the art of cooking. They will carry breaded lamb chops to a stove and watch them sizzle to a brown on a broiler and they will lure doughs into rising and mold rice into croquettes.

Will Learn to Teach Cooking.

Most of the teachers who enrolled in the cooking classes will take the examination for certificates as teachers of cooking in the elementary and high schools. Many of them, however, are learning how to cook for the sake of knowing how, and a few are cherishing secret hopes of matrimony. With the regular instructors trained to teach cooking, the board of education hopes to be able to establish cooking schools in every public school in Chicago as their fitness to teach will overcome the necessity of expending a vast sum of money in salaries for special instructors.

The number of teachers who enrolled exceeded the expectations of both Supt. Cooley and Fred M. Sargent, superintendent of the normal extension department. The host of prospective cooks swelled the total enrollment in the normal school extension classes to 5,667, an increase of nearly 1,000 over the high water mark of last year. The teachers' classes in cooking have been organized in the following schools:

Normal school.	Washington.
John Marshall High.	Kozminski.
Lewis-Champlin.	Prescott.
Mark Sheridan.	Talcott.
Throop.	Avondale.
Jirka.	Franklin.
Newberry.	Farren.
Sowa.	Keith.
Berry.	Dewey.
Goethe.	Foster.

Must Prepare Twelve Dishes.

In the cooking school course of study more time is devoted to practical demonstration and experimentation than to theory. A specimen set of examination questions prepared by the cooking department for teachers trying for certificates as teachers of cooking shows that the candidates will be required to give demonstrations in at least twelve dishes. The paper calls for practical demonstrations in the preparing of the following dishes:

Ginger bread or creamed oysters.
Omelette or baking powder biscuit.
Beef juice for invalids or corn starch pudding.
Lamb chop and tomato sauce or muffins.
Escalloped cabbage or popovers.
Ginger snaps or cream of celery soup.
Cream of tomato soup or sponge cake.
Escalloped onions or cake (not sponge).
Potato soup or corn muffins.
Mashed potatoes or apple pie.
Rice croquettes or plain cake.
Vanilla ice cream or lady fingers.

Study Composition of Foods.

The teachers also will be examined as to their knowledge of cooking chemistry, food products, and the theory of cooking.

Among the questions contained on the specimen list of queries on food products are the following:

Write briefly on the structure and life of the ovum.

Give six rules for the hygienic care of a well regulated dairy.

Describe in detail the process of malting or diastase the use of sugar in the dietary.

State three reasons why bread should be kneaded.

Name three foods often found adulterated on the market, and tell how these adulterations may be detected.

From what part of the animal is the fillet of beef obtained? the fillet of veal? the fillet of chicken?

Give the approximate composition of spring wheat, winter wheat, rice, spinach, onions, milk, and butter.

What are sweetbreads, and how should they be prepared for use?

Wants Cash for Night Schools.

Supt. Cooley asked the finance committee of the board of education for an additional appropriation for the evening schools. It is estimated $20,000 must be added to the $56,000 already given to prevent the shortening of the ten weeks' term or the reduction of the sessions from five to three a week. The funds, for 13,202 pupils, probably will be granted.

DECLARES HE READ ADVICE ON "HOW TO TREAT A WIFE."

Harris Miller, Opposing Divorce Suit, Says Customer Caused Trouble by Too Much Sympathy for His Helpmeet.

The charge that Louis Sackheim caused trouble by reading to Mrs. Becky Miller articles on "How a Husband Should Treat His Wife," was made yesterday by Harris Miller in opposing her divorce suit.

"Sackheim used to come to my tailor shop at 1020 Milwaukee avenue," testified Miller. "He bought supplies, but he spent hours in doing it, and used to tell my wife she was not treated right. He would tell her how he would treat his wife if he had one."

Sackheim, who is named as co-respondent in the cross bill, denied the charge. Cruelty was alleged in the wife's bill.

Divorce cases filed during the day were as follows:

BETZOLD, ESTHER, sued Harry S.; married in May, 1901; desertion a year later alleged.

BART, ABRAM P., brought statutory charges against wife, now in Toledo, O.

WASHINGTON, WILLIAM H., alleged Aileen deserted him in 1898, a few months after marriage.

WYLIE, BESSIE O., 267 Sixty-seventh street, sued Henry H. for divorce and custody of three children; cruelty.

Earl B. Parrott, assistant superintendent of the National Life Insurance company at 671 West Madison street, was held to the grand jury by Justice Dooley on the charge of bigamy. He was accused by a woman formerly Mrs. Harriet Barrett, who said he married her at St. Joseph, Mich., on Sept. 11, and by Mrs. Parrott No. 1, who produced a marriage certificate dated June 1, 1898. Parrott is said to have married again the day after his sister's funeral.

DIRECT WORK OF ORPHANAGE.

Nearly 300 Supporters of Central Baptist Institution Elect Their Leaders in Maywood.

Nearly 300 supporters of the Central Baptist orphanage held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon at the Baptist mission, West avenue and Fourth street, Maywood. Children in care of the orphanage passed before the visitors. Addresses were made by Rev. S. S. Kirtley of Elgin; Dr. M. W. Haynes, pastor of the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Chicago, and Mrs. J. R. Kneiss of Berwyn. The directors included the Rev. Dr. James F. Thoms, pastor of Pilgrim's church, Chicago; the Rev. Dr. A. K. De Blois, pastor of the First Baptist church, Chicago; the Rev. Dr. Theodore G. Soares, pastor of the First Baptist church, Oak Park, and C. E. Alders, 208 Wabash avenue, Maywood. The work of the orphanage extends to Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Minnesota.

Congregational Board in Session

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Thirty-sixth annual convention of the Congregational woman's board of missions of the Interior met today with delegates from sixteen states in attendance. Mrs. Moses Smith of Chicago, who has been president of the board since its organization in 1868, presided. Several missionaries from foreign fields are present.

School of Domestic Science, 39 State street. Miss [illegible], and Miss Connor, directors.

Evanston Women to Manage a "Pike."

"All of the attractions of the genuine St. Louis Pike, barring, of course, the objectionable features, such as the Igorrotes," will be reproduced in Evanston Friday evening, according to the announcement of the Second Presbyterian church. Hinman avenue from Lee street to Kedzie street—two blocks—is to be transformed with colored lights and decorations into a miniature Midway. Costumed barkers will shout in front of the four houses in which the shows are to be given.

The program will open with a supper at the church, and the crowd will go to the residence of Mrs. Luther L. Smith, 940 Hinman avenue, where the Japanese village will be represented. The decorations and costumes were loaned by Capt. Edward Naylor, who brought them from the orient. Mrs. W. E. Wood will manage the tea booths, curio store, and doll festival, and Miss Daisy Fansler will lead the geisha girls.

Among other attractions will be Dixie Land, in the residence of Mrs. M. L. Funkhouser; the Temple of Mirth in the house of the Rev. Stewart M. Campbell; and Waggenbach's animal show and the beauty contest in the residence of Mrs. F. W. Nichols.

Household Hints.

BY ADA M. KRECKER.

On a Bargain Day Downtown—

The restaurant luncheon is sometimes a rush into the nearest dining room, a seat anywhere, an order for "O, anything," and that anything eaten in a scurry, and consisting perhaps of food found three days out of the week on the home table.

Many large city restaurants make a specialty of one or two sorts of dishes—of oyster patties, perhaps of cake or of fruit or salads.

So if one happens to be in a place that is famed for its preparation of a certain dish it is wisdom and foresight to order that dish. In that way you can make comparisons that are perhaps not so odious as instructive between home and hotel cooking of certain articles.

Soups and stews are always safe to order, while croquettes, minced meats, creamed chicken or turkey, and any other dish that can be made of left overs is a little doubtful if one is sensitive.

To lay aside one's wraps, with mind at ease and leisure, and to put one's self comfortably to a dainty and comfortable little meal is a world of strength and enjoyment to the woman who is trying to make a $10 bill go the way of $15; and she stands a far better chance of doing it, besides keeping herself in condition.

A pattern of shopping luncheoners were two thoroughly well dressed, up to date city girls, who came into a restaurant with a flutter that brought the head waiter to their help in removing their wraps and arranging their seats.

There was no hesitation; the one who had evidently invited the other looked carefully over the menu, asked the waitress a question, and then wrote out her order without a query. It was worth lingering over my chocolate to learn what they would feast upon.

They had blue points, then English chops with creamed potatoes, and after that orange cake. As the restaurant is noted for its chops, the order was happily chosen.

As these left in came another pair. "What shall we have?" was the first question, and the next, "What would you like to have?" "O, anything. You order, please." "I hate to; won't you?" "I am sure I don't know what I want. Are you hungry?" "No, anything will do."

"So it gayly proceeded; first one and then the other refusing the lead, while the waitress, having placed the bill of fare before each and filled the glasses with water and laid down the napkins, stares into space.

Glancing hopelessly into the bill of fare again and again, they finally fall to upon ham sandwiches and cream pie and coffee. By their scraps of conversation, which wander aimlessly to-me-ward, I learn they are having a grand day of shopping, and must munch their sandwiches hurriedly lest they see the sun set on an unfinished day's work.

Said a parlor lecturer on the small mistakes of femininity that womankind does not realize how much harm they do themselves and how many headaches are caused by a carelessly, hurriedly, flurriedly eaten luncheon during a shopping tour.

An Autocrat at the Breakfast Table—

Is rarely to be found in real life, but entertaining conversation, smiles, and laughter may be had in any family.

However plain a fare, where there have been gay sallies and a pleasant interchange of thought one rises from the table feeling that one has feasted.

Who gives a thought to the food on one's plate when a good story is being told or a brisk interchange of bon mots is in progress?

Says Pythagoras, "If you have nothing better than silence to offer, be silent," and the proverb says, "Silence is golden," but the man that at table with others is too engrossed with his food to take an interest in the conversation of those about him is perhaps better fitted for hermit meals.

Sometimes the habit of silence is formed in childhood, through the reiteration of the old adage that children should be seen rather than heard, an adage which perhaps has done lasting injury to many a reticent child.

Or again, a child may become a bore through being allowed on all occasions to monopolize conversation.

There is a golden mean between these two extremes which encourages children, as soon as they are able to take intelligent part in the commerce of ideas and so learn really to converse.

Without gossip, without purely personal topics, without a discussion of one's ailments, without a heavy or heated discussion, there can be intelligent, bright, and cheery converse, spicily flavored with nonsense.

Sentiment—

Born of genuine feeling is a delightful freshener of life.

The barest circumstances are made lighter and easier to endure by tenderness and thoughtfulness displayed from each to the other.

And such consideration between men and women is one of the most blissful charms of a happy married life.

This sentiment whose foundations are purity, justice, and truth, makes its possessors impregnable to the hardest blows of fate. They can easily afford to smile at poverty or the worst material conditions. These do not touch the high rock on which the soul dwells, scorning a lower place.

But where sentimental considerations reign without the foundations of these virtues there is instead a foundation of shifting sand, and unhappy the woman who trusts her life to such conditions. Justice without sentiment may seem severe, but it is at least honest, and in so far preferable to sentiment without justice, which is not honest.

Justice without sentiment is hard to bear, but sentiment without justice is degrading to men and women alike.

For women it is hopeless. They glory in the sentiment which is based on healthy conditions; when these conditions cease to exist they are wise to choose justice instead.

What They Cooked—

They cooked cheese yesterday in the more advanced class of the School of Domestic Arts and Science, and they cooked it in two ways, a fondue and a soufflé.

They cooked it in individual dishes and in individual amounts which are measured with the daintiness of a restaurant portion of ice cream or of a sandwich that figures in an afternoon tea, as in that way the processes can be mastered without a wasteful sacrifice of materials.

Enlarged for family service, the recipe for the fondue runs:

Two cups chopped cheese, one cup fine stale bread crumbs, one cup milk, two level tablespoons butter, two eggs.

Season with salt, cayenne, and mustard. Melt butter, add milk and bread crumbs, then cheese, and cook until cheese is melted, then add egg. If extremely thin put back on the stove and cook; if too thick, add milk. Consistency should be like pour batter. Serve on toast or crackers.

This is delicious fondue, as all who were present at the feasting are witness.

The cheese soufflé magnified to ordinary proportions reads this wise:

Three level tablespoons flour, three level tablespoons butter, half cup milk, one cup chopped cheese, three eggs, yolks and whites separated, one teaspoon salt. Make white sauce of butter and flour, seasoning, and milk. When partly cooked add cheese. When cheese is melted add well beaten egg yolk; when slightly cool cut and fold in beaten white. Bake like custard in pan of water for half an hour in a moderate oven.

In the beginners' class they made a dessert and an egg vermicelli. The dessert was a wee bit of an individual caramel custard, as good as it was little. Taken in doses scarcely large enough for a housewife to manage with a family, the custard recipe is as follows:

Caramel custard: One-fourth cup milk, two level tablespoons sugar or one of caramel, one-fourth of an egg, a speck of salt, a few drops of flavoring. Scald the milk, mix the sugar and egg together, and pour the hot milk on the mixture, add the salt and flavoring. Strain into a pudding dish and set in a pan of water and bake until thick.

The egg vermicelli was made by cooking an egg thirty minutes, separating the white and yolk and chopping the white. Make a white sauce and add the whites. Toast bread and cut in squares and points, press the yolk through the sieve. Pour the sauce over the toast squares. Garnish with parsley and the yolk. For the sauce take one level teaspoon butter, one level teaspoon flour, one saltspoon salt, two of pepper, one-fourth cup milk.

Christmas Preparations—

May well begin now for the woman who fashions with her own fingers many love tokens.

She can look over her last year's Christmas list, decide for whom she is going to make gifts, and then buy the materials for their manufacture.

Dainty embroidery cannot be hurried, so that one small bit often takes the odd moments of many days. So it is well for her to allow herself plenty of time.

To wait until the 1st of December and then go on a pell mell scramble to the 24th or 25th will rob the Christmas season of much delight and peace.

Shopping for materials, choosing and matching silks and ribbons is now an easy task in the uncrowded shops, where one may look about and make selections at leisure.

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

MISS EMILY CAMPBELL WEDS MR. LOUIS C. CARPENTER.

Ceremony Takes Place in St. James' Church at Noon—Miss Myrta Peters Married to Dr. Allen H. Kessler of Detroit in Evening — Mrs. Charles Finley Elker Gives on Tuesday, Nov. 8, the First of a Series of Twelve Luncheons.

Miss Emily Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogers Campbell, was married to Mr. Louis C. Carpenter yesterday noon at St. James' Episcopal church, the rector, the Rev. James S. Stone, officiating. The bride was attended by two matrons of honor—her sister, Mrs. Harry B. Collins, and Mrs. Julius Janes of Cleveland, O.—while Miss Emilie Fiero of Joliet, a niece of the groom, was the only bridemaid. Mr. Convo Fiero of Joliet acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Louis Lauer, Mr. William Sanford, Mr. Harry B. Collins, and Mr. Joseph Brill.

The bride wore white chiffon taffeta and carried a shower of bride roses. Her attendants also were gowned in white and wore large white hats. They carried white chrysanthemums in their arms. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast for the family and bridal party was served at the Campbell home, 423 Superior street. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will travel for several weeks and will then reside at the Park Mansions, in La Salle avenue, where Mrs. Carpenter will be at home on Thursdays after Dec. 1.

The wedding of Miss Myrta May Peters to Dr. Allen H. Kessler of Detroit took place last night at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Homer H. Peters, 5528 East End avenue. The Rev. Herman Page performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock in the presence of the family and a few friends. The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Mary E. Peters, wore a white lace robe over liberty gauze. She wore a tulle veil and carried lilies of the valley. Her sister was gowned in white chiffon combined with thread lace, and carried American beauties. There were no bridemaids, but eight friends of the bride bore the ribbons. Mr. Horton J. Kessler of Detroit served his brother as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Homer H. Peters Jr., Mr. Roy S. Younglove, and three Detroit friends of the groom, Mr. Hubert O'Brien, Mr. John Vhay, and Mrs. Charles Smith. Mr. Joseph L. Harrington was master of ceremonies and Master Seymour Nason bore the ring. After the ceremony a large reception was held. Dr. and Mrs. Kessler will be at home at 878 Second avenue, Detroit, after Jan. 1.

Another south side wedding of yesterday took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hall Keen, 4555 Ellis avenue, when their niece, Miss Eva Viola Barr, was married to Mr. Charles McLean Moss of Pittsburg. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by the Rev. John R. Crosser. The bride had for her attendants Miss Mary Shumway, Miss Mary Blair, Miss Alice Fenton, and Miss Edith Moss, sister of the groom. There was no maid of honor. The bride wore white lace and a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. Her attendants also wore simple white costumes and carried white chrysanthemums. A small reception followed the service. Mr. and Mrs. Moss will go to Pittsburg to live.

Mrs. Charles Finley Elker, 4359 Lake avenue, will give the first of a series of twelve luncheons Tuesday, Nov. 8.

The Illinois club gave its opening dancing party last night. Saturday night will be guest night, and after a reception from 7:30 till 9 o'clock a program will be given.

Mrs. Walter A. Scott has taken up residence at the Virginia hotel for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Green and the Misses Mary and Virginia Brian of Baltimore are guests of Mrs. David Anderson, 4311 Ellis avenue, having come to attend the Anderson-Bersbuch wedding this evening.

Mrs. Henry J. Cox, 506 East Fifty-third street, has returned from a visit of several weeks spent at her old home in Boston, Mass.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Miss Elizabeth Lindsey and Mr. John Williams of Chicago were married this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Lindsey, 510 West Oak street.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Miss Christine George Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Edmund Lewis, was married at noon today in Trinity chapel to Mr. David F. Conover of Chicago.

SAYS MEN STUDENTS MAY BE CROWDED OUT BY THE WOMEN.

Dr. Edmond J. James in Northwestern University Report Deducts Theory from Attendance in One College.

Dr. Edmund J. James, in his last report to the trustees of Northwestern university, which appeared yesterday, says the disappearance of men students from the coeducational institutions in the Mississippi valley may be only a matter of time.

Dr. James quotes figures on the attendance in the college of liberal arts of Northwestern to prove his theory. These show that in the last four years the percentage of women students in the Evanston school has increased from 46.1 to 56.6. He closes by saying:

"In my opinion this tendency is a permanent one, and is more likely to increase in the future than it has in the past. The college is distinctly a literary college. Its emphasis is placed on the study of the classics, ancient and modern history, mathematics, and pure science. These are subjects which are likely to appeal with increasing force to the women of the country as they become more educated."

Mr. F. Marion Crawford's new novel

Whosoever Shall Offend

By the author of "Saracinesca," "In the Palace of the King," "The Heart of Rome," etc., etc. Cloth, $1.50.

"Here we have the old Crawford at his best, and all who love a good story will rejoice."—New York Sun.

Mr. CRAWFORD'S new characters are even more attractive than in almost any previous book; freshness and constant interest make the whole narrative delightful. Corbario's wicked strength seems so far too strong for Marcello's frail hold on life that the glorious fight made for the boy by the beautiful peasant girl compels an unusual depth of sympathy, fully sustained to the novel's end.

"'Whosoever Shall Offend' is a first-rate piece of romantic composition, and we congratulate Mr. Crawford as we congratulate his public," says The New York Tribune. "What makes us rejoice with Mr. Crawford is that in providing the excitement he uses his old gifts without the faintest loss of vigor or freshness. The story is well written, has finish and an atmosphere that is genuine."

RULE OUT FILLY AT WORTH TRACK

Spencerian Is Disqualified for Bearing In in the 1⅛ Mile Handicap Event.

BRANCAS IS GIVEN RACE.

Owner Henshall Wins with Sir Brillar and Pelham After Close Finishes.

Spencerian, shy of speed the last time out, was loaded for bear in the one and one-eighth miles handicap at Worth yesterday and took the event from Brancas only to be disqualified for bearing in on the Gerst colt within twenty yards from the wire.

There is no doubt the filly would have beaten Brancas had she kept straight, as she held a safe lead of nearly a half length at the time of the interference and was running strongly. Her bearing in caused Dominick to pull up Brancas, but the boy was clever enough to send his mount along again and beat Ahola a neck for the place.

Foul Is Palpable.

The foul, accidental though it was, was too palpable to be overlooked by the judges, and when Dominick entered their pagoda to lodge a complaint they dismissed him without a hearing and in due time set Spencerian back, gave Brancas the race, and moved Ahola and Lauralighter up. Ahola and Lauralighter, the extreme outsiders in the betting, made all the running, the first named showing first at the last quarter, where Spencerian moved up and took command. In the run for home Brancas, skinning the rail, ran over Ahola and then went after Spencerian, the race ending as stated.

The six furlongs handicap for all ages brought a field of good sprinters to the post, with Sir Brillar a slight choice over Rusk and Mayor Johnson, and they finished in the order named a neck and a head apart. Sir Brillar, off last, encountered bad racing luck throughout the first quarter, went to the front rounding the turn, and in a driving finish staid long enough to beat the fast coming pair that dropped in the money behind him.

Owner Wins Two Races.

The owner of Sir Brillar, C. T. Henshall, won the second race with his Albert—Plaudita gelding, Pelham, after backing him from 8 to 1 down to 8 to 5. He ran second to Smithy Kane to the stretch turn, was a length to the good at the eighth pole, but had to be hustled along to beat Kane by a neck. Henshall cleaned up handsomely on his two wins. Foxmeatl, Niaxus, and Ivan the Terrible won the other events.

NEW RECORD BY BILLINGS' PAIR.

Morning Star and Prince Direct Lower World's Mark for Racing to Pole.

PACING STAKE TO JOHN M.

Sweet Marie Captures Free for All Trotting Event in Straight Heats.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Working together with all the ease of a machine and capably handled by their owner, C. K. G. Billings, Morning Star and Prince Direct broke the world's record for pacing to the pole with an amateur driver at the local track today. The same pair broke the world's record for pacing a half mile to the pole only last week.

Mr. Billings started out today to try to break the record with Morning Star and Angus Pointer, but they both broke badly at the second turn. Prince Direct was then substituted for Angus Pointer, and the pair finished the mile in the wonderful time of 2:06, four seconds better than the best previous record.

Sweet Marie, the California mare, easily won the free for all trot, beating Dr. Strong handily in straight heats. Sweet Marie was never fully extended. The Emerald stake, for 2:06 pacers, brought out four fast horses. John M., the Smathers entry, was an odds on favorite, and, after losing the first heat to Locanda, easily won the succeeding heats.

Prince Alert was sent against 1:59½ pacing, but failed. The son of Crown Prince circled the track in 2:01¾.

Lou Dillon was sent an exhibition mile to beat 2:01¾ for trotters. Accompanied by a runner, the Billings mare finished the mile in 2:02⅖. She tired badly at the finish.

The unfinished wagon race with amateur drivers was not continued today. Summaries:

HIGHEST PRICE FOR ALVERTON.

H. D. Train Buys Allerton Stallion for $900 at Second Day of Stockyards Sale.

The second day of the great sale of harness horses at the Dexter park amphitheater was attended by a large crowd. The highest price of the day was realized for the Allerton stallion, Alverton, which went to H. D. Train of Kansas City, for $900. M. H. Tichenor's trotter, Joe Black, 2:26¾, found a new owner in J. J. O'Neal of New York at $500. Marveletta, 2:24¼, went to Philadelphia at $660, Connelly & Shotwell being the buyers. Maud W., a pacing 3 year old filly by Lord Linten, looked like the best bargain of the afternoon at $530, B. F. Wright of Springfield, Ill., is her new owner. Allen F. Cooper, Joliet, Ill., bought the 2 year old stallion Bedford, paying $410 for him. The eighty head sold brought an average of $242. The offerings for this afternoon include the Danforth youngsters, Little Baron, 2:15¼; Salem, 2:09¼, and a dozen other record horses.

GAMES IN BOWLING LEAGUES.

Centurys Twice Defeat O'Leary's, the Former National Champions, in the Monroe Tournament.

A fine series developed from the meeting of the Centurys and O'Learys in the Monroe Bowling league last night, the former team landing two games out of the series. The team averages, however, were close, the Centurys counting 1,075 in their second game, which gave them 963 2-3 to the loser's 956.

TO REVIVE TEAM'S SPIRIT.

NORTHWESTERN STUDENTS HOLD RALLY ON PRACTICE FIELD.

Confidence in Coach and Players Exhibited by 500 Rooters for the Purple—Carlson Likely to Make Guard Permanently—Chicago Eleven Given Easy Work—Stagg Fears Overconfidence in His Men and "Bulls" Illinois Stock to Avoid It.

A football rally, the like of which never before has been seen in Evanston, even after a big victory, was held at Sheppard field yesterday. Over 500 students, with the university band at the head, gathered at the Old Oak in the lower corner of the campus and marched, yelling and singing, to the football grounds, where they paraded around the gridiron cheering for McCornack, the team, and each individual player.

Purple badges worn by all gave the keynote of the sentiment. On them were the words, "Northwestern Forever," implying that the rooters as well as the players would stick until a certain tropical place froze over. After the crushing defeat of Saturday there was a moment of numbness from the shock, but the student body soon recovered its fighting spirit and yesterday the confidence in coach and men showed no decrease from what it was a week ago.

Speeches were called for from McCornack, Allen, and Johnson. The coach spoke of the chances of defeating Illinois, the captain commended the spirit of the rooters, but the little Indian refused to talk.

The varsity lined up against the academy team and scored three touchdowns. Carlson was tried at guard, where he may remain permanently, and Weinberger was put in at tackle, as Kafer may be shifted to the backfield. McCornack himself played quarter for a time and brought repeated cheers from the rooters for his work.

Stagg's Men Take It Easy.

Easy practice marked the work of the maroons again yesterday, the first team being put through the signals, in order to get the stiffness out of its joints. All the men were out in suits, but a number were suffering from bruises received in the Northwestern game, and the signal work was short.

The "scrubs" and the freshman eleven had a hard scrimmage of forty-five minutes, in which the second team scored twice, Walker and Speidell making the touchdowns. It is the intention of the maroon coach this week to give his regular several scrimmages, though it is probable he will save his first set of backs for the Illinois game, giving the hard work to the linemen.

"I expect the hardest kind of a game from the state eleven," said Stagg after the practice. "The Illini are strong, and I can afford to take no chances. While we should be able to beat them, I do not propose to allow the men to let up in their work and become overconfident. As soon as they are fully recovered from last Saturday's game they will be put at it again as hard as ever."

Watch Michigan and Wisconsin.

Much interest is felt among the students at the university over the game between Michigan and Wisconsin next Saturday. Both teams are scheduled to play the maroons and, as the contest will be the first game that either team has had with an eleven of first class ability, it will give a line on the prospects of the teams for the games with Chicago.

The game with the Wolverines is feared most, both because of the reported great weight of Yost's eleven and because it is to be played away from home, the date being Nov. 1. The rooters feel that if Chicago can beat Michigan Wisconsin will offer small opposition.

STUDENTS PATROL THE HILLS.

Great Precautions at Wisconsin Against Possible Spies from Michigan—Remp to Return Today.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Practice was secret today, all spectators being rigidly excluded. In addition to which the surrounding hills were patrolled by students on the watch for unidentified strangers.

There is a feeling here that the Michigan game will be won largely on the merits of the straight football played. Wisconsin believes its own straight game is already good enough, and is working on some new forms of attack. The Badgers' chief reliance, however, will be the old cross bucks, straight plunges, and plays of tackle, with some simple tricks which are always dangerous.

These are the plays on which Wisconsin has relied for years, and they are still good. Trick plays are good for variation, but four out of every five yards the varsity has gained this year have been on the straight game. Vanderboom, Clark, and Wrabose are working together perfectly, and Jones is running the team fast, so that with Bertke, Findlay, and Capt. Bush to reinforce Wisconsin's attack is not likely to be easily broken up.

All the men were in the scrimmage tonight except Remp, who will play tomorrow. Half an hour was spent in practicing the formations, after which the scrubs were given the ball on the varsity's ten yard line, and for another half an hour, using Michigan's formations, were unable to break through the line for a score. Brindley was at right tackle on the varsity at the start, and was followed by Perry.

The rooting on Saturday will be the most perfectly organized ever heard in Madison. A yell committee has been meeting daily for a week. The yells are printed on small cards and numbered, and all the gymnasium classes practice them daily. Songs will also be a feature.

ILLINI USE MAROON ATTACK.

Scrub Team with Varsity Backs Try Stagg's Favorite Formations with Success on Regulars' Line.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Stagg's favorite formation employed by the Illinois scrubs wreaked havoc with the Illini line today. Such was the disheartening report from Illinois field, where the practice was devoted to defensive work. The scrubs had been taught maroon tactics, and were given some varsity backs with which to use them.

One bright feature, however, was the appearance of Bronson, the old Urbana High school star, who was on the varsity the last two years. Last year injuries to his knee put him out of the game practically all the season, and he had decided to rest a year. The call of the pigskin proved too much, however, and he will try to learn the signals and round into form. He is easily the fastest back out on the state field. Kasten and Huntoon received slight injuries. Defensive work will probably occupy the rest of the week.

Dillinger was able to scrimmage, and this was a great surprise, for the nervy end had been counted out for weeks. His presence in form gives the Illini three good ends for Saturday. The ends are being carefully coached to stop Eckersall's sprints.

Appeals from alumni all over the state are coming in, asking the team to make a brave fight on Saturday. With the odds against a local victory the rooters are planning to support their representatives most loyally. At present indications 2,000 people will accompany the varsity on Saturday.

SCARE FOR HARVARD COACHES.

Freshman Team Gives Varsity a Hard Rub in Practice Game—New Men in Sight.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Harvard freshman eleven was pitted against the varsity today, and not only prevented the regulars from scoring but forced the varsity to go the limit to prevent being scored on. Capt. Hurley did not care to risk all his first string men, and only Kernan and Parkinson were utilized by him. The others, however, were the first substitutes, and their showing was a sorry one.

The freshmen have a big, husky aggregation, and their trick plays made the varsity feel small, as the backs tore along for effective gains. On two occasions the varsity reached the eight yard line, only to have the ball taken from it on downs. Starr, the freshman quarter, and Talbot, the guard, did grand work, and it would not be at all surprising if both were put on the varsity squad.

Parker, the varsity guard, is in bad shape, and the doctors are working over him steadily to get him in shape for the Pennsylvania game. Meier is first choice for right tackle and Capt. Randall of the baseball team is assured of left end. It is thought now that Shurtleff will cover the other end of the line.

Harvard will have hard practice on Wednesday and Thursday, after which the men will be given a rest. The Pennsylvania team will arrive in Boston on Wednesday.

After Association Football Honors.

Local followers of association football are endeavoring to organize a team to compete in the International Olympic association football championship, which will be played on Nov. 16 to 18 at St. Louis. J. E. Sullivan writes that four teams have already entered, including the Galt eleven, champions of Ontario. Chicago, if able to send a representative team, has an excellent chance of winning honors. The winning team will get gold medals and the second team silver medals.

WANTS MICHIGAN AND MINNESOTA.

Premature Effort to Get "Championship" Football Game for St. Louis.

GOPHERS ARE WILLING.

Ann Arbor Officials Are More Modest About the Matches Yet to Be Played.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—A telegram was received today from D. R. Francis, president of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, asking that the Minnesota football team arrange a post-season game with Michigan to be played at the world's fair stadium for the western championship. A similar telegram was sent to the authorities at Ann Arbor.

The project has been talked of for the last week, and the action taken by President Francis is likely to start active negotiations between the two universities.

Minnesota partisans feel confident the Gophers will have a clean record at the close of the season and, in the event that Michigan fares equally well, a post-season game would be the only way to determine the western championship. The matter will be taken under consideration in the near future.

Michigan Is Noncommittal.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—A Michigan-Minnesota football game at St. Louis is a possibility this fall. Athletic Director Charles Baird, to whom a proposition for such a game for the "western championship" was made, tonight said:

"It is too early to answer this question now, and Michigan is too busy to consider the game during the next three weeks. I speak for Coach Yost, Trainer Fitzpatrick, and Capt. Heston in saying this. Wisconsin and Chicago are all Michigan can handle now and indeed it looks to me as if Wisconsin will be quite as great an opponent as any eleven in the west.

"At present therefore it is premature and arrogant for Michigan to talk about playing Minnesota for the championship. We haven't won any championship to defend yet. Until we win these two games we shall not look for further honors."

Mr. Baird did not discuss what Michigan might do in case of a defeat either by Wisconsin or Chicago. The fact that he has the initiative in scheduling games and that he offered no objections to a Minnesota game when the proper time comes is considered a good sign.

Yost Says "Wait and See."

Recent statements by Coach Yost, who has replied to every question about a possible Thanksgiving game, whether east or west, with a curt "Wait until we win what we have now," goes to show how firm is Michigan's determination not to consider any games until after Nov. 12.

Michigan's practice again tonight was of the short order variety. Only two hours were spent on the field, one in signal practice, a half hour in hard blocking practice, then a half hour in scrimmage. Three of the men who will play Wisconsin were kept out of the scrimmage work.

Yost said the work was "fairly satisfactory" and he would put Tom Hammond, who has been at right half all this week, back at right tackle, where Graham and Ackerman have been working since Friday. He said also that Clark, the chunky little man of last year's reserves, now looked best for starting in the Wisconsin game at right half.

In the scrimmage the varsity ends were played by Weeks and Harry Hammond, thus once more crowding out Garrels, who has been Michigan's regular left end all season. Garrels was a strong man and the fact that Weeks has distanced him indicates that Michigan's end positions have been strengthened. Schultz was still at center, making it certain that he, Carter, and Schultz will be Michigan's center trio.

Yost's Men Hire an Island.

Janesville, Wis., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Michigan football team will arrive here Thursday night for two days of preliminary practice before the game with Wisconsin on Saturday. Final arrangements for the stay were completed today, and the team will practice on an island up the river.

Permit for Corbett-Nelson Bout.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—When the resolution granting the Hayes Valley Athletic club the professional boxing permit for the month of November came up before the board of supervisors at today's meeting objection was made to its adoption. The resolution, however, was adopted by a vote of 11 to 6. This insures the meeting between Corbett and Nelson, which was arranged a couple of weeks ago.

Mowatt May Fight Neary.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Badger Athletic club is negotiating with Tommy Mowatt of Chicago to fight Charlie Neary in Milwaukee on Nov. 11, and the deal may be closed in a few days.

Pugilistic Pointers.

Hugo Kelly and Mike Schreck are slated to box ten rounds at Indianapolis tonight.

Jack O'Keefe was in town yesterday, feeling a bit sore from the body punches he received from Billy Mellody, but looking none the worse for the grueling ten rounds he went through. Jack thinks he can fight better and stronger at 138 pounds and hereafter will not match above that weight. Mellody will remain in the west as long as he can do business in his line.

If Tommy Ryan and Jack Root can agree on a weight they will be staged as the main attraction before the Blue Island Athletic club within three weeks. The managers of the fighters met last night, but could not come to terms. Lou Houseman, who represented Jack Root, said his man would hold out for catch weights, to which Ferretti, Ryan's spokesman, could not agree until he heard from Tommy. The match will be made or called off today.

Last Night's Billiard Results.

At Foley's—Ballard [175] defeated Myers [140], 175 to 131. Tonight, Ballard and Jenkins.

At Mussey's—George [150] defeated Edwards [200], 150 to 137.

"FRAT" ORDER IS ENTERED

SCHOOL BOARD LOSES IN A SECOND TILT WITH COURTS.

Judge Hanecy Defines Decision Favoring Greek Letter Societies to Mean There Can Be No Discrimination by Authorities Between Secret and Other Organizations Among Pupils—Says Some of Principals and Teachers Think Schools Belong to Them.

Attorney Maher, representing the board of education, lost out yesterday in a second tilt with the court over the injunction issued by Judge Hanecy restraining the enforcement of rules discriminating against members of Greek letter fraternities in the schools. The occasion was the presentation to the court of the draft of the order as outlined on Monday by Judge Hanecy.

The board of education's attorney protested against the entry of the order as drafted, declaring it was broader than he had understood the court intended and practically compelled the recognition of secret societies by the school authorities. After reading the order submitted by Mr. Shepard, Judge Hanecy declared it was all right and ordered it entered by the clerk.

In reply to some of the objections of Attorney Maher, Judge Hanecy said: "My decision was that the board has not the right to discriminate with these children in any respect. If some of the school societies have the privilege of meeting in the public schools and of using the school names the board has no right to discriminate against any other society.

"Some of the school principals, some of the school teachers, or the school authorities think the schools belong to them instead of to the people whose servants they are. There isn't any copyright or patent on a school name. There is no right given to any teacher or principal to say who shall use the name."

The order as entered negatives the rule of the board of education throughout and provides that the body shall not deny to members of the Greek letter fraternities any of the rights or privileges granted other members of the schools. According to the interpretation of Judge Hanecy, if any athletic or literary societies of the schools are permitted to hold meetings in school premises the secret societies will also be legally entitled to the same privileges. The use of the names of the high schools cannot be denied them, and they will stand equally with every other organization of the school.

The board of education will take an appeal from the injunction order.

GOOD WORK AT HIGH SCHOOLS.

Football Practice of Hyde Park and Wendell Phillips Team Shows Marked Improvement.

The practice at Hyde Park and Wendell Phillips High schools yesterday showed marked improvement over any seen at the schools this season, and gives promise of stronger work in the remaining games. At Hyde Park especially, the hope of having a team which will hold its own in the three games to be played is strong and a squad of twenty-five husky youngsters was out.

Capt. Harris has his men picked for most of the positions and hopes with the new material he has to do well in the coming games. The new lineup will be: Left end, Stern or Way; left tackle, Harris or Fitzpatrick; left guard, Carruthers; center, Parker or Gum; right guard, Bisbee or Peck; right tackle, Favorite; right end, Tayler; quarter back, Rapps; right half, Sunderland; left half, O'Donnell or Favorite; full back, Carleton. The lineup will give the blue and white team an average of 150 pounds and enough experienced men to put them in a class with Englewood and North Division.

Friends of Richard Hoffman, the Hyde Park boy, who was elected to manage the football team this season but who was ousted because of being a "frat" member, attempted to start a movement to have him reinstated, but yesterday gave up the plans because of the decided stand Principal French took on the matter. Gilbert Keebler will continue in charge of the team.

Stormy Session for Yale Men.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Yale's football warriors had another stormy session today devoted to freeing themselves from fumbling. Clarence Weymouth, 1902, was the only new coacher present. He helped drill the backs. Hutchinson replaced Rockwell in all the open practice and may be sent into the Columbia game on Saturday ahead of Rockwell. Veeder has been played regularly at half back all the week and stands a chance to go into the big games on the first string. The varsity had a twenty-five minute half in secret and the fifteen minute open half was largely punting work.

MINORS COURTING TROUBLE.

Decision of National Commission Is Reversed by Lesser Magnates in Convention at New York.

New York, Oct. 25.—Representatives from every prominent baseball league in the United States except the two major organizations, assembled at the Victoria hotel today, where the fourth annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues was called to order by President P. T. Powers.

Among the matters acted upon by the board of arbitration, which were approved by the association when reported today, were the following: The decision of the national commission in the case of Player Roach was reversed and Roach was ordered back from the Portland (Ore.) club to the Butte (Mont.) team.

In the case of Player Dalrymple of the Oskaloosa (Ia.) team, who applied for his release therefrom, it was ruled that unless that club could show a contract with him, his release must be granted.

The Pittsburg National league team was ordered to show a contract or release Player Harry McLeer of the Omaha team, who was alleged to be reserved by the major league club.

American League to Meet Here.

After wading through the mass of official correspondence which had accumulated during his absence, President Johnson of the American league yesterday announced that there was nothing of public interest in it. He said the annual meeting of the league would be held in Chicago probably on Nov. 16. T. J. Loftus, the former Washington magnate, who was one of the Wisconsin trapping party, returned to his home in Dubuque last night. Secretary Fredericks of the White Stockings, another member of the party, left for Denver to spend the winter.

Lajoie to Manage Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 25.—It was officially announced tonight that Napoleon Lajoie had been appointed manager of the Cleveland American league team for the season of 1905, succeeding William R. Armour. Lajoie will also play second base for the team.

SHOW MOTIVE OF A WIFE MURDER.

Witnesses Declare O'Shea Was Insanely Jealous of Woman He Killed.

FEARED LOVE WAS LOST.

Threats to Slay Declared to Have Preceded Slaying and Suicide Attempt.

Evidence that Roland O'Shea was insanely jealous of his wife and that this led him to murder her yesterday was given at his trial by his young sister-in-law and other witnesses.

Adeline Hogenson, the 17 year old sister of the woman, swore that O'Shea once became enraged because his wife had spoken to a blind boy in Humboldt park. He also, she said, prevented the young woman from playing the piano at an entertainment where other men might compliment her, and always maintained a close watch over her.

Tells of Threats to Kill.

An earlier witness was Miss Jennie Custy, a friend of O'Shea and his wife. Extracts from her testimony were:

"Amy (Mrs. O'Shea) told her husband not to hug her in a park, after he had called her his 'little girl.' Then he said, 'If you're not, remember, I've got a revolver.'

"He told me he wanted my advice, and asked if Amy still loved him. He said Amy could have no one but him, and then he showed me a revolver. He told me he thought she was going back on him.

"O'Shea asked me if Mrs. Hogenson, Amy's mother, was angry at him, and said, 'If she's not, she soon will have cause to be.'"

Mrs. Hogenson was cross-examined and admitted her daughter had told O'Shea she was ashamed of him because he could not support a wife, but that he came to their house and "continued to keep company with Amy after the marriage."

Says "Nerve Was Not Shattered."

Policeman Robert E. Sturtz, called to the house in which the murder was committed, said he visited O'Shea at the county hospital, where he was recovering from bullet wounds inflicted in his attempt to commit suicide after the murder.

"Is my wife dead?" Sturtz says O'Shea asked him. "She isn't, is she?" When told she was dead, according to the policeman, O'Shea remarked:

"Did you ever think how much nerve it takes to shoot a human being in cold blood and then turn the gun on yourself?"

"It must require a good deal," the policeman says he answered, and O'Shea replied:

"I thought so myself once, but it didn't take much nerve, I have found. It didn't shatter mine any."

It was shown O'Shea had said he would buy a $3,000,000 monument for his wife, but letters written just before the crime were introduced to prove his sanity.

ADDITIONAL AUTO OWNERS GET PROTECTION OF COURT.

Judge Hanecy Adds Names to Injunction—Farson's Chauffeur Stopped—"School of Motoring" Opens Soon.

While seventeen more automobilists were taking advantage yesterday of John Farson's injunction, policemen were debating at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue whether to take one of Mr. Farson's machines and his chauffeur to the lockup.

Judge Hanecy added the seventeen names of complainants to the injunction restraining the city from interfering with owners of machines in parks or boulevards. Attorneys representing the west and south park boards stubbornly contested.

Chester Bangs, who claimed to be a chauffeur for Mr. Farson at that time, was trying to establish his identity to policemen on Jackson boulevard. He had no credentials and only after argument was he released.

Four automobilists who failed to display number tags were arrested at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue. They are:

Charles A. Kempton, chauffeur, 1251 Michigan avenue.

Dr. L. E. Miley, 1497 West Adams street.

Roy Dribler, chauffeur, 1420 Michigan avenue.

City Electrician Ellicott announced that policemen will be stationed downtown again today with instructions to arrest drivers of all unlicensed automobiles.

In line with its "educational" policy the Chicago Automobile club will establish a "school of motoring," in which prospective chauffeurs will be trained. The special end in view is the limiting of accidents.

F. E. Edwards was chosen "educational director." It is planned to open the school by Nov. 15 at 246 State street. Dr. J. B. Weintraub, E. Ralph Estet, and J. A. Ellis comprise the managing committee.

WOMAN EXPIRES FROM FRIGHT.

Presence of Armed Man in Her Room Causes Instant Death of San Antonio, Tex., Female.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Her heart paralyzed by fear at the sight of a strange man in her room with a drawn pistol in his hand, Mrs. Dolores Moran died in her bed last night. H. L. Thompson of Memphis had been drinking and went into the house in search of an imaginary antagonist. He is held on a charge of murder.

CIGARS UNITED

Half a Million People Daily

Buy Cigars from the UNITED CIGAR STORES CO.

EVEN if every cigar store in the land could afford to sell cigars as cheaply as they are sold in the United Stores, it would still be impossible to duplicate United uniformity. Only by controlling the outputs of factories that grow their own tobacco can any brand of cigars be insured against variation. To illustrate our achievement in this direction, we suggest for this week the

Havana-American Brand

Made in all sizes and shapes. Prices $8.00 to $16.00 per 100.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

PHYSICAL TESTS FOR EMPLOYES MAY BE REQUIRED.

American Association, Meeting Today, Expected to Adopt Rule That All Applicants for Places or Promotion Qualify as to Health — Rockdale, Joliet and Lockport Road Being Constructed—Eastern Grain Shipments Fall Off During Last Week.

The American Railway association, which meets today in Philadelphia, is expected to adopt a rule requiring all applicants for employment or promotion in train or station service to pass a thorough physical examination.

The Chicago and Northwestern and several other lines for many years have had such system in effect. Out of 443 men rejected on the Northwestern, 162 were dropped for heart and lung troubles, loss of fingers, etc. Of 8,397 men examined, including some who were in the service as firemen and brakemen and who desired promotion, 1,061 were rejected, a percentage of 12.6. Color blindness is a strong reason for this action.

May Increase Freight Car Charge.

Another important question to be considered will be per diem charge on freight cars. Advocates of an increase from 20 to 30 cents are numerous. Cars constantly are increasing in value and capacity, and therefore an increase in the exchange rate is wanted.

More equitable rates for different classes of cars will be urged and the members will aid in securing the adoption of per diem rates for private cars. "Payment by railroads for the use of shippers' cars or cars used as a means of giving shippers a benefit is held practically to be rate cutting.

Building Road to Lockport.

The Rockdale, Joliet and Lockport railway, which recently was incorporated at Springfield, is being constructed. All the right of way has been secured. Contracts for the grading have been awarded to a Kansas City concern.

Col. Fred Bennett of Joliet is president of the new road, which is capitalized for $100,000. It is understood the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad is back of the enterprise and will furnish all the money needed.

Grain Shipments Fall Off.

Grain, flour, and provison shipments last week by the all rail lines from Chicago to the east were disappointing. There was a large decrease in flour shipments and a material loss in grain and provision. It is held, however, that the increase in merchandise and general traffic more than offsets the decrease. If the expected increase in traffic materializes a car famine on some of the leading lines is feared.

The east bound shipments were:

Other News of Railroads.

The interstate commerce commission has fixed Nov. 14 as the date for hearing in Chicago three cases involving rates on live stock from the west to Chicago and terminal points on the Mississippi river. Two of the cases, including the terminal charge suit, were instituted by the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas, and the commissioners have taken much evidence in them. The third was begun by the commission and involves rates from the southwestern grazing section to northern points.

At a conference in Chicago yesterday between officials of western railroads and a committee of jobbers from Kansas City the latter complained of the course of the roads in practically giving Wichita and other interior Kansas jobbing points the same rate on sugar as they make to Missouri river points. The officials will meet today to decide the matter.

The general offices of the Grand Trunk railway in Montreal issued a denial of the story that Vice President Charles M. Hays would return to the Wabash, to succeed President Ramsey. It is stated he will resign only as president of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Vandalia Receivership Ended.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 25.—Judge Francis Baker of the United States Circuit court today handed down an order formally dissolving the receivership of the Vandalia railroad.

CONGRESS OF BUSINESS MEN BEGINS WORK IN ST. LOUIS.

Alexander H. Revell of Chicago in Address Urges Single Six Year Term for President.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Transmississippi congress assembled here today for a session which will last through Saturday. It is the purpose to discuss irrigation, good roads, river improvement, interstate commerce laws, and other subjects of direct interest to business men. R. C. Kerens of St. Louis, who is president of the congress, delivered a brief address, outlining the purposes of the meeting, and the several state vice presidents followed.

The principal speech of the day was delivered by Alexander H. Revell of Chicago, who spoke on "A Single Six Year Presidential Term."

Mr. Revell said the National Business league had inaugurated a movement to secure an amendment to the constitution making the term of the president six years and making a president ineligible to reelection.

"As things are now," said Mr. Revell, "there is in fact only about three years of settled conditions, and many would acknowledge only two years. The fourth year is given up to the campaign. In fact, it is only during the first two years of the presidential term that business, and that word does not mean the great capitalists only, can feel that conditions are settled."

The speaker said the tendency to condemn the administration by the party not in power was growing with each succeeding election, and zealous efforts were made to discredit whatever party was in power.

"The effect of this condition of things," he said, "is to present to the business man a situation in which two distinctly opposite policies are proposed. He can make no calculations for the future, and he must hold in abeyance many of his enterprises, and curtail his business, until he finds out what is going to be done; what the result of the election will be."

A six year term, Mr. Revell said, would obviate much of this uncertainty and would bring the policy of any party in office beyond the experimental stage.

Regarding the plan to limit a president to one term only he said:

"By making the president ineligible to succeed himself he would be enabled to leave politics behind when he took the oath of office. He could direct his efforts to being a good president. The record of a president would then merit careful comparison."

Under the present system, he said, the president nearly always is a candidate for reelection and his conduct in office is always more or less influenced by political influences and by politicians.

ILLINOIS GAME LAW IS VALID.

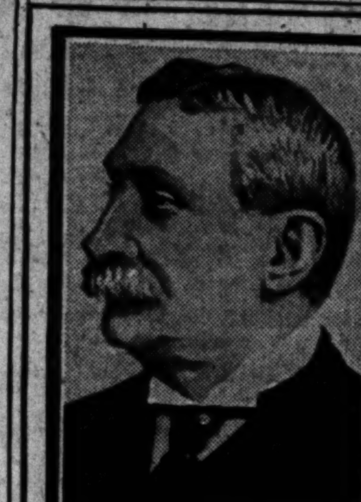

Supreme Court Denies Appeal of Nonresident Who Claimed Statute Discriminated Against Him.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Illinois game law passed by the legislature two years ago was affirmed in a decision handed down by the Supreme court today in the suit of Henry J. Cummings of St. Louis against the people. Cummings was arrested and fined $25 on the charge of hunting upon a Greene county game preserve without having a nonresident hunter's license. An appeal was taken on the ground that the law discriminated between resident and nonresident land owners. The court denied the appeal, holding the law was not invalid because it provides greater restrictions and severer penalties against nonresidents than against residents.

N. Y. Postmaster, Who Is Dead.

CORNELIUS VAN COTT

New York, Oct. 25.—Cornelius Van Cott, postmaster of New York City, died suddenly this afternoon of heart failure, following an attack of acute indigestion. He was taken ill yesterday afternoon at his office in the federal building. This noon he appeared much better. Shortly after the patient had a sinking spell and was taken to his home. He died at 3:25 o'clock.

Mr. Van Cott had been a vigorous man, but of late he has been subjected to an unusual amount of trouble, and this is believed to have undermined his health. He assisted in the establishment of a commercial agency and signed notes to a large amount. The concern failed and Mr. Van Cott was called upon to pay over $23,000, which took practically the savings of his lifetime. About this time an investigation of the New York postoffice was undertaken by the Washington officials, but the integrity of the postmaster was not impugned. Notwithstanding the favorable outcome, he worried much over the affair.

The recent arrest of his son, Richard Van Cott, charged with colonizing, was a severe blow to the postmaster.

Postmaster Van Cott was born in this city Feb. 12, 1838. He commenced life as a printer. Mr. Van Cott's first political appointment was that of deputy inspector in the custom house. In 1874 he was made fire commissioner by Mayor Havemeyer and was reappointed in 1881. He was postmaster of New York under President Harrison and was appointed again by President McKinley in 1897.

MAKES OFFER TO PURCHASE CHICAGO GENERAL RAILWAY.

W. C. Wood Bids for All the Bonds, Starting Rumors of Consolidation Plans—Franchise Decision Soon.

Some surprise was expressed in traction circles yesterday when William C. Wood, in control of the Southern railway company, made an offer to purchase the bonds of the Chicago General railway, together with those of the West and South Town company, the original corporation.

The offer was for Chicago General bonds 10 per cent in cash or 15 in bonds of the Southern company, and for the underlying company 50 per cent in cash or 85 in the Southern bonds. Of the original company's issue there are $290,000 bonds outstanding and $1,437,500 of the Chicago General company's. If cash were paid it would take $288,750 to carry through the deal.

All sorts of stories were at once put in circulation as to the plan back of the Wood offer, but Mr. Wood, who is interested in West Pullman real estate, refused to deny or confirm any of them last evening. The Southern railway company, which he controls, has only a paper existence.

Rumors of Mergers.

One rumor which was started was that a plan was on foot to unite the Chicago General, the Electric Traction, and the Calumet Electric, all now in the hands of receivers, and, by the aid of the first named, carry passengers as far north as Twenty-second street.

Another had it that the Chicago City was contemplating absorbing the Chicago General at least, and perhaps the other two companies. This is entirely unlikely, as should the south side company take in the companies to the south it would, under the decision in the transfer case, have to bring their passengers up to the heart of the city without charge. If it had the Chicago General it would have to give transfers at Twenty-second and State streets and Wabash avenue, a thing it has steadily refused to do.

The guess which receives the most credence is that a plan is on foot to use the Chicago General in connection with the Joliet or some other of the outside interurban trolley lines. These lines have suffered by poor connections inside the city limits.

Will Decide Franchise Dispute.

Judge Grosscup took up the briefs of the city and the receivers for the Union Traction company as to the Adams street line controversy during the day and it is understood he will be ready to give a decision this week, probably on Friday. The matter in dispute is whether the franchises of the Chicago Passenger railway expired last June or have two more years to run.

BURBANK RULING IS DEFERRED.

Attorneys of Mrs. Vasquez Refuse to Waive Question of Jurisdiction as Suggested by Court.

Leavenworth, Kas., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Burbank-Vasquez marriage annullment suit was brought up today, when Judge Gillpatrick in passing on the motion to postpone said that he would do so and in compliance with the request of Gen. Wade appoint a commissioner to visit the Philippines to investigate, provided the question of jurisdiction to try the case in his court was waived by the defense. Attorneys for Mrs. Vasquez refused to waive jurisdiction, so definite action again was deferred. The special commissioner will probably be decided on and appointed Thursday.

WANT VALUATION CUT DOWN.

Several Big Enterprises Appear Before Equalization Committees to Demand Lower Assessment.

Springfield, Ill, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Representatives of the Western Warehouse company and the United Telegraph and Telephone company were before the capital stock commission of the board of equalization protesting that the assessment on capital stock of their companies was too high.

The railroad commission heard representatives of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, the Burlington, the Big Four, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, the St. Paul, and the Santa Fé roads.

All of the counties, with the single exception of Vermilion, sent in their assessments.

WINDOW GLASS MEN AGREE.

Jobbers and Manufacturers Reach Basis of Organization by Which Mutual Rights Will Be Protected.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 25.—A joint meeting of manufacturers and jobbers in window glass was held at the Hotel Henry today at which an agreement was reached that will prevent the manufacturer from selling direct to the consumer and binds the jobber to buy only from manufacturers who will protect the trade in the territory covered by jobbing houses.

LARGE BUSINESS IN U. P.

STOCK SELLS AT 112 IN NEW YORK MARKET.

Aggregate Transfers of Day 360,800, Greatest Record in That Property Since April 24, 1901, or Any Securities Since April 15, 1902—Near Settlement of Northern Securities Case One Deduction from This Activity.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—There were three items of interest in the stock market today that were in fact breakers of recent records. Union Pacific sold as high as 112, a net gain of 3½ points over its high mark of the day before. The aggregate dealings in Union Pacific were 360,800 shares, the greatest record made by that stock since April 24, 1901, and by any since April 15, 1902, when 864,500 shares of Southern railway were dealt in.

One theory of the activity in Union Pacific and one credited in many quarters because of certain activity in Northern Securities, is that the Northern Securities case is about to be settled. This has not been confirmed. Another story has it that the Great Northern will get the Burlington, and the Union Pacific the Northern Pacific. Still another story is that the Union Pacific railway has secured an option on the Chicago Great Western railway property. President Stickney at St. Paul declared there was nothing to say for publication.

The total dealings on the exchange of all stocks was the largest since May 9, 1901, when 3,081,700 shares were sold.

The market was subjected to enormous profit taking throughout the day, and the result was constant irregularity and occasional weakness and prices crumbled rapidly. The day's most considerable gains were wiped out with a rush and Union Pacific's net gain proved small. Losses were the rule, running to between 1 and 2 points and even more in many cases. The closing was decidedly weak and without recovery.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $11,047,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Money on call steady, 1¾@2 per cent; closing bid 1½, offered at 2. Time loans easy and dull; sixty days, 3 per cent; ninety days and six months, 3¼. Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4@5 per cent. Sterling exchange firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at 486.25@486.60 for demand and at 483.80@483.85 for sixty day bills. Posted rates, 484½ and 487. Commercial bills, 483⅜@483¾. Bar silver, 58¼. Mexican dollars, 46¼. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds firm.

UNION OF INSURED TO ACT.

Policyholders' Organization Says It Is in Position to Be Adviser on Conflagration Hazard.

The Policyholders' Union of Chicago is in correspondence with all the cities in which the Western Union expects to add a charge for the conflagration hazard, stating it is in a position to act as expert adviser for municipalities and bodies of business men. The plan of this organization is to be the medium between municipalities and commercial bodies and the insurance companies. The demands of the companies will be taken up and investigated to ascertain whether they are just and can be complied with reasonably. The union believes in the reduction of the conflagration hazard, but intends to make investigations by its own experts, to find whether the methods suggested by the companies are the most practicable.

Companies have received notice from the auditor of Nebraska that hereafter no reinsurance can be done in unadmitted companies. The ruling is made after an opinion from the attorney general that the resident agent's law covers this point. This statute states that all policies issued on property in the state, whether direct or otherwise, must be signed by a resident agent. The insurance managers are inclined to think this is a far fetched ruling, as the resident agent's law is said to be merely to protect the local agents from the operations of outside companies. Companies doing business in Nebraska have been in the habit of reinsuring in unadmitted companies. It may be decided to contest the ruling in court.

The annual meeting of the electrical committee of the Underwriters' National Electric association will be held in the rooms of the New York board on Dec. 7. Reports of committees and suggestions for changes in the national electric code will be the features of the meeting. H. C. Eddy of Chicago is president of the association.

President J. J. Henry of the Newark Fire, or Secretary C. M. Henry, is expected to arrive in Chicago this week to arrange for the appointment of special agents to cover the western field.

President T. E. Gallagher of the Fire Underwriters' Association of the Northwest has reappointed the members of the library committee who served last year with W. L. King of the Providence Washington as chairman.

Secretary Royce of the Hartford Fire and F. J. Devlin of San Francisco, Pacific coast manager of the Atlas, are in Chicago.

The chief inspector of the Hartford Steam Boiler Insurance company accounts for a majority of the railway accidents this year by attributing them to human fallibility. He shows by statistics that 68 per cent are due to the mental or physical state of the human agent. In detail he finds that 28 per cent were due to mistakes in receiving or giving signals, or in writing or reading orders; 24 per cent were "forgot to carry out orders"; 8 per cent due to confusion, properly classified as mistakes, but separated here, because attributed to excitement; 8 per cent due to the agents being physically incapacitated; 4 per cent to malice; 12 per cent to the elements; and 16 per cent to defective equipment.

Owing to rebating and rate cutting done at Grafton, W. Va., for some time the West Virginia Fire Underwriters' association has declared rates suspended on all risks in the city of Grafton. The fight promises to be a long and spirited one.

NEWS NOTES FROM NEW YORK.

Patent Stone for Building Material in Southwest Leads to an Unfavorable Report.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Increasing use of "patent stone" for building material in the southwest has led the Kansas Fire Prevention association to make reports on its fire resisting qualities. The facts were gathered from the recent fire at Geary, Okla.

The patent stone building burned was constructed of blocks thirty inches long, ten inches wide, and nine inches high. Each block has two hollow spaces four by ten inches. Eye witnesses state that as soon as the roof got to burning well the walls commenced to bulge and the blocks fell apart with reports like pistol shots, one-half of the blocks going one way and the other half the other. Towards the rear was a portion of wall about ten feet high on the south side and the entire rear wall up to the second story was left standing. However, the stone in every block, including those next the ground as well as those higher up, were completely disintegrated. A portion of the wall still standing was badly cracked and rendered absolutely worthless.

Not a drop of water was thrown on this building at any time. The owner of the building stated that he found it necessary to coat the entire outside of the patent stone with cement, as the stone absorbed so much water that the paper and inside finish would peel off after a heavy rain. It is stated that the blocks used were constructed of one part Portland cement and five parts pebbly sand. The inspector gives his conclusion as to the fire retarding qualities of this stone that a building of this construction should be put in the same class with "brick veneer."

The arbitration committee of the New York Fire Insurance exchange rules that in the matter of fines for violations members are liable upon the basis of insurance written by them, and may not reduce the same by taking credit for reinsurance. A member who accepts business is responsible for its being in accordance with the rules and rates, and for any penalties that may result from violations.

The Western Railway underwriters will retire Dec. 1 from the agency of Frank and Dubois. These companies are the German-American, National of Hartford, and the Springfield. The Western underwriters did no direct business through Frank and Dubois, only being intended as reinsurers of the Liverpool and London and Globe and Home on eastern railroads. In Chicago these issue direct policies through the central office, and while no plan has been definitely fixed it is believed some such idea may be carried out in the east.

Goldstein & Celler will adjust on behalf of the assured the loss on the American Lead Pencil company at West Lewisburg, Tenn., by fire Oct. 24. The insurance was as follows:

Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—New officers nominated for the Boston board of fire underwriters, to be elected next month, are:

President—George S. Fishel.
Secretary and treasurer—Osborn Howes.
Executive committee—Arthur W. Pope, Herbert Coolidge, and Frederick W. Porter.

The board accepted the report of the tariff committee for a new rating on the lumber yards based on the condition and surroundings of each individual risk. It was laid on the table indefinitely. The report of the tariff committee is for a new rule for the rating of nonhazardous minimum rated risks where there are hazardous exposures, adding from 15 to 50 per cent exposing risk to the rate on nonhazardous property.

HAGUE TREATY NOTES SENT OUT

President Roosevelt Invites All Signatory Powers to Meet Again to Strengthen Convention.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—Acting Secretary of State Adee today dispatched notes from the president of the United States to the signatory powers of the original Hague treaty asking them to come together again for the purpose of broadening and strengthening the original convention and especially to consider means to further ameliorate the horrors of modern warfare and to conserve and extend the rights of neutral commerce on the high seas.

SHOWS WOMAN'S CLUBS A FIELD

Supt. Bicknell Advises Them to Take Up Work of Preventing Misdirected Charity.

At the meeting of the Chicago South Side Woman's club yesterday Supt. Bicknell of the bureau of charities urged women's clubs to take up the work of preventing misdirected charity. He declared that organized women can be a tremendous influence toward pointing out the right way of extending the hand of charity. He urged the club women to appoint committees to visit the various charitable institutions.

MRS. LONGSTREET GIVEN OFFICE

Widow of General Is Appointed by President Roosevelt to Postoffice in Gainesville, Ga.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt today directed the appointment of Mrs. James Longstreet to be postmaster at Gainesville, Ga., to succeed Col. Henry P. Farrow, removed, for not being a resident of the community in which the postoffice is situated. Mrs. Longstreet is the widow of Gen. James Longstreet.

FORGET THE WAR SCARE.

WHEAT MARKET TURNS ON POOR FLOUR DEMAND.

Sharp Break of Cent and a Half Here on General Liquidation Forced by Less Bullish Attitude of Millers and Threat to Close Some of the Minneapolis Mills—Corn Stronger on Patten Buying and Urgent Shipping Demand.

With the Liverpool wheat market closing unchanged from the day before to only ⅛d higher, there seemed absolutely no excuse for further excitement on the part of traders in this country over the possibility of serious complications between England and Russia.

Lacking a war motive the market turned on some factors of the domestic situation which appeared bearish, notably decided weakness in the Minneapolis market, and a general tale of woe from the Minneapolis millers of a slack flour demand, confirming reports which have been coming for several days of a dull flour trade in this section and in the southeast.

Shorts were well covered on the sharp bulge of the day before and were inclined to put out their lines again rather than to buy more.

Local traders bought at intervals on an advance of 1d in London prices and on strength in the neighboring corn pit, but the best they could do was to force a rally from an early dip of ½c and bull effort was exhausted in getting the market back to the level of the previous close. Local, St. Louis, and northwestern bulls began selling, the reported sale of 1,500,000 bu May wheat in Minneapolis by the leading long interest there had a bearish effect in spite of the understanding the line was taken by one of the big millers. This liquidation broke prices to a point where stop loss selling came into play and altogether there was a drop of 1½c, with the close weak and only ⅛c above the bottom figure. December sold from $1.16 to $1.14⅝, closing at $1.14⅞ bid. The May range was from $1.14⅝ to $1.13¼-⅝, the close at $1.13⅝ bid.

Northwestern markets were a shade weaker, Minneapolis losing 1½c to 1⅝c, and Duluth 1½c. Southwestern markets were relatively firm, St. Louis off ⅝c to 1c, and Kansas City 1⅛c to 1¼c.

Mills to Close Down.

The reports from Minneapolis of a poor flour demand were emphasized by the assertion that two or three more of the mills would close down in a few days if the demand did not improve. Cash prices were as weak everywhere as the futures. Minneapolis said millers were out of the market there except for No. 1 northern. Kansas City was off 1c to 1½c. In this market the milling demand was slower than in days, millers out of the market or but indifferent buyers, and prices off with the futures to 2c lower, sales only 20,000 bu.

There was clearing weather in the northwest, favorable for movement. Receipts at terminal markets there were 867 cars, compared with 1,062 cars the previous week and 819 a year ago. Southwestern receipts fell off, bringing the total at primary points down to 1,115,000 bu, compared with 1,229,000 bu a year ago. There was no wheat cleared for export and the flour clearances were small, equal to 23,000 bu wheat. Toledo reported only 125,000 bu No. 2 red left in stock there. Reports on the growing crop in Ohio and Indiana from agents sent out by local grain firms said conditions were perfect, with no indications of insect damage anywhere. Bradstreet's reported an increase in world's stocks of 3,539,000 bu for the week, compared with one of 4,474,000 bu the corresponding week last year. Paris was weak, 1c to 1½c lower. The Liverpool market was affected by large arrivals of Indian wheat as an offset to nervousness over the political situation. There was moderate open buying of May by Armour on an early dip, but selling by commission houses, Logan-Bryan, and others, on the consequent upturn, which traders thought might be for the same interest. Pit scalpers bought for a reaction, but on the bulge heavy selling by brokers, supposed to be for Pringle, and by other brokers for Spencer, other St. Louis selling through Bennett, and northwestern selling through Daggett forced prices steadily lower. Rankin sold a line on the break, which was taken by Spencer and Armour.

Cash Corn Is Strong.

Speculative support of May corn credited to Patten and decided strength in cash corn on a sharper eastern demand and scarcity of supplies forced an advance of ½@⅝c in futures, with the close ⅝c higher for the day at 49¼c for December and 46c sellers for May. Cash prices were strong to 1c higher, the highest premium on the crop paid for No. 2 corn, 6⅝c over December c. i. f. Buffalo, with total sales of 350,000 bu, charters for which were taken. There was speculative support also on the continued refusal of the country to sell new corn on the present price basis and the theory the movement will be late in consequence. Country acceptances, however, were a little larger than they have been, though still small. There were 150 cars inspected in and 72 estimated for today, while total primary receipts were only 291,000 bu, compared with 701,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were 108,000 bu. Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 1,169,000 bu in stocks east of the Rockies for the week. Some disappointing husking returns were reported from Pekin, Ill., 10 per cent under expectations. The clear, cold weather encouraged some selling on the advance. Liverpool was ⅝-½d higher for futures and ½d for spot. On the early break to 45½c sellers in May there was buying by Pringle, Brosseau, Wagner, and McReynolds. Armour took a line of 500,000 bu, and there was buying on a still larger scale, supposed to be for Patten. On the advance to 46⅛c there was liberal commission selling through Updike, Pringle-Fitch-Rankin, Logan-Bryan, Knight-Donnelley, and Barrell.

Rally in Oats Prices.

Oats ruled firm, the May up ⅜c at best to 31⅝c and closing ¼c higher for the day, on the corn strength and the falling off in country movement, acceptances on bids through this state and Iowa being practically nothing. Cash market was also strong, steady to ½c higher, with shipping sales of 150,000 bu. Bradstreet's report of a decrease of 247,000 bu in stocks east of the Rockies showed that the increase in the official visible supply was at the expense of second hand stocks elsewhere. Receipts were 172 cars and 65 cars estimated for today. Private houses turned out 125,000 bu standards. Clearances were 3,000 bu, export sales at the seaboard, 50,000 bu. Lightness of speculative offerings helped the advance, to which buying by the Northern Grain company, Press, and Creighton contributed.

Lower Market for Provisions.

Provisions were dull and weak. The close showed losses of 15@22½c for pork, 17½@20c for lard, and 12½c for the active futures in ribs. October ribs closed unchanged. Encouraged by liberal receipts of hogs and 5@10c decline in prices at the yards, local traders were disposed to play for a break, and scattered liquidation by smaller holders aided them in bringing about the result desired. The demand was poor throughout, Logan & Bryan being the only firm at any time active on the buying side. Cash trade was only moderate. Shipments of meats were 1,907,840 lbs, against 3,191,000 lbs a year ago. Lard shipments 1,405,000 lbs, compared with 1,770,000 lbs last year.

Rye was steady. Trade light. October nominally 78½c. December sold at 79c and May at 81c. Cash No. 2 sold f. o. b. at 82@83c.

Barley was dull and unchanged. Some screenings sold at 30c, and malting at 39@40c for poor up to 50@52c for fancy.

Timothy seed was steady, with more trade in futures. January sold at $2.70 in exchange for March at $2.80. The latter sold regularly at $2.80. Cash lots sold at $2.35@2.50.

Clover was quiet. Cash lots were uneven in quality and sold at $7.00@12.00.

Flaxseed was easy to ½c lower. Trade dull. Cash No. 1 northwestern salable at $1.15½, October $1.09 bid, and December salable at $1.12. Local receipts 4 cars. Minneapolis had 42 cars and Duluth 168 cars.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

The cash wheat market was weak and the receipts small, but the demand inadequate to take care of them except at declines. Country millers, who have been acting for several days as though they had all the wheat bought they could take care of, were asking to have shipments delayed rather than buying more. One local mill was still out of the market, the other buying indifferently. Choice red winter, which has been showing most strength on the recent advance, was ½c to 1c easier relative to the futures. Springs were unchanged relatively to 2c easier on some grades. Sales were about 20,000 bu in scattered lots. Shipping demand for corn was sharp, local holders finding no difficulty in selling anything they offered, while eastern buyers, instead of making bids, were as a rule asking for offers. Stocks of old No. 3 corn are so small the demand on the No. 2 corn in store is increasing, several lots being taken by eastern industries at the highest premium of the crop, 6⅝c over December c. i. f. Buffalo. Sales included 250,000 bu No. 2 and 95,000 bu No. 3 yellow, a total of 345,000 bu. Some No. 2 corn went early at 3½c over December in store, but later brought 3⅝c premium, with that price bid for more. In the sample market cash prices were steady to 1c higher. There was a fair shipping demand for oats, sales 150,000 bu white clipped in scattered lots, prices steady to ½c higher.

Minneapolis began sending the sort of news concerning the flour demand which had been reported for several days by local millers and from other centers that buyers were dropping out of the market and trade was slack. The information was added that if the demand did not soon pick up several more of the Minneapolis mills would close down. This sort of an announcement has occasionally in times past operated to bring in the improved flour demand the millers wanted, making it unnecessary for them to carry out their threat to close their mills. But the speculative market there was weak enough to emphasize the reported dullness in the flour demand, and when it was announced the biggest bulls in that market, the Watson interest, had sold 1,500,000 bu May, longs in this market were more than ever disposed to take what profits remained to them. The buying in Minneapolis, however, was said to be good, Woodworth taking most of the Watson line, supposedly for Pillsbury account.

A message from Grand Forks, N. D., said: "Around Larimore, thirty miles west of here, 60 per cent of thrashing to do yet. They need two weeks of good weather, and it doesn't look favorable just at present. We have had snow up here on Oct. 26 that staid by us all winter, and it is snowing hard now." A Langdon, N. D. wire said: "Only one-third of the wheat has been thrashed in this vicinity, and continuous rains have kept farmers from fields. The grade will be lowered to a great extent, and unless we get fair weather soon much of the wheat will not be thrashed at all."

At the request of the lessees, Bryant & Co., the directors declared the City elevator and the Galena elevator irregular. Each house has a capacity of about 1,000,000 bu, but there is little grain in either at the present time. There are 12,752 bu No. 4 spring wheat, 17,995 bu No. 2 white corn, and 6,636 bu No. 2 rye in the City and 72,006 bu No. 2 white corn and 13,883 bu No. 2 rye in the Galena. The City elevator property, which is at Fourteenth and Lumber streets, may be bought by the drainage canal trustees in carrying out their plans to widen the river.

The principal increases in wheat stocks for the week reported by Bradstreet's at points not covered by the official visible supply statement were: Northwest interior elevators, 800,000 bu; Manitoba, 400,000 bu; Depot Harbor, 325,000 bu; Louisville, 173,000 bu; Rochester, 90,000 bu; Milwaukee, 80,000 bu. Decreases: Chicago private elevators, 174,000 bu; Chattanooga, 50,000 bu.

As to corn in central Illinois, a Peoria message to Bartlett-Frazier said: "Corn around Morton, Tazewell county, about twelve miles east of here, shows fifty bu and upwards and finest quality and condition for several years. Shelling will be general in two weeks with favorable weather. The frost Saturday night did lots of good."

R. W. Rathborne, for forty years board of trade flour inspector, has sent in his resignation to the directors, it is said, because of poor health, having been confined to his bed for two months. His resignation was referred to the flour inspection committee.

Messages from Pekin, Ill., said husking returns on corn in that section, while meager, generally indicated a falling off from expectations of about 10 per cent.

A Kansas grain dealer estimates 66 per cent of the wheat crop in that state has been marketed and 75 to 80 per cent of the crop in Oklahoma.

Duluth reported cash sales of 85,000 bu wheat to go east.

Charters were made for 350,000 bu corn at 1¼c to Buffalo.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Buying has not visibly improved, but the firmness of the situation is becoming more accentuated every day. Jobbers are doing an indifferent trade.

Metals—Spot tin in London quoted at £130 12s 6d; futures at £129 15s. Locally the market was a little easier in London, some quarters. Copper—A little irregular in London, spot closing at £60 11s 3d, and futures a shade higher at £60 17s 6d. Locally the market was firm. Lake, $13.25@13.50; electrolytic, $13.12½@13.37½, and casting, $13.00@13.12½. Lead was unchanged at £12 7s 6d in London. Locally prices ranged from $4.20 to $4.42½. Spelter was unchanged at $5.30@5.35 in New York, but was a little higher in London, where it closed at £23 7s 6d. Iron closed at 50s 7d in Glasgow, and at 44s 1½d in Middlesboro. Locally iron is steady.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Cattle Prices Steady on Poor Quality—Hogs Sell at Decline—Sheep and Lambs Higher.

Receipts of live stock at the stockyards on Tuesday were 12,000 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 22,000 sheep. Quality of cattle was poor, and there was nothing offered to attract buyers strongly. The market was slow and dull, but prices were about steady. The hog market took a bad turn, and most of the sales had to be made at 10@20c decline from Monday. The top was $5.50. Sheep and lambs sold readily, and the best were quoted 10c higher.

PACKERS' PURCHASES.

Armour	3,300	S. & S.	1,000
Anglo-American	2,500	Butchers	1,000
Boyd & Lunham	750	Shippers	3,500

Cattle.

There was not a strong demand for any kind of cattle. Good ones were scarce and buyers said they did not want anything else. Quotations:

Good to prime steers	$5.75@7.00
Poor to medium	3.50@5.40
Stockers and feeders	2.25@3.85
Cows	1.50@4.50
Heifers	2.00@4.75

Bulls	2.00@4.40
Calves	3.00@7.00
Texas fed steers	4.00@5.00
Western steers	3.25@5.25

Hogs.

The hog market took a peculiar turn. At the start prospects were for a steady market, but this motion did not last long, for packers soon showed their hand, and they were not long in forcing a decline of 5@10c, and late in the day the market was 10@20c lower. The top was $5.50. Quotations:

Mixed and butchers'	$5.00@5.50
Good to choice heavy	5.10@5.50
Rough heavy	4.70@5.10
Light	4.85@5.30
Bulk of sales	5.00@5.35

Sheep.

The supply of sheep was again light and the demand good. This was a favorable combination, for the market took on an active tone and prices for the good sheep and lambs were fully 10c higher. Feeders took everything the packers did not want. Quotations:

Good to choice wethers	$3.75@4.50
Fair to choice mixed	3.25@3.70
Native lambs	4.00@6.25
Western sheep	3.00@4.25
Western lambs	4.25@5.90

RISE IN TELEPHONE STOCK

SHARES SHOW ADVANCE OF 14 1-2 POINTS IN WEEK.

Friends of the Company Say They Feel Comfortable Over Franchise Matters—Prices of Other Local Stocks Generally Steady—Engagement of $1,250,000 Gold for Export Affords a Matter for Reflection—Gain in Union Pacific Attracts Comment.

Chicago Telephone stock sold yesterday at 142-½. Last week it sold at 128, and a few months ago it sold at 115. The management of the company appears to feel that when its franchises expire within a few years it will be able to meet the situation.

The spirit of the city council in the matter of compensation for new franchises makes it apparent that if the company must deal with that body the compensation will be much in excess of that now paid. However, in one of the annual reports the president referred to this matter of expiring franchises, and made the point that the company expected it would be fairly dealt with when the time arrived to ask for a renewal. The dividend rate is now 10 per cent, and the business is growing fast.

There is the usual number of rumors, among them that the telephone franchise of the Illinois Tunnel company may be acquired or that the Cosmopolitan Electric, whose charter is extremely broad, may be purchased.

Prices of other securities were again generally steady. The Boxboard shares were active, but without feature otherwise.

Union Traction common sold up to 9-½. The theory in some quarters was that Judge Grosscup's decision in the matter of depreciation was favorable to the Union company. Some American Radiator preferred sold at 122-½.

South Side L bonds were again active, and the price held steadily at 103. Swift & Co. 5s sold at 102-½.

Gold Engaged for Export.

The engagement of $1,250,000 gold for export to Paris gave the market something to think about, though the reports were all to the effect that the prospective shipment was without significance. It was asserted that inducements had been offered by the Bank of France, it agreeing to allow the exporters seven days' interest on the gold or from date of shipment to its arrival in Paris. The Bank of Germany is also said to be bidding urgently for gold and is offering New York bankers ten days' interest on their consignments.

Recently the Bank of Germany raised its minimum rate in order to attract gold to that center. Paris, it will be remembered, made a large accumulation last spring, getting it from the United States. The present war situation naturally suggests the desirability of a gold supply at European centers.

Money in New York has ruled extremely easy. A Chicago commission house has been able to negotiate six months' loans at 3-¾ per cent and four months at 3-½ per cent. Call money is abundant at 2 per cent, and the loans are not generally disturbed.

Rise in Union Pacific.

Local people attributed the rise in Union Pacific yesterday to the probable outcome of the Northern Securities settlement. But the street has also another story, to the effect that the dividend rate would be raised from 4 per cent to either 5 or 6 per cent. This report was not credited in well informed quarters. But with the property earning over 11 per cent on the common stock the equity exists whether the dividend rate be increased at this time or not.

Financial Notes.

Since last Friday the New York subtreasury has gained $1,146,000 from the banks. It was a debtor at the clearing house yesterday morning to the extent of $365,911.

The American Sugar Refining company and B. H. Howell, Sons & Co. have advanced the price of refined sugars 5 points, to the basis of 4.90c net, less 1 per cent cash, for granulated in barrels.

August Earnings.

The New York Financial Chronicle's August compilation of railroad earnings shows that net for 100 roads fell away 5.51 per cent, or $2,254,781, compared with the corresponding month of last year. Gross earnings of the same roads increased $155,892. Commenting upon these figures the Chronicle says:

"As is well known there were some favorable conditions during the month. The grain movement in the west was larger, except at some of the spring wheat points, the high prices prevailing having stimulated shipments to market. The world's fair at St. Louis was also an advantage to a good many roads in furnishing increased passenger traffic. Besides all this, the month had an extra working day, August, 1904, having contained only four Sundays, as against five in 1903.

"The fact that the addition to gross earnings has been comparatively trifling is deprived of much of its significance by the circumstance that comparison is with figures in 1903, which had shown gains of extraordinary magnitude, so that considering the trade conditions that have prevailed the roads must be regarded as having done remarkably well in having maintained the high level of earnings reached at that time."

Dividends Declared.

The United States Steel corporation has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on its preferred stock, payable Nov. 30.

Directors of the National Carbon company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock, payable Nov. 15. Books close Nov. 5 and open Nov. 16.

STEEL FIGURES NOT HIGH.

Quarterly Statement Issued at Directors' Meeting in New York Disappoints Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The main feature of the United States Steel corporation directors meeting this afternoon was the statement issued of the net earnings of the September quarter of $18,773,932. Wall street had expected that at least $19,000,000 would be shown for that period. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent was declared on preferred stock. The unfilled orders on hand on Sept. 30 were 3,027,436 tons. Both in the matter of revenues and that of business on hand the figures are smaller than those of the preceding quarter.

Steel stocks, which were buoyant early in the day, reacted sharply just before the closing of the market. Preferred declined 2 points from the top figures. The surplus for the quarter was $1,312,988, as compared with $2,777,044 in June. The statement for the quarter ending on Sept. 30, 1904, is as follows:

Net earnings—July, 1904	$ 6,344,771
August, 1904	6,202,957
September, 1904	6,226,204
Total net earnings, after deducting each month the expenditures for ordinary repairs, renewals, and maintenance of plants, also interest on bonds and fixed charges of the subsidiary companies	18,773,932
Less appropriations for the following purposes—viz.: Sinking funds on bonds of subsidiary companies	417,883
Depreciation and reserve funds	3,800,317
Total	$ 4,218,200
Balance	$14,555,732
Deduct: Interest on U. S. Steel corporation bonds for the quarter	5,925,325
Sinking funds on U. S. Steel corporation bonds for the quarter	1,012,500
Total	$ 6,397,825
Balance	$ 7,617,907
Dividend for the quarter on preferred stock of the U. S. Steel corporation, 1¾ per cent	6,304,919
Surplus for the quarter	1,312,988

W. J. FILBERT, Controller.

Unfilled orders on hand Sept. 30, 1904, 3,027,436 tons.

Chairman E. H. Gary, who gave out the financial statement, said:

"In addition to this, the booking orders figuring in the first two weeks in October now amount to 26,000 tons per day, or 38⅜ per cent greater than a year ago at this time. Conditions and prospects are good."

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Rutland preferred advanced 16 points to 57 today on talk that New York Central is to take it over. The advance in the price of copper metal led to good buying of all copper shares, on which sentiment is bullish. Prices ran off slightly on a break in the New York market, but the closing generally was firm. Call loans, 2@2½ per cent. Time loans, collateral, 4@4½ per cent. Time loans, mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent. Clearing house loans, 2 per cent.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The tone of the London stock market today was fairly firm, though sensitive. There was little fresh business. Consols were flat. They closed with a better tone. Home rails improved. Foreigners were quiet and irregular. Japanese were harder. Imperial Japanese government 6s of 1904 were quoted at 94½. Americans opened steady and irregular at parity. The changes afterwards were generally to higher quotations. The trading was animated. Union Pacific and Ontario and Western were the features. The market closed strong. Grand Trunk spurted sharply on the traffic returns.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Prices on the boerse today were weaker. The weekly statement of the imperial bank of Germany shows the following changes:

	Marks.
Cash in hand, increased	43,440,000
Treasury notes, increased	580,000
Other securities, decreased	43,280,000
Notes in circulation, decreased	47,180,000

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Business on the bourse today was depressed, owing to the Anglo-Russian incident, Russians particularly being affected. Russian imperial 4s were quoted at 93.90 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 512.

WILL TALK OF CLEANING CITY.

Clubs Which Paid Sweepers on Downtown Streets to Meet and Continue Labors Until June.

Members of the Merchants' and Commercial clubs will discuss the success of their experiment in cleaning the downtown streets at a meeting Saturday night in the Auditorium hotel.

Richard T. Fox, who has been directing the work for the last five months, will make a report, and Joy Morton, chairman of the joint committee of ten from the two clubs, will give information regarding the financial outlay. J. W. Alvord and Franklin MacVeagh also will speak.

Extension of the district cleaned under the direction of the clubs is planned. It is expected La Salle street will be included in the area by next week, and Fifth avenue may be added. Charles H. Wacker, vice president of the Commercial club, said yesterday that enough subscriptions were in sight to insure the street cleaning until next June.

NATURALIZED CITIZENS HELD.

Twenty Arrivals at Montreal Detained at Request of American Officials.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 25.—Twenty persons are virtually being held prisoners on the Allan line steamer Ionian at the request of United States immigration officials. They have United States naturalization papers and some thousands of dollars. It is said that there is some irregularity in their papers, and the matter has been referred to Washington.

CLAIRVOYANTS.

AN HONEST PROPOSITION — PROF. JAMES WHITE, Chicago's celebrated clairvoyant, palmist, and spirit medium, is permanently located here. His honesty, test of time, and 11 years of continuous practice in Chicago have proved beyond all doubt that Prof. James White is the leader of his profession. As proof of his WONDERFUL POWER, to all who come prepared for readings this week he will tell your FULL NAME, ADDRESS, OCCUPATION, AND THE OBJECT OF YOUR VISIT ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE. His advice pertaining to love, law, business, wills, estates, lawsuits, buying or selling property, speculation, investments, marriage, divorce, etc., is unequaled. He reunites the separated, causes speedy and happy marriage with one you love, restores lost affection, removes evil influence—in fact, everything. Prof. White's advice is much sought for on past or future investments for which he has no equal. He charges not one penny for such advice until the investment has paid a handsome profit. Is this not fair and honest? Great reduction this week. Prof. White, as a matter of advertisement, this week will give his complete life reading for 50 cents; satisfaction absolutely guaranteed or no fee accepted. Everything strictly sacred and confidential. His residence is arranged so you meet no strangers. Don't mistake name and number. PROF. JAMES WHITE, TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-THREE WARREN-AV., bet. Robey and Hoyne-av. West Side. Consultation hours, 10 to 6, Sundays included. No readings given by mail.

GREENBERG MUST PAY DAMAGES

Judgment for $800 Against Him and Bondsmen for His Attack on Mrs. Augusta Balaban.

Constable Louis Greenberg must pay Mrs. Augusta Balaban $800 damages for an attack on her three years ago. A jury in Judge Gibbons' court yesterday decided the question in less than half an hour. Mrs. Balaban's suit was not only against the constable, but also against Moritz Bromberg and James Foster, sureties on his bond. Judge Gibbons ruled against the contention of Bromberg and Foster that they were not responsible in cases of assault. The attack was an incident of levying to collect a $3 judgment in the little grocery of Mrs. Balaban at 423 West Twelfth street.

SHEEP THIEF MAKES $7,000

STEALS 3,000 HEAD, SHIPS TO CHICAGO, AND SELLS THEM.

Owner of the Animals Learns of Loss by Chance Some Time Afterward and Goes on the Trail—Now Watching a Downtown Hotel Where Wife and Child of the Suspect Are Staying Temporarily Awaiting His Return.

Apparently it is just as easy to steal 3,000 head of sheep from a western ranch and get away with the booty as it is for a Chicago burglar to rob a vacant house.

Junius Wright, a ranch owner of Boise City, Idaho, might not have known yet that 3,000 of his best sheep had been stolen by one of his tenders and shipped to Chicago if the cupidity of the man had not prompted him to run away with $90 in wages belonging to one of the herders. Having discovered his loss, Mr. Wright has come to Chicago, only to learn that the sheep have been sold for $7,000 and the man has disappeared.

The Chicago police, who are working on the case, believe that they will soon apprehend the man, and they are watching his wife and child, whom he sent for to meet him in Chicago. They are now at a downtown hotel.

It was this fact of the man sending for his wife which first aroused the suspicions of the herder on the western ranch, which he afterwards communicated to his employer.

Living in Boise City, where he has a grocery business, Mr. Wright visits his herds only occasionally. It therefore was not difficult for the tender to drive the sheep to the nearest railroad shipping point and to put them on the cars bound for Chicago. He accompanied the sheep himself and at some point between Idaho and Chicago he sent a letter back to the herder who had helped him ship the sheep and whose wages he failed to pay, asking him to send the wife and child to Chicago to meet him.

The herder's suspicions were aroused and he decided to go to Boise City and tell Mr. Wright. Wright telegraphed to the Pinkerton agency to meet the woman at the station and shadow her until his arrival. He then came to Chicago.

The police believe the wife does not know that her husband has taken the property of his employer and that they will be able to trace him.

JEWISH CONGREGATION WARS OVER REMOVAL OF CHURCH.

Says Change from South to West Side Would Break Laws of the Orthodox Faith.

Alleging that the laws of their church will be broken and that they will suffer expulsion, twenty-seven members of the Congregation Beth Hamedresh Hagodel B'nai Jacob, of the orthodox Jewish faith, have filed in the Circuit court a bill for an injunction to restrain the removal of the church from the south to the west side. The complainants accuse President Louis Imanson of failing in his duty, and declare that Treasurer Louis Steinberg has been derelict in his trust as custodian of church funds.

The congregation is the oldest of its kind on the south side, having been organized in 1871. Its synagogue formerly was at 413 La Salle street, but the site was sold for business purposes and removal to the west side was postponed by a certain faction.

Would Break Church Law.

Should the removal be made the complainants assert they will be compelled to go more than a mile from their homes to worship and that they will be required to pay street car fare. The laws of their faith, they assert, confine their residence to a radius of one mile from the place of worship and absolutely forbid the carrying of money on days of worshiping, even for street car fare.

Marks Libman and Jacob Frisinsky are leaders of the complainants, who assert further that a resolution was adopted in 1890 providing that the synagogue remain permanently on the south side. They accuse the president and treasurer of conspiracy with five of the trustees to break this compact.

Accounting Is Asked.

In the complaint it is asked that Treasurer Steinberg account for the income from pew rentals during his fourteen year term, as well as for payment received for burial plots in Oakwoods cemetery, and for other church assets.

LODGING HOUSE VOTE BAD, DECLARES RAYMOND ROBINS.

Tells Women It Is a Danger to Free Institutions—Americans Moral Individually, but Not Collectively.

Carpetbag legislators at Washington and graft aldermen in the city council were declared yesterday to be the outgrowth of that sleeping industrial conscience which permits the human waste of a great city to be voted at the will of one or two men. The statement was made by Raymond Robins, head of the Municipal lodging house, before the Ladies' Auxiliary club at Thirty-third street and Indiana avenue.

"In the First and Eighteenth wards," he continued, "there is gathered just before each election the exploited and disinherited men of the middle west. They always vote for the worst men, utterly regardless of the ticket. The men in control of these votes are the most powerful in municipal life. We are the sufferers.

"The American people are moral individually, but their collective industrial morality is one of the great dangers. A great many good people, respectable citizens, known for their good works, make no inquiries as to the source of their incomes. It is often gained by the exploitation of human life.

"There should be a law which would declare that man or woman who profits by the exploitation of the life blood of men a public enemy. I don't care in how golden a stream it may run."

PATRONS' HEARTS ARE WON BY BOYS OF GLENWOOD FARM.

Commercial Club Members Visit Institution to Which They Gave $100,000—Praise the Good Accomplished.

When a boy of fourteen at the Illinois Manual Training school farm at Glenwood plucked a pink carnation from a hothouse bed yesterday and placed it in the coat lapel of J. Harley Bradley he won the hearts of the Commercial club.

One hundred members of the club were making their first official inspection of the institution since they donated $100,000 for its uses two years ago. The bankers, brokers, and merchants visited the manual training department, the machine shops, and the printing rooms, and saw 365 boys learning useful trades. Then they viewed the twelve cottages in which the boys live. Each building was surrounded by flower beds.

"Do you like flowers, mister?" piped up a bright faced youth. "All us boys do. We grow—"

"That's a good sign," said President Bradley. "Any boy that likes flowers can't go far wrong."

The club members went to Glenwood on a special train. In the party were Marshall Field, Joseph Field of Manchester, England; Charles L. Hutchinson, Rollin A. Keyes, Edward B. Butler, Edward G. Foreman, Robert T. Lincoln, Ernest A. Hamill, James B. Forgan, J. Harley Bradley, Charles D. Norton, E. G. Keith, J. V. Farwell Jr., John G. Shedd, and Alfred L. Baker.

After inspecting the workshops and riding over the 300 acre farm the clubmen reviewed a military drill and listened to a band concert by the boy musicians.

"I have seen crack military organizations that could do no better," said Mr. Forgan.

The members were interested especially in the Farm and Washington cottages, erected with part of the funds donated by the club.

PROTEST TO SCHOOL BOARD PROPOSED BY FEDERATION.

Meeting Asked for Next Sunday to Object to Decision Against Little Ballot Agitation—Machinist Slugged.

A petition for a special meeting of the federation of labor next Sunday was circulated yesterday. The meeting, if held, will be devoted to protesting against the action of the school management committee of the board of education in refusing to permit the distributon of reading matter advocating certain public policy propositions. An attack on the new charter amendment to the state constitution also is expected.

William Tolman, 65 years old and an employé of the Weir & Craig Manufacturing company, machinists, is at the People's hospital in a serious condition as the result of an assault Monday morning. The machinists have been on strike at the shop since early in May and Tolman is a nonunion worker. While on his way to work he was attacked by three men at Twenty-fourth and Wallace streets.

Attorneys for John Kikuiski will ask Judge Kersten this morning to reinstate his case in the Criminal court and declare his bonds not forfeited. Kikuiski is business agent of the woodworkers' union. He was indicted on the charge of assaulting nonunion men. Owing to an error by the clerk of the court his case was called on Monday and his bonds were declared forfeited because of his failure to appear. The reopening of the case will not be opposed by the prosecution.

The open meeting of the typewriters' and stenographers' union, for presenting the benefits of organization to the workers, will be held tomorrow evening at 82 Randolph street. Daniel Cruice and others will speak.

MOSES BENSINGER ESTATE BEQUEATHED TO FAMILY.

Share of Daughter Edna Fish Put in Trust Because of "Her Unusually Free and Open Handed Disposition."

Moses Bensinger, who died recently, left an estate valued at $750,000. Almost all the property is bequeathed to members of the family. Michael Reese hospital and the Jewish training school are given $1,000 each by the will, which was filed yesterday afternoon, and the Alexian Brothers' hospital is bequeathed $500.

Several bequests of $1,000 each are made to brothers and sisters. To the children of the testator, Cora B. Hyman, Edna B. Fish, and Benjamin Edward Bensinger, are given forty shares each of the capital stock of the Brunswick, Balke and Collender company, par value $1,000. In connection with the bequest to Mrs. Fish the will provides:

"The executors are to retain the principal until in their judgment they deem it expedient to give the entire bequest to her. Until such time she is to receive the entire net income. I make this provision, not because I bear her any less love, but because of her unusually free and open handed disposition, which has caused her at times to sacrifice that care and concern to herself which I am endeavoring to provide for her."

The widow and the son are named as executors.

SAYS CHURCH GROWS 300 FOLD

Christian Science Lecturer Declares Denomination Has Made Great Gains in Seven Years.

That the Christian Science movement in the last seven years has grown from 300 to 500 fold was declared last night by the Rev. Irving C. Tomlinson of Concord, N. H., lecturing in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 4017 Drexel boulevard.

"When this church was dedicated in 1899," he said, "there was one church of this denomination in Chicago. Now there are six. In Illinois there were twenty-six Christian Science centers, where now there are ninety-six. The denomination has grown in the United States from 360 to 850 organizations, and the movement has been extended to Alaska, England, Scotland, Ireland, and to the continent of Europe.

"Mrs. Eddy deserves the friendship of every Christian because of the works which follow her."
